Miners Refused Portal Pay; Some Walkouts Begin

U.M.W. Expected to Make Crucial Decision Today On Calling a General Work Stoppage Tomorrow

(See the editorial "Supreme Test," on Page 6.)
(Soviet labor declared "alarmed" by U. S. Coal dispute. Page 7.)

By Ben Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

The War Labor Board yesterday refused to grant the country's coal miners "portal to portal" pay, but directed them to sign a new agreement with the coal industry containing a pledge not to strike for the duration of the war.

The decision came just two days before the expiration of United Mine Worker President John L. Lewis' Sunday midnight "no contract, no work" deadline for a possible third general coal strike.

The crucial decision on going ahead with the general strike was expected to be made during a meeting of the U. M. W. Policy Committee scheduled for 11 a. m. today.

Announcement of the board's decision produced a flurry of work stoppages in Alabama and Pennsylvania with indications that others were in prospect.

Three Alabama mines normally employing more than 2200 men were shut down as evening crews failed to show up, company spokesmen reported to the Associated Press.

At various mines in Pennsylvania more than 2000 workers failed to report on night shifts, and there were predictions that other mines would be closed today. Members of Local 5229, in the Connellsville area, said that "any miners wanting to work may do so; but those who don't want to may remain away."

Ordered by 8-4 Vote

Ordered by an 8-to-4 vote, with labor members dissenting, the WLB action represented the judgment of the public and industry members that the board could not grant the "portal-to-portal" demand in the absence of an agreement between the operators and miners without violating its wage stabilization rules.

Lewis had cited a decision of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals ordering "portal-to-portal" pay to iron ore miners under the Fair Labor Standards Act in support of his demand, but most of the operators contended that nothing was due under the F. L. S. A.

The board ruled that the question represented an unsettled potential lawsuit beyond the jurisdiction of the board to compose. However, WLB expressly left the way open for future settlement either by the courts, the Wage Hour Division of the Department of Labor, or through collective bargaining.

WLB to Hold Reins

WLB specified, however, "if they should agree to a settlement, the board, as the agency of Government charged with administration of the wage stabilization program, will rule whether the agreement is a genuine settlement of the lawsuit compatible with the stabilization program."

Pointing out that the board had ordered the miners and operators to bargain out a settlement of the "portal to portal" issue, WLB Chairman William H. Davis told a press conference:

"Well, they couldn't settle it, and we could not force them to

Food Poison Fells 150 Circus Folk

More than 150 performers and employes of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus were stricken with food poisoning last night while the show was at its height but true to the tradition of all troupers, the show went on without interruption.

More than 75 of the victims were removed to Casualty Hospital in ambulances, police cars and circus buses, while a score were taken to Gallinger Hospital. Many others were given first aid at the circus grounds by hospital physicians and Dr. Joseph Bergin, circus physician.

According to authorities, the victims became ill about three hours after eating filet of sole and chicken salad served in the circus tent from the cook wagon. Many of the top performers became ill while going through their acts.

There was Karl Wallenda, famous wire performer, who completed his performance and who almost collapsed in the arena afterward, and had to be escorted from the scene. Felix Adler, famed clown, was obliged to curb his antics. He bravely carried on his act amusing a group of children, but was obliged to retire when his illness became acute.

The freaks in the sideshows did not escape. The Thin Man and the Giant became equally ill. Baby Thelma Williams, the Fat Lady, who weighs 619 pounds collapsed in her ten with a gargantuan stomach ache and was removed on a stretcher to Gallinger Hospital.

Then there was Vander Barbette, noted director of the aerial ballet who was forced to retire as was Merle Evans, director of the circus band, who relinquished his baton and left the platform. Stricken also were the midgets, Major Mite and Frankie Saluta and Fred

Auchinleck Gets Post

By E. C. Daniel
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Saturday), June 19.—Britain appointed Field Marshal Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander in chief in India, as Viceroy of India today, and disclosed her intention to create a separate East Asia military command to wage an offensive against Japan.

Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck was appointed to succeed Wavell as commander in India. The separate command decision is presumably one of the major products of the Washington strategy conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Wavell Also Attended

Who would head the proposed East Asia command was not disclosed.

It was presumed that the United States would collaborate fully with Britain in the East Asia command as she does with the Australians in the southwest Pacific, and the British in North Africa.

The announcement of Wavell's appointment to a five-year term succeeding Lord Linlithgow, and designation of Auchinleck to return to his former command in India concluded:

"It is proposed to relieve the commander in chief in India of responsibility for the conduct of operations against Japan and to set up a separate East Asia command for that purpose. Further announcement on this subject will be made soon."

This was taken as a concrete expression of Britain's intention to prosecute the war against Japan with full vigor once Hitler is defeated.

The terms of the Wavell and Auchinleck appointments suggested that new vigor would be injected immediately into the job of creating a strong forward base for the reconquest of the Orient.

It appeared that Auchinleck, India commander in 1940-41, would

House Fury Hits Agencies, But War Gets Full Support

Climaxing weeks of growing Congressional bitterness toward various Government agencies, the House, in a 10-hour session yesterday, voted:

1. To forbid continuance beyond July 1 of the food subsidy program by the Office of Price Administration.
2. To cut 35 million dollars from the 165 millions recommended by its appropriations committee for OPA during the coming fiscal year.
3. To block grade labeling or standardization of food or other products.
4. To replace what members have called "professors and theorists" in OPA's pricing setup with men having at least five years business experience in the industries concerned.
5. To abolish domestic operations of the Office of War Information and cut 5.5 million dollars from that agency's funds for the year.
6. To reject a move to cut the appropriation of the Board of Economic Warfare, and another to increase that of the Smaller War Plants Corporation.

Earlier in the day Congress had sent to the White House the independent offices appropriations bill with the funds for the National Resources Planning Board cut to $50,000, a reduction expected to end the board's work by September.

In furtherance of the war effort, however, these actions were taken:

1. The largest naval supply bill in history, carrying $27,637,000,000, was given final approval by both houses and sent to the White House.
2. The House Appropriations Committee reported out favorably an unprecedented Army supply bill of $71,510,438,873, while the bill's floor manager declared that the Nation must prepare "for at least four more years of this terrible war."
3. To put "every possible acre" into food production, the Senate added 22 million dollars to the Interior Department's funds bill for developing irrigation projects.

Coast Guard Cutter Sunk; Only 2 Survive

The United States Coast Guard cutter Escanaba has been sunk in the North Atlantic following an explosion "of undetermined cause," the Navy announced yesterday.

Only two members of the ship's crew of some 60 survived when she was rocked by a "terrific" explosion amidships and went down "almost immediately," an official statement said.

The 165-foot, 718-ton craft was commanded by Lieut. Comdr. Carl Uno Peterson, 36, of Lynn, Mass. Peterson lived here in 1936 and 1937, while attending the Capital Radio Engineering Institute on detail from the Coast Guard. He again lived here from 1938 to 1941, while serving at Coast Guard Headquarters.

Peterson went down with his ship. The only survivors were Melvin Baldwin of East Grand Forks, Minn., and Raymond F. O'Malley, jr. of Chicago, both

Yanks Bomb Sicily; R. A. F. Raids Naples

By Noland Norgaard
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 18.—American Liberator bombers of the Middle East command have smashed again at Sicily in the campaign to destroy the last of its air cover, dropping 125 tons of exploding steel on the airdromes of Comiso and Biscari to follow up another heavy night attack by British Wellingtons on the home Italian port of Naples.

The Liberators, estimated in Cairo dispatches at about 50, were escorted by R. A. F. Spitfires based on Malta, and all Allied planes from these and the operations against Naples returned safely.

At Comiso, a hangar was destroyed and workshops, dispersal areas and the runway were covered with explosions. At Biscari, only a few miles away, many hits were scored. Several grounded

Jap Recklessness in Risking 120 Planes Is Puzzle to Knox

Post Staff Writer

Secretary Frank Knox, terming the 77-to-6 air victory over the Japs Wednesday "glorious," yesterday expressed wonderment at the enemy's motive in risking 120 planes for a raid on Guadalcanal.

He told reporters that we had no convoy in the southeastern Solomons at the time, nor any "great movement on down there." Neither, said the Navy Secretary, had the Japanese a seaborne landing expedition following up their planes in case they had succeeded in knocking out our air base and planes at Guadalcanal.

"I can't understand why they come over in such numbers to take such a god-awful pasting with no tangible objective in mind," Knox told reporters.

Questioned about his statement that "we have nothing important going on right now" in the Solomons area, the Navy chief gave a possible hint that American offensive action was brewing elsewhere in the Pacific.

He merely laughed off questions about any pending moves against the Japs, saying he wasn't talking about such things. Earlier in the week Knox when asked for an explanation as to the Pacific lull, said that "big movements take time to prepare."

The Navy Secretary said the best explanation for the one-sidedness of Wednesday's air victory was the "superiority of American flying personnel and planes" over the Japs. Moreover, he indicated that our air power in the southeastern Solomons has been greatly strenghtened.

"We've a lot of planes down there—the very best type," Knox said. "You can make the assumption without violating security that we've been augmenting all elements of our strength steadily."

Earlier in the day, the Navy announced that an American merchant ship and a landing barge were damaged by Jap bombs in the attack. United States casualties, reported a communique, were 25 killed, 29 injured and 22 missing, afloat and ashore.

One of the pilots, however, of the six American planes shot down in the battle was rescued, the Navy reported. The attacking force, it was said, consisted of about 60 Jap bombers and 60 Zero fighters.

It was the greatest air raid ever attempted by the Nipponese in the Solomons—and the most disastrous.

Yesterday's communique also reported that American Army Liberator bombers attacked the Jap base on Ballale Island, in the Shortland Island area of the Solomons Wednesday night. Results were not observed and one of the Liberators is missing.

It was also announced that three more Japanese were captured in

18 Agencies Voted Nearly 3 Billions

$5,500,000 Sliced From Elmer Davis' Budget to Abolish Domestic Branch

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

The House last night ordered Elmer Davis to take his Office of War Information out of business on the home front.

The decision was turned in at the close of a laborious, tumultuous 10-hour session by a two-to-one margin that spelled trouble for any Senate attempt to restore money for the OWI domestic branch. A 218-to-114 roll call wiped out every cent of the $5,500,000 proposed for domestic operation.

After trimming the OWI and chopping the Office of Price Administration from 165 to 130 million dollars, the House by a voice vote approved the bill carrying $2,898,941,000 for 18 war agencies, and forwarded it to the Senate. Of the total, 18 million dollars is in contract authority. Nearly 2¼ billion dollars of the total is for the War Shipping Administration.

BEW Curtailment Beaten

Administration forces scored a first-inning victory and their last one of the day when they beat down, 149 to 134, an attempt to curtail sharply the Board of Economic Warfare, a proposal sponsored by Representative Taber of New York, ranking Republican on the Appropriations Committee.

So thorough was the drubbing, that on passing the bill, a scattering of "no's" went up from the Democratic side.

Davis' domestic operations branch went down before the almost solid vote of the Republicans, backed by a substantial group of Southern Democrats swinging behind the appeal of Representative Starnes (Democrat) of Alabama, who sponsored the fund erasure.

The blow fell shortly after one Republican, Gardner Cowles, publisher of Des Moines and Minneapolis, had left his job as director of the domestic operations branch, to make way for Palmer Hoyt, pub-

Army's Dogfood Bill for Year Set At $3,595,788

Republicans Lead Smashing Revolt That Also Restricts Agency's Personnel, Hits Grade-Labeling Program

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

In an angry upheaval against politically unpopular OPA, the House last night ripped the agency's budget, hacked at personnel and price control policies and clamped an airtight lid on OPA's subsidized rollback of prices.

The Republican-led revolt burst all leadership controls to hedge harrassed OPA with so many restrictions that one Administration spokesman said:

"If this bill finally passes Congress with these amendments, it means only one thing—uncontrolled inflation."

One rider alone, sponsored by tousle-haired Everett Dirksen, Illinois Republican, dealt a knockout blow at the Administration's price rollback by barring any OPA participation in subsidy programs after July 1.

The Dirksen amendment was adopted by a 160-to-106 teller vote after the Illinois member branded subsidies "unequal, illusory and inflationary." There was no roll call.

The sweeping antisubsidy rider followed a slash of 35 million dollars from OPA appropriations. By a 185-to-147 roll-call vote the House reduced 1944 funds for Prentiss Brown's almost barricaded agency to 130 million dollars.

Other Restrictions Voted

Other strait jacket House restrictions on OPA:

1. By Representative Dirksen —Requires five years previous business experience of all OPA officials directing price ceiling policies excepting only Administrator Brown. Experience must be had in the specific field touched by price regulations on which the official is working. Approved by a 188-to-144 roll call vote.
2. By Representative Sauthoff (Progressive) of Wisconsin—Denies funds for a rollback of prices on luxuries or on any food commodity which has not reached parity. Approved by a 229-to-105 roll call vote.
3. By Representative Andresen (Republican) of Minnesota—Withholds funds for enforcement of grade labeling orders or for standardization of food, clothing or other commodities. Approved by a 140 to 85 standing vote.

The rapid body-blows to the whole price control structure came in defiance of President Roosevelt's ringing press conference defense of OPA policies and price subsidies. Only four days ago he had warned that half the population

White House Told

Food Plans May Collapse, Davis Warns

By Ovid A. Martin
Associated Press Staff Writer

War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis has told White House advisers, it was disclosed yesterday, that the present Government food program is not working satisfactorily and is in danger of collapse unless steps are taken soon to eliminate divided authority and to allow more flexibility in price control.

Davis' views were given to reporters by official sources who asked that they not be named. Davis takes the attitude that it is impossible under the present setup to manage the food situation properly because of:

1. What he considers a lack of understanding of the intricacies of food production and distribution among some officials and agencies having authority in the food field.

Battle Over Subsidies

2. An apparent determination on the part of the Roosevelt Administration to wage a battle with Congress over use of subsidies to reduce consumer food prices.
3. What Davis sees as an inclination on the part of the White House to postpone action on food problems—particularly adjustments in farm and food price orders—until after the wage dispute with the United Mine Workers is settled.

Finds Great Confusion

Davis, it was stated, has found that the entire food industry—including farmers, processors and distributors—and consumers are greatly confused by the present situation. This confusion, in the food administrator's view, is potentially more dangerous than the

Living Cost Increases Nearly 1% in Month

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins estimated yesterday that the cost of living rose another .8 per cent from mid-April to mid-May, bringing the average cost of living for city workers to a level 7.8 per cent above a year ago and 24.1 per cent above January, 1941.

The jump, as usual, was mostly in food, which went up 1.7 per cent, particularly fresh fruits and vegetables from the 1943 crop just coming to market.

There also were slight increases in the cost of medical care, barber and beauty services and some other services.

On Yanks' Own Program

'Washington Post March' Rings Through New Guinea Jungle

By Dean Schedler
Associated Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in New Guinea, June 16 (Delayed).—Since the start of the war the Japanese have done everything possible to jam the radio frequency and prevent our fighting men from listening to the Allied Nations' broadcasts.

When soldiers on Bataan Peninsula in the Philippines tried to hear news from home, the Japanese would come in on the same wave length with jabberings and repetitious wireless signals.

In New Guinea, they try the same tactics, but one aggressive chap has foiled their efforts. He is Lieut. Frederick Newmeyer, jr., of Pittsburgh, who gives the boys in an advanced New Guinea jungle base his own broadcast programs.

He broadcasts from an Army tent, using an improvised public address system. Each evening's program gets on the air with the playing of "The Washington Post March" from a chipped phonograph record. Newmeyer composes the script typical of United States newscasts, but without the commercial announcements.

The program includes world news, southwest Pacific news, sports and other Allied news. The day of the month is announced for soldiers writing letters, and a time signal is given for the setting of wrist watches.

"The only way the Nips can jam my show is with gunfire," said Newmeyer.

Post Will Try to Get New Record to Newmeyer

The Post is interested that Lieutenant Newmeyer opens his programs with the "Washington Post March," but is perturbed no end that his record is such a dilapidated one. Consequently, generals and admirals providing the necessary approval, The Post will undertake to supply him with a new recording.

Victory Requirements

Selective Service Foresees Reduced Inductions Soon

Reduction of the rate of inductions for the Army, with the possibility of further postponement in the drafting of fathers, was forecast last night as Selective Service headquarters disclosed that it expected orders from Army officials "within a few days" revising downward military manpower requirements.

The disclosure was in line with payroll figures supplied by Army officials May 28 to the Appropriations Committee during its consideration of the $71,500,000,000 1944 Army appropriation bill reported to the House yesterday.

The committee was told that the Army's payroll would reach a peak of 8,203,481 persons in uniform during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1944, including 150,000 members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, assuming that organization is kept at its present authorized strength and about 55,000 nurses and other aides.

The Army's figures, however, were at wide variance with estimates of Army manpower needs given the committee at about the same time by War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. McNutt and made public last Monday. McNutt put military manpower requirements at the figure that has been used officially for several months—10,900,000 men for the armed services, of which 8,200,000 would be brought into the Army.

Peak strength of enlisted and officer personnel in the Army during the new fiscal year would be 7,996,622, the committee reported.

Figures furnished the committee showed the Army's uniformed personnel, including women, reached a peak of 7,212,610 during the fiscal year ending June 30, showing a net expected increase of strength in all categories during the next fiscal year of only 990,871.

71 Billion Budget Favored for Army

Committee Backs 'Decisive' Measure; 1-3 for Air Force

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The Nation's prospective pile of fighting dollars reached new astronomical heights yesterday as the Appropriations Committee presented the House with a $71,510,438,873 "decisive" budget for the Army and as the 1944 supply bill's manager, Representative Snyder (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, warned:

"The over-all picture and inside setting, tells us that we must continue to prepare in the same big way for at least four more years of this terrible war—hoping and working for an earlier collapse of the Axis powers."

Snyder added his opinion that the bill, appropriating for the military establishment for the fiscal year beginning July 1, represented the "peak" in Army appropriations. Expenditures by the Army in succeeding years, he stated, should drop to 50 billions "even if the war is still on."

Navy Bill to White House

The biggest appropriation bill in history reached the House as a record Navy supply measure of $27,637,000,000, carrying $9,118,000,000 for new warships and auxiliary craft, went to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature. The House is expected to speed the Army bill to the Senate today.

Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, deputy chief of staff, dubbed the huge Army appropriation "the decisive budget," suggestive of the crucial period that stands between the country and its goal of "unconditional surrender" of the Axis powers.

"These decisive dollars," he asserted, "will be translated into decisive strategic and tactical plans."

New dollars to the total of $59,037,599,673 are proposed to be appropriated by the bill which also makes available to the Army $12,472,839,200 as a carry-over from the 1943 budget.

36,000 Bombers

Nearly one-third of the total, or $23,655,481,000, would be spent for the Army Air Forces and represents practically the whole cost of the Army's portion of the big new airplane program. The money would provide an air force of 273 groups, three million ground troops, 36,000 bombers, 38,000 fighters, 12,000 air transports and 9000 trainers, with spare engines and parts to keep them in the air.

A total of 99,740 airplanes, the committee noted in its report, constituted the Army's quota under the 185,000-plane program initiated in this calendar year and scheduled for completion by June, 1944.

Military and naval leaders, the committee reported, have advocated continuation of the plane program, after June of next year, at the maximum production rate obtaining at that time, "which will be well over the calendar year objective of 125,000 airplanes."

Other Funds Made Available

Other funds made available by the bill, including $15,100,000,000 for ordnance, will equip fighting divisions with enough ammunition, tanks, small arms, artillery and combat vehicles "to enable us to come to grips with and destroy the enemy," the committee declared.

Another significant item in the bill was the $1,154,734,000 it would provide for the Army's Chemical Warfare Service. In this connection, the committee's report remarked:

"Though continuing to hope that none of the Axis powers will resort to chemical warfare . . . the committee is determined that our own and Allied forces shall be at all times and in all theaters completely ready, defensively and offensively, should our enemies elect to engage in this diabolical form of attack."

186 Billion Since 1940

The more that 59 billions carried in new appropriations would boost the totals made available for the Army since July 1, 1940, to nearly 186 billion dollars. The total outlay for war and defense purposes since that date is estimated at 400 billions.

"The cost is frightful," ran the committee's report at one point, and at another:

"The figures are almost unbelievable. The total expended by the War Department for all purposes for the conduct of World War I was 23 billion dollars."

Nears Peak Strength

The Army's budget envisioned a peak enlisted and officer strength in the fiscal year of 7,996,022 men, which, together with 150,000 WAACS and 56,859 nurses and other aides, would bring the total on the Army's uniformed payroll by July 1, 1944, to 8,202,881. The enlisted strength of the Army, the committee stated, is expected to be 6,500,000 men by the end of June, this year.

Previous statements of the Army's manpower needs had placed at 8,200,000 the number of persons expected to be in uniform by the end of this year.

Included under the heading of "Pay of the Army," the bill carries $55,716,000 for pay of a contemplated 355,800 prisoners of war. Under the Geneva Convention, this Government will pay $3 a month to prisoners of enlisted grades, whether they work or not, and $21 a month if they work outside prison camps. Officers who may not be required to work, are paid from $20 to $40 a month, depending upon rank.

have mainly a defensive task, while Wavell, whose position roughly would be that of a prime minister in relation to strategy, would apply his military knowledge as well as his political tact to the complex task of the offensive.

Wavell is now in Britain and will return to India in the autumn to assume the post of Viceroy, which pays $75,000 a year.

Auchinleck takes command in India immediately. Little has been heard of him since he was replaced in 1942 as Middle East commander.

With growing emphasis upon the "experiment" to bomb the Axis out of the war, it was rumored that one of the R. A. F.'s aggressive air marshals might be considered to direct all Allied forces operating from India against Japan.

There is no suggestion that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command would be subordinated to the East Asia effort.

The fact that Wavell will not assume his new duties until the fall, however, suggested no immediate major advance in the Far East.

(The shifts stirred Washington conjecture that an Anglo-American squeeze play against Japan is in the making.

(Coming just as American air power in the South Pacific had dealt a heavy new blow to Nipponese raiders at Guadalcanal, scoring a virtual 13-to-1 victory, the changes have double significance. They clearly forecast an aggressive campaign in Burma late this year, after the wet monsoon season ends in October, to match expected developments in the Pacific.

(Aside from the fact that the Anglo-American war production effort is reaching the point where simultaneous major actions on fronts half the world apart can be charted, the North African victory cut thousands of sea miles off the war supply routes to India. By use of the Mediterranean to ship men, equipment and stores to the East Asia Front, weeks if not months of the time necessary to prepare for a post-monsoon drive in Burma have been eliminated. Weather conditions in Burma probably will prevent aggressive action there until late fall or early winter.)

enemy planes were believed destroyed at both fields. The Spitfires destroyed an Italian interceptor plane.

Of the Naples raid, the communique from Allied headquarters said only that the Naples docks were attacked. Two enemy planes were destroyed last night in operations in this theater.

An Axis sailing vessel in the Aegean Sea was reported damaged by R. A. F. long-range fighters in the continuing patrol of those waters.

The French high command, in its first communique since the conquest of Tunisia, announced that a French submarine had sunk a 5000-ton Axis cargo ship in the Mediterranean.

It also disclosed that the French had been supplied by the British with Spitfire planes. This was made known in an official report that French pilots flew 140 individual flights in both Warhawks and Spitfires to protect debarking British troops during the occupation of Pantelleria.

The Italian communique reported Allied air attacks at several points in Sicily and on Calabria in southern Italy proper.

Chungking, June 18.—Chinese troops, credited with killing or wounding 40,000 Japanese in pushing the invaders back from the Hunan rice bowl, were reported today to have completed the encirclement of Owchihkow, 90 miles southeast of the Japanese base at Ichang.

Owchihkow is one of the last important Japanese-held strongholds west of Yochow and south of the Yangtze.

American planes, which bombed the city Tuesday in support of ground forces, further paved the way for the success of the ground action, dispatches from the front said.

Chinese headquarters reported that a Japanese three-columned drive, started last Monday against Chinese positions near the coastal port of Swatow in Kwangtung Province, had been "intercepted."

Barkley Visits Family

San Antonio, June 18 (AP).—Senator Alben Barkley of Keneucky, Senate Democratic leader, arrived at Randolph Field last night to visit his son, Maj. D. M. Barkley, post operations officer at the field, and his family, including a little granddaughter he had never seen. He planned to spend only a day or two before returning to Washington.

Cuban Imports May Stretch Liquor Stocks

Diminishing stocks of whisky and gin May 30 reached a little farther by imports of Cuban neutral spirits, although this will boost prices as much as 30 cents a quart.

This came out yesterday amid a nffice of Price Administration (OPA) investigation into liquor prices and reported violations of price ceilings.

The OPA said Cuba has a surplus of neutral spirits and ruled that manufacturers and distributors may pass onto consumers the cost of importing it. This cost, including taxes, war risk insurance and freight, will be a minimum of $2.50 per proof gallon.

Neutral spirits, a fancy name for alcohol, is the main ingredient in gin and is used extensively in blended whisky, some of the brands running as high as 72 per cent neutral spirits. It is also used in cordials.

The increase in price will be restricted to blenders using imported spirits, and then only in proportion to the amounts used, OPA emphasized. It estimated retail prices may be boosted 30 cents a quart, or 26 cents a fifth.

Blending makes straight stocks of whisky go up to four times as far as they would if sold as straight whisky.

Raid Shelters Held Unsafe

Office of Civilian Defense officials charged with precautionary planning in the event of air raids in the Nation's Capital heard yesterday that neither bomb shelters nor basement areas are considered adequately safe places for civilians when bombs are falling.

Addressing the Civilian Defense Public Works group of OCD at a luncheon yesterday, Maj. Sedley Peck of the Civil Aeronautics Board declared that his experiences in France during the Nazi invasion and in Spain during the height of the civil war had convinced him that people were safest during a bombing raid when they "stayed where they were."

This means that they ought to get under cover, Major Peck explained, "but I have seen too many people killed when a bomb hit their closely packed shelter."

Lanphier Stars As 'Hot' Pilot In Pacific War

By Leif Erickson
Associated Press Staff Writer

An Advanced South Pacific Base. In four months of action in the Solomons, Capt. Thomas G. Lanphier, jr., 27, has won recognition as the "hottest" pilot in one of the South Pacific's "hottest" Army fighter squadrons.

LANPHIER

Lanphier, who calls Detroit his home town, is a member of the 13th U. S. Army Air Force Fighter Squadron. Here is his personal record from January through April:

Six Zeroes in combat; one enemy bomber shot down; six Zeros destroyed on ground; one 300-ton cargo ship sunk by dive bombing; one enemy tank destroyed by dive bombing; one radio station and truck wrecked by dive bombing.

Lanphier is a son of Col. Thomas G. Lanphier, now executive head of Army Air Force Intelligence in Washington, D. C. After graduation from Stanford University in California he worked as a reporter in San Francisco and then started flying and enlisted in the Air Force.

In 29 of the toughest days of the Guadalcanal campaign, Lanphier and 11 squadron mates, including the squadron commander, Lieut. Col. Henry C. Viccellio, of Chatham, Va., flew an average of 65 combat hours each.

For his exploits in the four weeks of intensive action, Lanphier received from Lieut. Gen. Millard F. Harmon the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Silver Star.

Knox Is Puzzled Over Raid Motive

the Khlebnikof area of Attu Island, bringing the total number of prisoners taken in the conquest of the Aleutian Island to 24.

Secretary Knox said there was no news from the Aleutians other than that the weather had been very bad there the past few days.

He greeted reporters at his press conference with the statement that he "wished you wise boys would tell us what the Japs were trying to do" in Wednesday's raid.

"Suppose they had won the air fight," he continued, "what good would it have done them? They couldn't take Guadalcanal from the air and they didn't have a landing expedition following up. We have no convoy or concentration or anything important going on right now there."

Just Interfering?

Speculating as to a possible answer for his question, Knox said that they may have just been trying to interfere with any plans we may have in mind.

"One human answer might be," he added, "is that we have been giving them particular hell over the whole area down there and they may have wanted to give us back some of the same medicine."

Asked about published reports that the Germans had withdrawn their U-boats to more protected waters because of beatings taken from Allied antisubmarine forces, Knox held up both hands with his fingers crossed.

"The news is so good, I'm holding my fingers crossed," he replied. "The lull in sinkings is probably due to some change in Axis plans. Realistically, we know we are going to get an increase in sinkings. The war against the subs is by no means over. They've got a lot of U-boats and the fight against them will continue until the war is over."

Allies Reported Massing in Syria

Attacks Smashed

Soviets Slay 2000 Nazis Near Orel

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), June 19.—Russia announced early today that Soviet forces had killed more than 2000 German troops in hurling back numerous enemy counterattacks this week in the vital Orel sector, where the Nazis were reported using semitrained reservists and rear-line troops.

The Moscow midnight communique recorded here by the Soviet monitor said the Russians shot down 15 German planes during this fighting and captured prisoners and some materiel.

A Moscow broadcast said Russian airmen shot down 24 German planes which attempted twice to attack Volkhov, below Leningrad, yesterday. The Russians were said to have lost four planes.

A special Soviet announcement also said that Russian bombers raided a German airdrome near Leningrad and one in the Donets Basin.

On the front west of Moscow, Red Army troops were reported to have killed about 200 Germans yesterday. Artillery fire was exchanged west of Rostov.

In the Minsk area, Russian guerillas were reported to have wrecked three German troop trains, destroying 56 cars carrying troops and equipment and killing many of the enemy soldiers.

Frontline dispatches reported the German use of semitrained reservists and rear-line troops northwest of Mtsensk.

This, said Soviet military experts, was the first indication that Hitler had been compelled to depend upon reservists for attack in a vital sector, although they said the Germans for a long time had had to use less well trained troops at points on the eastern battlefront to replace crack troops wiped out.

The Mtsensk sector is important, the Russians said, because it is here that they foresee a possible offensive by the Germans. The Soviets said the Nazis' attack plans might have been upset by Russian capture of a strong point which the Germans could have used as a jumping-off point. This locality was not further identified, but was said to have been in German hands for a year.

Turkish-Syrian Border Reopened; Balkans Bolstered

By Blake Sullivan
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, June 18.—Reopening of the Turkish-Syrian frontier and Axis reports of large Allied troop concentrations in Syria boosted enemy worry today over the shaky "southeastern wall" in the Balkans, where the Germans were said to have sent strong reinforcements.

One possible barometer of Italian nervousness came in a Reuters report that a rumor of Allied invasion of Sicily had surged through the town of Tolmino in northern Italy, with the garrison dashing into the streets "to welcome the end of the war."

The Turkish-Syrian border was reopened at 6 a. m. Thursday after a 48-hour news blackout, but the Rome radio declared that the British still were keeping sealed a 62-mile stretch in northern syria and the Lebanon coastal area, designating it a military area closed to civilians.

Allies Reported Massing

Rome reported the Allied troop concentrations in Syria In Ankara a British source said the frontier had been closed to guard Allied troop movements from Axis agents. Officers in the border area, however, said the closure might have had some connection with King George VI's visit to North Africa.

The Germans have sent strong reinforcements to the Balkans, said a Stockholm report to Reuters.

The German radio, quoting Swedish correspondents, said military experts in London believed the "probability" of an Allied offensive in the eastern Mediterranean was "ever more imminent," with all the signs "now pointing to a coming Balkan offensive to be ushered in by attempts to conquer Crete and the Dodecanese."

Lid on Greece

The Germans clamped tight the lid on Greece. The Morocco radio reported from Istanbul that machine-gun nests had been constructed every few miles on the Athens-Salonika railway, and that armed patrols constantly guarded the line.

A Budapest broadcast disclosed that for six weeks Yugoslav patriots, men and women, had besieged Gospic, railway center southeast of Fiume, and that the siege was finally broken by Italians using more than 200 bombers and fighters. The guerillas were reported to have used three tanks in their heaviest attack, lasting 13 hours.

The Algiers radio broadcast a warning, which it said came from Allied headquarters in North Africa, to the Italian people that they should move to safer places as "Allied forces have received orders to bomb your war industries and your communication lines which are working for the Axis."

The broadcast, recorded by Reuters, said the Allies "do not want to harm the population."

Moscow, in a Tass dispatch from Geneva, said Marshal Albert Kesselring had been made commander of all Axis air forces in the "southern defensive area," with the general staff of the Italian air force abolished because the Italian force had "displayed utter confusion and helplessness during recent operations in the central Mediterranean and over southern Italy."

Axis nerves were jumpy in Sicily where, according to a Moscow broadcast heard by the Soviet monitor here, the Italians were panic stricken over withdrawal of military stores and food. Only enough was left for the minimum needs of the defenders, the broadcast added.

Germany's gains early in the war, said a Berlin broadcast quoting Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels, enable the Nazis to "look forward with imperturbability to the impending storm from the west."

Hitler Lauds Horthy

A telegram of congratulations from Adolf Hitler went yesterday to Admiral Nicholas Horthy, Hungary's regent, congratulating him on his seventy-fifth birthday, and the German press was filled with articles extolling the leader of the German satellite nation, the Berlin radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

De Gaulle, Giraud May Divide Military Power

By Daniel De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

Algiers, June 18.—Signs of a compromise partitioning French military power among followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Gen. Henri Giraud developed today as the Committee of National Liberation arranged to hold a second plenary session Monday.

In a speech for broadcast to France marking the third anniversary of the Fighting French, General de Gaulle said tonight that union of the French is a reinforcement for the United Nations and a guarantee for cooperation among the Allies today and the building of peace tomorrow."

The newest solution was advanced by "moderates" of the 13-man committee and was reported acceptable in most respects to De Gaulle and Giraud.

As made known in political circles, the plan calls for the appointment of a separate committee of national defense which will include De Gaulle as defense commissioner, Giraud as commander in chief, Jean Monnet as commissioner of armament and supply, Andre Philip as commissioner of interior and resistance in France, and either Gen. Alphonse Georges or Gen. Georges Catroux.

The committee of national defense, under this scheme, would have a subcommittee composed of De Gaulle and the chiefs of staff of the army, navy and air force. This group would undertake the actual work of reorganizing, subject to approval by the full committee.

In his speech De Gaulle said:

"Our country hears the cannon of her liberators approaching. The events of the war have given proof day after day of English heroism, Russian valor and American power."

Earlier in the day, De Gaulle laid a wreath at the tall sculptured monument to the war dead amid the cheers of 30,000 Frenchmen who crowded midtown Algiers.

The enthusiastic cries of De Gaullists far back in the huge throng packing Memorial Square near the waterfront almost drowned out the singing of the Marseillaise which ended the ceremony.

De Gaulle, accompanied by Catroux, acknowledged the plaudits of the crowd by lifting his arms in his own version of the V-for-victory sign.

Giraud did not attend, but his chief of security, Admiral Muselier, was in charge of police arrangements.

Somes excitable De Gaullists shouted "clean up," and "dismiss Giraud."

R.A.F. Cycle Gives Europe No Respite

By International News Service

London, June 18.—Giant four-engined R. A. F. bombers were reported to have roared over England's southeast coast in great strength late today for new blows against the continent in the wake of a heavy assault last night on the Nazi-held Poik airfield, near Amiens, France.

The fleet of bombers headed for France soon after R. A. F. Mustangs returned from a morning sweep of enemy waters off the Dutch coast during which five armed trawlers were damaged.

Indicating that the bombers drove deep into the continent, the Deutschlandsender, principal station in the Berlin area, went off the air for a short period.

A hint that Berlin was bombed Thursday night was given in Rome and Stockholm reports. The Rome radio said Berlin had an air-raid alert, and added that no casualties or damage were suffered.

German hit-and-run raiders during the night attacked a town on the south coast of England, identified by Berlin as Portsmouth. One bomb hit a postoffice and American and British soldiers fought to save the mail bags as the building went up in flames. Several soldiers were hurt.

Coast Guard Cutter Sunk

boatswain's mates, second class. The next of kin of those lost have been notified.

The Escanaba was operating with other ships on convoy duty, but neither the two survivors nor nearby ships have any idea what happened to the ship.

Officers here said the explosion could have been caused by the vessel hitting a mine, being torpedoed by a submerged submarine, or by the explosion of her own magazines due to internal causes.

"Observers aboard the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Storis, the vessel nearest the Escanaba, said a large cloud of smoke and flame billowed upward and the cutter sank, leaving only small bits of wreckage afloat," the Navy reported. "The ship sank so quickly it had no time to send out signals."

Skipper Was Radio Expert

The two survivors were picked up by the United States Coast Guard cutter Raritan, also in the convoy.

Commander Peterson, skipper of the Escanaba, was an expert in radio engineering, though he had spent much time at sea since his graduation from the Coast Guard Academy in 1930.

His ship was an 11-year-old craft built for ice-breaking work on the Great Lakes. She was armed with two 3-inch guns and two six-pounders.

Earlier in the war, the Escanaba won fame for rescuing 133 men from a torpedoed ship in the North Atlantic. Members of the cutter's crew went overboard into icy waters to fasten lines around the men in the water and then hauled them to safety.

Other Escanaba crew members went out in rubber suits, swimming to liferafts to tow them to the cutter. Still others went to the rescue of men unable to swim in the frozen waters. The rescue operation evoked the highest commendation, for only one man of the 133 rescued died from the exposure as the result of the Coast Guardsmen's quick action.

Loss of the cutter brought to 99 the number of U. S. Navy ships of all types lost thus far in the war.

Japs See Zoot Suiters As War Opponents

New York, June 18 (AP).—Japanese propagandists have their own explanation for recent American "zoot suit" incidents.

In a Tokyo broadcast reported today to the Office of War Information, a Japanese commentator declared:

"The American zoot-suiters are isolationists and antiwar fighters. They are strong, courageous young men who have banded together into a nation-wide army to express by physical force their disapproval of the war."

New German Plane 'Hot Stuff'

A German plane that flies at the terrific speed of 6 miles a minute and fires shells at the rate of 10 per second was responsible for knocking 26 U. S. Flying Fortresses out of the air over Kiel and Bremen on unlucky June 13.

This is the latest type of Messerschmitt fighter, known as the 109 G-2. Air Forces experts admit it is "hot stuff," and that it is causing casualties when big formations of Flying Fortresses penetrate German skies without fighter protection.

The German fighters are not better than the American Lightnings or Thunderbolts, or than British Spitfire, but American and British fighters can't be there to carry out the comparison. When U. S. bombers make their daylight raids on the Continent they penetrate farther than fighter planes, with limited range, can fly.

Thus the bombers must depend on their own guns and their own armor. They fly at 225 to 250 miles an hour, compared with 350 to 390 made by the German fighters.

The Nazi gun which is doing most of the damage is a 20-mm cannon which fires at the rate of 700 shells per minute. (But it can fire for only a few seconds at a time, then must stop to cool off).

Need Long-Range Fighters

Both the Messerschmitt and the Focke-Wulf fighters are reported to have been improved this spring over the models which gave U. S. airmen plenty of trouble last fall. The Focke-Wulf is believed to have a speed of 390 m. p. h. and carries four cannons and two machine guns, while the Messerschmitt has also been brought up to the 390 speed with similar armament.

Airmen who are planning the big show over the continent this summer insist that the loss of 26 bombers in a single day is not alarming, in view of the results. These results are: (1) Destruction of industrial targets; (2) destruction of German aircraft; (3) withdrawal of German planes from other fronts, especially the Russian front, for the defense of the west.

It does not follow, however, that U. S. raids will continue to be as costly as the one over Keil on the unlucky day of June 13. Obvious answer to these losses is the long range fighter urged upon the Air Corps several years ago by Major de Seversky, who was soundly rebuffed by the brass-hats.

Perhaps now, eight years after Seversky urged it, a long range fighter may be developed to accompany bombers and ward off Germany's deadly new fighter plane.

White House Grass

Many a household argument has developed over whether it's necessary to remove the grass cuttings after mowing the lawn—either by catching the cuttings in a carrier or by raking the lawn afterward.

Here is the answer of William Reeves, White House gardener:

The best system is to keep the grass short by cutting it at least once a week. Then you won't have to rake up the clippings. But if the grass gets too tall, the cuttings will lie there and "burn out" the lawn.

Gardener Reeves explains that as grass grows tall it becomes tender, and, after a cutting, the hot sun burns it up.

You can save a lot of raking or hard pushing if you will set the lawnmower blades high—about 1¾ or 2 inches from the bed knife to the surface of the ground—and cut the lawn at least once a week. Then the grass cuttings can be allowed to lie without interfering with the growth of the lawn. In fact, they will form a mulch or fertilizer. But if the cuttings are long enough to lie on top and turn brown, then they should be raked off.

As for the White House lawn, Gardener Reeves admits that the wet weather has brought up a crop of weeds which his short-handed staff can't cope with. "We haven't quite enough help," he says, "to keep the lawn as we would like to. But in wartime, I suppose you have to sacrifice looks a little bit."

Production Shortcomings

The Senate War Mobilization Committee, headed by Senator Harley M. Kilgore of West Virginia, will take a hefty, indirect wallop at John L. Lewis in a forthcoming report on war production problems. While not mentioning Lewis by name, the committee will state in connection with the mine walkouts:

"Deliberate retarding or restricting of production by anyone during wartime is treason."

However, the committee will not confine its fire to Lewis. It will also criticize the War Labor Board for "administrative fumbling" in the coal crisis.

The blunt rebuke of Lewis is significant because New Deal Senator Kilgore is one of labor's truest friends in Congress.

The Kilgore report will also urge that all of American labor not be brought to account for the actions of one leader, will declare that "the renewed drive for manpower compulsion can only contribute to further deterioration of the home front," and will warn that, despite the enthusiastic comments of Assistant President Byrnes on the volume of war production, "we still are not producing to the limits of our capacity."

The report will add:

"We have cut back or failed to meet original production goals again and again because of a crying lack of policy, programming and organization to achieve all-out production. This deplorable situation applies, for example, to the escort vessel, high-octane gas, rubber and airplane programs."

"While our Army and Allies clamor for more production, huge stocks of war materials lie in warehouses, factories and depots throughout the Nation. Mocking our shortages, idle inventories of raw materials are found in many plants."

The committee will urge tighter control of inventories and allocations of raw and semifabricated materials. Also, to offset "dwindling civilian supplies," it will be recommended that these be subjected to a scheduling system, as are military supplies.

Miners Denied Portal Pay; Strike Feared

settle it because we cannot force upon them a settlement of a lawsuit which we have no power to decide."

In the dissenting, the labor members contended that the board had jurisdiction over the "lawsuit" and should have granted the miners a "reasonable" amount of "portal to portal" pay.

However, the labor members made clear that they believed the board's ruling and the no-strike agreement should be inforced—a fact that may become unusually important in the impending showdown struggle, with the board's continued existence depending on its ability to make its ruling stick.

Chairman Davis asserted that the board "has made a final determination" of the soft coal wage dispute.

Issue Cited

Public Member Wayne L. Morse said the existence of the strike threat raised the following issue:

"Whether or not in the midst of a war, the mine workers will abide by the same rules and the same laws which are applicable to all other groups."

"If this issue, involving the supremacy of law, could ever be sacrificed at the altar of expediency or under coercion of power, the damage to the war effort would be much more costly not only to national morale, but also to actual war production, than would be the losses, unthinkable as they are, which would result from a coal strike."

The likelihood that Lewis would reject the board's decision was viewed as affecting presidential action on the Connally-Smith anti-strike bill, perhaps outweighing arguments advanced by the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. in favor of a veto.

No comment was obtainable from Lewis, who was believed studying the decision in consultation with lieutenants.

Davis asserted that miners' wages are "up with the higher-paid workers in the war industries," with average weekly earnings of approximately $43 a week, and prospective annual earnings of $2150 for 1943.

"It is obvious," Davis said, "that if the War Labor Board approved any general wage increase under these circumstances, it would fly in the face of decision after decision in which we have had to limit the wage increases allowed to the wage earners in most of the great war industries of the country.

"It would mean that we would be retreating from the whole wage stabilization policy. . . .

Sees Inflation Threat

"The resulting increase in cost of production could only have the effect to further increase all prices, including particularly farm and food prices, to levels which would nullify the wage increase. It would mean giving up the fight to protect the value of the wage earner's dollar. And so we declined to do it."

The board spelled out the details of a proposed two-year contract including a clause barring strikes for the duration. Existing contracts authorize strikes to maintain the "competitive" position of the various sections of the industry.

The miners received all minor concessions previously ordered by WLB, including a $30 increase in vacation payments to $50 a year and compensation for cap lamp rentals and other occupational charges—amounting in all to about 20 cents a day.

Able-bodied men employed above ground at work normally performed by boys and handicapped workers were given an increase in pay from $5.15 to $6 a day. Davis said "only a few" were affected.

No guaranteed six-day work week was ordered, but the board directed that "all employes at mines working six days per week shall be given a fair and equal opportunity to work on each of such six days," and forbid layoffs for the purpose of denying a worker six days employment a week, except in cases of breakdowns, accidents, and other reasons beyond control of management.

Laborites Urged Raise

Robert J. Watt, A. F. of L. member of the board, told the press conference that the labor members had made two motions that the board grant more money to the miners—one for a payment of $1.30 a day—the amount figuring in a proposed contract between Lewis and the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association which was never signed—and a second proposal for a payment of 80 cents a day on the basis of 48 minutes "travel time," as a "temporary" settlement of the issue pending investigation by a commission of experts.

"We agree," Watt said, reading from the dissenting opinion filed by the labor members, "with the majority of the board in upholding the necessity for honoring the no-strike pledge by all labor, but that does not absolve the board from the necessity to perform its duty and finally determine the issue revolving around just grievances of the miners in this labor dispute."

C. I. O. members of the board made it clear in statements that they had little esteem for the leadership of the United Mine Workers, although they believed that the miners deserved some cash.

Van A. Bittner of the C. I. O. spoke against the possibility that Lewis would seize upon the labor dissent to justify defiance of the WLB.

"The labor members of the National War Labor Board, representing the overwhelming majority of organized labor in America," Bittner said, "are just as firmly convinced that the no-strike pledge we made to the American people, through the President of the United States must be carried out today as it was the day we made it. And further, that since this decision has been rendered by a majority vote of the National War Labor Board, it is our position that that becomes the decision of the National War Labor Board, and, in this instance, the decision of the Government of the United States of America."

Lewis Defiance Cited

John Brophy, also of the C. I. O., made special reference to Lewis' failure to appear before WLB at any stage in its proceedings.

"We believe," Brophy said, "that the issue of pay for travel time should have been resolved by this board in the language of the dissenting opinion, even though the officers of the Mine Workers Union have failed to appear before the War Labor Board.

"I further believe that the failure of the officers of the Mine Workers Union to appear before the board to present the legitimate claims of the mine workers was a disservice to the rank and file of the mine workers.

Another Angle to Portal Pay

One stumbling block before the board was the U. M. W.'s insistence that any "portal-to-portal" payment be averaged over the whole industry.

Such an arrangement, Davis said, "would not, in fact, be a payment for the travel time as such. Now, I would not try to conceal from the press of America the fact that that is just a general wage increase under another name."

George W. Taylor, public member, asserted:

"After deep deliberation, I became convinced that the granting of a general wage increase in this case under any guise—granting it on the basis of this portal-to-portal discussion—would be an excuse that was not merited in logic or in fact.

Morse Concurs

Morse read from his concurring opinion:

"It would be thoroughly dishonest for the War Labor Board in the name of portal-to-portal pay to grant a wage increase for all the miners, including those who travel underground and those who do not . . .

"Such an action would open the floodgates of general wage increases in excess of the wage stabilization policies of the Government, because if the United Mine Workers should succeed in securing such a wage increase from the board, many other unions would attempt, with justification, to adopt the same tactics and demand general increases under one label or another.

"Throughout the history of this case," Morse's opinion continued, "the War Labor Board has taken the position that the same policies, the same rules, and the same procedures, must be applied by the War Labor Board to this case as to all other cases which have come before the board.

"It has followed the principle that it must decide all cases on the theory that this is a Government of one law and one flag, with equal justice to all."

Discussing the strike threat raised by Lewis, Davis asserted:

"Now the right to strike is, of course, an inalienable right. At least, I think it is . . . In peace time, it is a legitimate instrument of collective bargaining. It calls for economic consequences for both the worker and the employer to have a strike.

"It may be a big strike and extend to many employers, but it is a private industry matter in our system of private enterprise.

"Now, when a strike occurs in wartime, it is a very different kind of instrument. It is no longer an instrument of private interest to the employers and workers alone. It is something which vitally affects the national welfare, and in a case like coal, the entire war effort, maybe the destiny of the country.

WLB Accepts Challenge Of Gypsum Co.

The War Labor Board turned from consideration of the coal case long enough yesterday to deal with another case of defiance—this time from an employer.

WLB ordered representatives of the U. S. Gypsum Co. to appear at a public hearing next Thursday to show cause why it should not obey a board maintenance of membership order.

Public Member Frank P. Graham told reporters, "there are on this day, perhaps two challenges to this Nation in time of war, one by a powerful corporation and one by a powerful labor union." Both the Gypsum company and the United Mine Workers challenged the war powers of the President, the national nonstrike agreement and the functions and authority of the War Labor Board, Graham said.

Price Muddle Drives Packers To Close Plants

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 18.—The titanic task of providing meat for the armed forces and civilians encountered fresh problems today.

Five packing plants suspended operations in Ohio. Nine others there and elsewhere previously had stopped their slaughtering or reported they would do so this week. They attributed their decisions to Government price regulations or uncertainty on their part over the Federal meat subsidy program.

A step farther back on the farm-to-table production line, new statistics showed a sharp drop in the number of cattle shipped to markets for sale to the processing firms. From Monday through today only 132,400 salable cattle were received at the 12 major American markets. The total was far under the 161,400 that arrived in a corresponding period last week, and the 179,400 which were delivered in a similar time span one year ago.

The principal reason mentioned for the slump in beef on the hoof was that the farmers didn't like the prices being paid. Sheep receipts were somewhat smaller, but there was a substantial increase in the flow of hogs to the sales centers.

While cattle shipments were falling off in the middle of the week, meat subsidy rates, ranging from 0.95 cents to 1.08 cents a pound live weight, were announced by the Defense Supplies Corp.—the Federal agency which will finance the payments to packers to compensate them for a 10 per cent rollback in retail prices. The subsidy is intended to be passed back to livestock producers.

However, virtually all beef, veal and lamb packing plants in the greater Cincinnati area were closed, or in the process of closing, today, and officials stated they could not operate under Government price ceiling regulations.

Nine plants there suspended work this week. President Arthur Rehn of the William G. Rehn Sons Co. commented:

"We stopped slaughtering yesterday and will not reopen until given Federal aid. We have lost $45,000 in the last six weeks. Beef has been costing us about 27 cents a pound and we sell at 22."

At Fremont, Nebr., approximately 30 Nebraska and Iowa livestock feeders threatened a "pork, beef and lamb strike" unless the Government revokes its rollback and subsidy programs.

Smith Probes OPA Report Terminology

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

The fine distinctions in an OPA official's terminology between the "roll-back," the "let-down" and the "knock-down" as outlined in a memorandum entitled "First Thoughts on the Knock-Down" were the subject of searching inquiry yesterday by the Smith Committee which is investigating the legality of OPA activities.

In a memorandum sent by Clair Wilcox, director of the Industrial Materials Price Division of OPA, to J. K. Galbraith, former deputy OPA administrator in charge of price control, it was stated that the "knock-down" might be followed by a "drag-out" if contemplated price actions were appealed to the courts.

Matter of "Squeeze"

As explained in the memorandum, prices are said to be "rolled back" when a "squeeze" on distributors' margins necessitates a reduction in costs. Prices are "let down," in the absence of a "squeeze," when an industry voluntarily follows OPA suggestions.

"Prices are knocked down," the memorandum said, "in the absence of any squeeze and in the face of opposition from industry, when the existence of large profits leads to the issuance of an order reducing profits below those obtaining in the base period specified by the statute, or at any time in recent years, or at any time whatever."

Wilcox, a professor of economics on leave from Swarthmore College, was questioned as to whether the "knockdown" did not mean in effect a lowering of prices to reduce profits in cases where there had been no rise in prices since the beginning of the war. Wilcox denied that the prices were knocked down primarily to reduce profits. He said prices were knocked down when they were generally unfair and inequitable.

Rayon Order Questioned

Members of the committee questoined OPA officials on the recent rayon hosiery order to determine whether it was price or profit contral, rollback, letdown or knockdown the OPA had planned in its order.

Henry M. Hart, jr., associate general counsel for OPA, said that in the case of rayon hosiery an attempt was made to determine direct and overhead costs and determine average profits, which produced the figure of 4.06 per cent profit.

Representative Smith (Democrat) of Virginia, committee chairman, interjected that in the rayon hosiery case particularly "it is pretty difficult not to come to the conclusion that profit control rather than price control was the object of OPA."

Questioned at Length

Donald H. Wallace, who has succeeded Galbraith as acting deputy administrator of OPA in charge of prices, was questioned at length by the committee on the results of OPA's reduction of profits to reduce prices.

Wallace admitted that the initial effect of such reduction is to contribute to inflation by putting more money in the hands of consumers. He also said that such profit reductions reduce the amount of taxes received by the Government.

He maintained, however, that the net result of such profit reductions to lower prices is to contribute to economic stabilization by preventing a rise in the cost of living, and keeping down demands for wage increase to meet rising costs.

Asked if OPA's actions in reducing profits were not dependent upon actions of the War Labor Board, Wallace said that in general wage increases had an "inflationary tendency" and that all OPA's price control was dependent upon actions of other Government agencies.

The session was marked by a vigorous protest by Hart at the release of an interoffice memo yesterday which said that President's Executive Order No. 9230 was a "mandate to reduce profits to the lowest level to which they may legally be reduced." (The executive order was the one in which a $25,000 ceiling was put on salaries, an act repudiated by Congress.)

Hart said the memo was never approved or officially adopted, but was one of three or four prepared by former OPA attorney, Henry Reuss, "to show the direction of our thinking."

Smith asserted: "That's just what we are getting at. We are interested in who down there in OPA entertains the philosophy that the job of OPA is to control profits." Smith asked for the personnel file of Reuss, a Milwaukee lawyer, who has recently gone into the Army.

To Hart's objection that such interoffice memos should be kept confidential, Representative Bennett (Republican) of Michigan commented: "You are discussing public business, aren't you? Business and policies of concern to every citizen?"

House Votes Ban on Food Subsidy, Cuts OPA Budget will be hit by rising prices unless living costs can be held down by the rollback machinery.

Leaders Caught Off-Guard

The Administration was caught completely off-guard by the revolt just as it appeared to be converting Congressional Banking committees to at least limited use of subsidies to prevent an upward spiral of both prices and wages.

Leaders had not expected a subsidy showdown until next week, when the Commodity Credit Corp. loan bill was slated to hit the floor with another subsidy ban. They were well prepared for that test, and compromise amendments already were under study. These plans were knocked into a cocked hat by the Dirksen rider forcing subsidies to an immediate vote.

Through a parliamentary slip the subsidy ban never went to a record vote. When Approriations Chairman Clarence Cannon made an eleventh-hour request for a roll call vote, the chair consulted the journal and ruled the amendment already had been approved. One slim possibility remained that vote may be reconsidered. The House today could move to "correct" the journal, and force a roll-call test of the amendment.

Ironically, the only record House subsidy vote came on the comparatively innocent Sauthoff amendment which prohibited price rollbacks on luxuries and below parity foods. After the Dirksen subsidy knockout, the Sauthoff amendment was an unnecessary appendage to the bill.

So sweeping was the Dirksen restriction, that Representative Wright Patman (Democrat) of Texas, told the House that it not only would wipe out the food rollbacks, but end transportation subsidies as well on oil and fuel moving to the East, and on mining of war-needed copper and other strategic metals.

Patman, former No. 1 House inflationist, warned against a price break-up that might smash all controls. If a price run-away develops, Patman said the time might come when it would take "a bale of printing press money to buy a loaf of bread."

No Loophole Overlooked

Overlooking no subsidy loophole, the Dirksen rider provided:

"That no part of any appropriation contained herein shall be used for the payment of the salary or expense of any person who, directly or indirectly, pays any subsidy of any kind or character whatsoever, or who directs or authorizes the payment of a subsidy, or who participates in the preparation of or calculations for the payment of a subsidy, or who directs any other person to pay or prepare or calculate or supply information for the payment of a subsidy, or any person who directly or indirectly, collaborates with, consults, cooperates with, or directly aids any other Federal agency for the payment or the preparation of a subsidy; or of any person who engages or participates as aforesaid in the preparation, formulation, or carrying out of any plan or scheme involving the purchase of any commodity by the Government for the purposes of its resale at a price lower than that paid by the Government."

Celler's Effort Fails

Representative Celler (Democrat) of New York made a futile attempt to stop the amendment with a point of order but was overruled.

Hardly less disruptive of OPA was the 35-million-dollar cut in the agency's funds, also sponsored by Dirksen. The Budget Bureau had asked $177,335,000 for OPA and the committee already had trimmed this to 165 million dollars before the House slashed it down to 130 million dollars.

Since $59,500,000 of this is earmarked for local boards, another 17 million dollars for payments to banks, and nine million dollars is set aside for printing and binding of ration books, only 44 million dollars would be left for actual OPA administration, or what amounts to a 40 per cent cut.

Dirksen indicted OPA on many counts, charged it with ignoring the will of Congress and declared that its us of subsidies was designed to bring about Government control of industry. Unless activities of the agency were cut, he said, "black markets will spread throughout the country."

Rep. Smith Urges Caution

Surprisingly, Representative Howard Smith (Democrat) of Virginia, one of OPA's outstanding foes in the past, came to its defense. Said Smith: "I don't think we ought to burn this bridge down because we are mad with somebody."

The Virginian said Prentiss Brown was doing his best to improve the agency, that to cut OPA would only hinder his efforts and bring down on Congress the blame for any collapse. Smith said inflation possibilities are "so dangerous, we can't afford to take chances."

Climax of a Republican drive to force a complete OPA reorganization was the third Dirksen amendment requiring OPA price officials to have five years experience in any business for which they were prescribing price regulations.

Reminders that Brown already has shaken down the agency and ousted many of his former top aides failed to stem the Republican attack on the so-called "long-haired professors."

Into the bill went the amendment, over a warning by Chairman Cannon that a vote for such wholesale reorganization was a vote against any price control whatever.

Inquired Representative Creal (Democrat) of Kentucky: "How many legislators would be here to pass on everybody's business if we had to meet that qualification?"

Senate Leniency Expected

Only when Representative Curtis (Republican) of Nebraska, offered an amendment which would patently junk all hope of price control did the OPA raid subside. Curtis asked a flat prohibition on any program which would reduce food production or processing. His amendment was shouted down.

When the House finally passed the battered war agency bill at 8:45 p. m., leaders took stock of the damage and expressed private belief that much of the OPA damage would be repaired in the Senate. To a large number of Democratic absences, and an almost solid House turnout of Republicans, they attributed the crushing series of defeats.

Nor was the House field day on subsidies over. In the record 71 billion dollar War Department bill reported yesteday and scheduled for House action today, the House Appropriations Committee had attached another blanket anti-subsidy rider.

Taft Is More Moderate

It provided: "That none of the funds appropriated in this act shall be used for the payment of any subsidy on agricultural or other products produced in the continental United States."

Members of the committee said evidence was presented to the the committee that the War Department had considered using Army funds to pay the cost of subsidies on goods purchased by the Army.

While the House romped roughshod over subsidies, Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio, proposed in the Senate a much more moderate approach. Taft offered an amendment to the Commodity Credit Corp. loan bill authorizing the RFC to borrow 250 million dollars to subsidize increased production of commodities and for use against price increases. Taft said this would permit continuation of the present rollback of coffee, meat and butter prices for at least six months.

Divided Authority May Wreck Food Program, Davis Says

threat of a reduced output of farm crops this year.

Under the present setup, many agencies have important policy-making powers in the food field. They include the War Food Administration (WFA), the Office of Price Administration (OPA), the War Manpower Commission (WMC), the Office of Economic Stabilization (OES) and the Office of War Mobilization (OWM), as well as President Roosevelt himself.

[For the second successive day, the House Agriculture Committee yesterday postponed action on a bill shifting "czarist" food powers to War Food Administrator Chester Davis after War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes personally testified against the move.

Warning Reported

[Byrnes was reported to have warned the House group that if independent powers were granted Davis, other agencies, such as the War Labor Board, may demand and receive authority to go ahead independently of over-all stabilization controls.

[At least four members of the committee, who formerly supported shift of OPA food powers from Prentiss Brown to Davis, were reported to have joined the opposition. Speaker Sam Rayburn, meanwhile, was reported to be taking a personal hand in persuading House members to oppose the "czar" bill. Chairman Fulmer of the House Agriculture Committee conceded to reporters that he was losing committee votes, but predicted nonetheless that his committee will report the bill next week. Editor's Note.]

Davis was described as feeling that the authority to determine over-all food policies—including price policies—should be vested in one central agency, and preferably in an agency charged in the public view with the responsibility of solving food problems.

That agency, in Davis' view, need not necessarily be the War Food Administration. It could be, aides said, some such agency as the Office of Economic Stabilization or the Office of War Mobilization, so long as there was centralized authority. Sources close to Davis said that he has no personal ambition for greater power or for centralization of other agencies under his control.

Suggestion Turned Down

President Roosevelt this week turned down a suggestion of a number of members of Congress that all Government food authority be vested in a single agency, preferably the War Food Administration.

Reports have been circulated that Davis has threatened to resign unless the situation is changed soon. This was denied by associates. The latter expressed the view, however, that Davis would resign rather than stay on indefinitely under the present situation to bear responsibility for any public dissatisfaction which might result.

Protecting Children

When war demands the services of both men and women and in some instances of children as well, the Government acquires a special obligation to see that young lives are not warped by reason of that fact. Senator O'Mahoney, chairman of the Subcommittee on District Appropriations, has clearly recognized this obligation by instructing the local Commissioners to prepare increased estimates to insure proper care of the District's 2000 dependent children in foster homes. It would indeed be an unwise economy to skimp on juvenile care in a period when the influences of the home are so seriously weakened and delinquency is increasing so rapidly.

Nor is it sufficient to approach this problem solely from the local viewpoint. A much heavier burden has been thrown upon the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor. Reports indicate an increase of 123 per cent last year in the number of establishments violating the child-labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act, which this bureau administers, and 132 per cent more children were found to be illegally employed. Approximately two million youngsters from 14 to 17 are said to be at work this year—twice the number who held jobs in 1941. Many of the jobs they are taking are detrimental to their health, welfare and education. Yet the House of Representatives has reduced by $53,000 the already meager fund recommended for administration of child-labor regulations in the next fiscal year. Unless the Senate acts to restore this fund, the bureau will have to tackle its greatly enlarged problem with a budget 28 per cent smaller than it had at the beginning of the war.

The House also trimmed $28,000 from the fund for administration of the maternal and child-welfare programs, while adding to the bureau's duties in this field. Next year it must supervise the distribution of four million dollars for the care of servicemen's infants and wives. How can it meet this additional responsibility with a sharp reduction in its staff? This is no time to be risking still greater inroads into the health, morals and well-being of the Nation's children. We hope that the Senate will insist on giving ample working funds not only to the District's welfare agencies but also to the Children's Bureau, which sets the pace for enlightened protection of children throughout the Nation.

Manpower Hoarder

If the Federal Government has 300,000 employes with whom it could dispense, as the Byrd Committee on Nonessential Expenditures asserts, something is evidently very wrong with present methods of recruiting Federal employes. That is evidently the conclusion reached by the committee itself, which stresses the shortcomings of the Civil Service Commission and calls upon it to exercise "the vigorous type of leadership which the Nation has the right to expect from its central personnel agency."

According to the Byrd Committee, it is obvious that a "uniform employe classification system has not yet been put into operation by the Civil Service Commission. Investigation has revealed that thousands of employes all through the Federal service doing identical duties have been placed in different classifications and are receiving various salaries for the same work." The Byrd report states that the Civil Service Commission was unable to furnish current information as to the exact number of persons in the service, while replies to inquiries addressed directly to Government agencies showed serious errors and discrepancies. The commission is also sharply criticized for having permitted other Federal agencies to usurp its functions as a recruiting agency, and taken to task for approving "skip-grade" promotions instituted widely by executive agencies.

There is no indication in the report of the way in which the Byrd Committee arrived at its recommendation for a reduction of 300,000 in personnel. Consequently it is impossible to judge the feasibility of such a sharp cut. However, evidence in regard to slipshod recruiting methods, as well as duplication and overlapping of functions, strongly supports the conclusion that the Government services are grossly overstaffed. Of course, the extent of that overstaffing cannot be measured by numbers alone; it is quite possible that some seemingly overstaffed agencies are actually suffering from a shortage of manpower owing to inability to obtain trained employes. It is common knowledge that a vast amount of time is lost because of the mistakes and inexperience of green workers. It is also common knowledge that many Government agencies have tried to establish their own recruitment systems because they were not able to obtain qualified employes from the eligible lists of the Civil Service Commission.

Practically all the recommendations of the Byrd Committee, apart from the suggested reduction in personnel, are designed to improve the functioning of the Civil Service Commission. The report closes with an injunction that the commission, with the aid of the Bureau of the Budget, take steps to eliminate the evils noted and prevent the "wasteful personnel malpractices prevalent within the Federal service." Otherwise, it adds, "the entire personnel servicing and management functions of the Federal Government should be reorganized." Weighed down as it is, the commission has been given an assignment that it cannot shirk.

Supreme Test

President Roosevelt is about to make one of the most momentous decisions of his long career in the public service. He must veto the Connally-Smith bill or permit it to become law. He must assert the determination of the Government to move forward with the war effort in spite of minority obstructionists, or he must yield to the sophistry of professional labor leaders who would deny the Government the means of dealing effectively with saboteurs on the home front. Only the blind can fail to see that the fate of the Nation will be greatly influenced by the way in which the President meets this test.

It would be idle to pretend that this is not a Gethsemane for the President. The union leaders who are begging for a veto of the so-called antistrike bill are his friends and political associates. Apparently they are applying every known pressure to prevent the Government from asserting its power to carry on the war without further interference from little dictators like John L. Lewis. They are slandering as a "slave-labor bill" a measure which specifically reserves to workingmen their right to work or to leave their jobs, even in wartime. They are threatening to withdraw from the War Labor Board if the bill becomes law. No President who has stood for the cause of labor as stanchly as has Mr. Roosevelt could be unimpressed by this importuning.

But the clamor of organized labor for a veto is not the only stir in the land resulting from passage of this bill to suppress uprisings against the authority of the Government to carry on the war. The voice of the people is also being heard. Millions of workingmen who are making airplanes, tanks, munitions, clothing and other equipment for the armed forces are sick of the treasonable conduct of John L. Lewis and his ilk. They are crying out to their Government to end this cat-and-mouse game with obstructionists who lay greater store upon raises of $2 a day than upon the blood of American boys fighting in Europe and Asia. With firm determination to win the war and only contempt for those who try to provoke industrial war on our own home front, they are looking to the President to prove that he is leader of the Nation and not of any one faction.

In their foxholes, at their gun stations on land, sea and in the air, several million American men in uniform are also waiting to see whether the President will let them down. These men cannot understand why any group that is safe at home, holding good jobs at high wages, should slow down war production by going on strike. And as for a traitor who would lead an industrial revolt to prevent operation of a plant or mine which the Government has been forced to take over, a mere fine or jail sentence such as the Connally-Smith bill provides seems much less than he deserves. The men at the front know that they will be helpless unless the Government keeps a constant stream of weapons and supplies flowing to them, and that these supplies cannot possibly be forthcoming unless coal is mined, steel is made, and finished products are turned out from thousands of plants. So it is not surprising that the mere thought of leaving the operation of our military machinery at home at the mercy of ruthless fanatics of the John Lewis type is incomprehensible to them.

In short, these men in soiled and often bloody uniforms expect their Commander in Chief to do his duty with the same selfless devotion to the national welfare that he asks of them. They expect their Commander in Chief not only to accept the weapon Congress has given him against obstructionists but also to use it whenever the authority of the Government to carry on the war is challenged. These men will be heartened by the courageous decision of the War Labor Board in the coal case. But that gain and much more would be lost if the President should yield to the tornado of propaganda designed to keep the Government weak and helpless in facing the demands and the threats of reckless labor minorities.

It is true, of course, that the WLB may have to be revamped as a result of the Connally-Smith bill. Heretofore it has been an instrument of the White House in carrying out the agreement between labor, employers and the President. With the Connally-Smith bill on the books, it will become a statutory body that ought to represent the public rather than special interest groups. Basically that is an argument in favor of the bill.

More important than anything else, however, is this bill's assertion of governmental power to fight the war to a successful close regardless of minority obstruction. For the President to throw down that principle would be nothing short of a calamity. We do not believe that he will do so. We believe that his sense of responsibility to the men and women who are fighting and working to bring this war to a successful close will guide him to the right decision. It is true that he needs the strength of Hercules. But the loyal devotion of millions of Americans who expect the Commander in Chief to do his duty regardless of how painful it may be can and will give him that strength if he leads the way.

Elk Hills

Secretary Knox has acted promptly to cancel the Navy's contract with the Standard Oil of California for exclusive operation of the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve. His action came on the heels of an opinion by Assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell holding the contract to be illegal and invalid. This opinion throws no light on the fairness of the contract per se. Concerning that moot question, sharp differences of opinion have been expressed. A spokesman for Standard Oil declares the agreement to be fundamentally fair to both parties. He says further that the contract was proposed by the Navy Department and was "designed to consolidate the area under Navy control in the interest of conservation and to insure perpetuation of the area as a naval reserve in the public interest." On the other hand, Representative Voorhis expresses strong opposition to the monopoly feature of the contract and further asserts that under the terms of the contract the Navy could obtain no oil from its own reserve except by selling it to the Standard and then repurchasing it. And this situation, he charges, would have held not for merely five years but for the "future life of the oil field."

It is impossible for an outsider to judge whether the Standard or the Navy got the better end of the deal. In any case the question does not now require an answer, since the Department of Justice has expressed the opinion that the contract is illegal and the Navy Department has decided to cancel it. The most puzzling aspect of the affair is that the Department of Justice was not consulted months ago when the contract was pending. To be sure, the Department of Justice would be swamped if every contract between the Government and private enterprise were to be submitted for its approval. Nevertheless the Navy Department displayed very poor judgment in negotiating the important Elk Hills contract without first getting an authoritative opinion as to its legality. The mere fact that the agreement was made with a company that has been so often a storm center of controversy ought to have caused the Navy to watch its step.

Italy On The Eve

What has happened in the central Mediterranean recently is enough warrant for the warning issued to the Italian people by their press and radio to be ready for an imminent invasion. To be sure, Sicily may hold out for some time, and an Allied landing on the peninsula itself may therefore have to be postponed. Sicily is many times larger than Pantelleria and is believed to be garrisoned by seven, and possibly eight, divisions. But the fury of the present Allied assault on the largest of the Italian islands suggests that Sicily's fate may be sealed much sooner than is generally expected. Much, of course, will depend on Italian morale.

According to the Rome radio, "every Italian is ready to fight and fight until final victory is won." But the report made by the Fascist directorate, which concluded a three-day session on Monday, does not quite jibe with this claim. The Blackshirt leaders vehemently assert the necessity of ruthlessly repressing "all attempts against the Italian people's morale and material resistance to the enemy," thus making it clear that this resistance has been weakening. They demand strong measures to enforce discipline in industrial production, indicating that laxity and lack of discipline obtain. The other points in their manifesto also show, indirectly but clearly, the inefficiency, corruption and war-weariness which exist in Italy. The remedy that the Fascist directorate proposes is that the party militia be given the "immense honor" of "assuming the entire responsibility for the defense of the country."

It remains to be seen whether the brave postures of the Blackshirt hierarchy at this juncture will be expressed in deeds. We rather doubt it. The seeds of corruption and decay have long been present in Fascist Italy. Watered by a heavy rain of Allied bombs, they should blossom rapidly.

DEEP TIDE

Change it is,
And strange it is,
Sweet water green and salt,
To find at flood in time's bay
A tide that sunders love away;
And the heart at halt.

Then No is good
And slow is good;
But another love to build.

And who that heard those waters pour
Built not upon the same deep shore
When storm stilled?

Island love
Or inland love,
The end of it is known.
Better the wind and weather hard,
Or sky soft and night starred,
But danger met alone.

Strange it is
And change it is,
Drag or hurry the blood,
To live against time's ocean side
In a house of sand near ebb tide,
And expect flood.

Chilean Crisis

WHILE THE army revolt and the new Ramirez regime are holding the spotlight on Argentina, Chile is going through a political crisis of significance. Starting with a cabinet change, it has come to be a test of strength for the Rios administration.

The cabinet change was indirectly precipitated last week by President Rios' planned visit to the United States. It was not opposition to this visit that caused it, but opposition to Minister of the Interior Raul Morales, who would have been Acting President in Rios absence. Influential sectors of the Radical Party did not like Morales and objected to his exercising executive powers even temporarily. But the real issue involved goes much deeper than this.

It resolves finally to a question of stability for the Rios government.

Even the Radicals

Chile has a number of political parties, and even the Radicals, who represent a large sector of public opinion and who elected Rios, do not exercise a firm national control. The party is, moreover, divided up by cliques. Every Chilean cabinet is therefore in a sense a coalition cabinet. The line-up changes often and there are frequent cabinet resignations.

There have already been a half dozen or so of these cabinet changes since Rios came to office, and while the country has rocked along, obviously a government founded on such shifting sands cannot buckle down to the kind of administration needed in emergency times. President Rios, several weeks ago, issued a warning that politicians would have to forgo their traditional pleasures of petty dissension in favor of national unity to face world conditions—and he expressed this with some impatience.

When Radical leaders ignored this and pulled down his cabinet once more last week, Rios took more positive action. He did this in by-passing all the politicos when he came to fill the important post of Minister of the Interior. This disputed portfolio went to Vice Admiral Julio Allard.

Rios' apparent shift toward the military for support, coming as it did just after the Argentine army coup, made some observers wonder what might lie in store for Chile's democratic processes. Taken as a straw in the wind, it caused some uneasiness.

Uneasiness

Developments seem to argue that this uneasiness is unwarranted. In the first place, Admiral Allard is known to be without political ambitions for himself or for any military clique. Secondly, President Rios has made it plain that the point he is trying to make is one of stability for a government that must meet extraordinary tasks. Since this is so, his action can be taken as a warning more definite than words, but not the beginning of a trend.

The reaction among Chilean political leaders bolsters belief that he will not go any further. The Radicals have elected a new party president and are trying to lead a parade of liberal parties and party fragments toward a nation-wide coalition. This would affirm support for Rios and make it entirely unnecessary for him to fall back on the military.

Rios' handling of the situation so far has been realistic and if, as it seems, he has put up an effective stop sign to domestic political squabbling and forced political leaders toward unity, it will be a distinct step forward for the nation. For war has imposed on Chile difficulties that she will need unity to meet.

The fact is that Chile has had a bad time of it economically for over 10 years now and that she has a tough problem today. For half a century the country was developed to export minerals, mostly nitrates and copper. In the 1930-32 crash Chile took a terrific beating. In 1932 she sold only 13 per cent of 1929's exports. The country has been trying to diversify production for export and has had some success, but the fight back has been long and slow.

The great hindrance in this comeback has been lack of capital to make national improvements, roads, dams, etc., and to begin new enterprises that would relieve dependence on mineral exports. Since we got into the war, Chile's ores are in great demand and money has flooded in. But machinery and supplies are short now and Chile's development is stopped again.

The country had few stocks when war broke. Risi..g demand and short supply have created inflation pressures, which in turn cause political unrest.

Chile, however, is by no means alone in this. Every New World nation is faced with a similar problem, which will get worse before it gets better. It is as much a war job for them to hold down inflation as is getting out war ores.

The Chilean nation has a remarkable record of endurance through economic adversity, and they always come out with their democracy intact. As they rally politically to meet new problems there is every reason to trust that this tradition will see them through.

Hitler's Allies

Germany: Prisoner Of The Axis

THE GROWING MIGHT of the Allies along the outer rim of Axis Europe is paralleled by the mounting alarm inside the so-called Fortress. It is now Germany and her partners who are on the receiving end of the war of nerves.

In whichever direction the Nazis look they find the horizon cloud-covered and threatening. In the east is Russia with its great army ready to take the offensive at the first sign of German faltering. In the west is Britain whence comes almost nightly great fleets of bombers that are reducing the cities of the Ruhr and Rhineland to rubble. In the south, Anglo-American land, sea and air forces, flushed with victory, are poised for new ventures.

It certainly does not contribute to the peace of mind of the Nazis that the Allies are now in a position to invade the continent at one or many points along a great arc stretching from northern Norway to the Aegean.

BUT THAT IS not all. An Allied invasion of Europe is not the only possibility the Third Reich must prepare against. It must be on guard against disintegration from within as well as attack from without.

This does not mean that Germany herself is on the verge of collapse or anything like it. Despite the legend which the German militarists sedulously propagated after the last war in an effort to hide their own failure, the German home front did not collapse in 1918 until after the German armies had been beaten in the field. The same thing is likely to happen this time. But what is true of Germany is not necessarily true of the Axis as a whole.

IN ITS INCEPTION the Axis was a combination held together by the promise of an easy victory and the belief in German invincibility.

That is no longer true. The hope of victory has disappeared and the belief in German invincibility has been destroyed beyond repair. Today the Axis is a prison camp in which the jailers are indistinguishable from the jailed.

Italy, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Finland are prisoners of the Reich. But Germany, in turn, is now the prisoner of the Axis. Every one of the satellite states would undoubtedly like to get out of the war if they could. None enjoys any freedom of action. On the other hand, Hitler is more dependent on them now that they are weak, war-weary and rebellious than he was when they were in a position to and did make real contributions to the war effort of the Axis. If Germany loses them now she will herself be lost.

TAKE THE CASE of Rumania, for instance. According to rumors that have reached Turkey, the Rumanian government is ready to make a deal with the Allies.

These rumors have not been confirmed. But true or not it is certain the Allies would make no deal with Rumania except on the basis of unconditional surrender while Hitler, we can be sure, would use force, if necessary, to prevent Rumania from getting out of the war on whatever terms.

The loss of Rumania would mean the loss to Germany of Rumania's indispensable oil wells and refineries, the loss of the Danubian life line, the loss of the Balkans and, probably, the loss of Odessa. In fact, with bases on Rumanian soil Allied air power would put the German armies on the Eastern Front in a vise.

So we can take it for granted that Hitler will leave no stone unturned in keeping Rumania an active, or at least, a passive ally.

THIS MEANS that an indispensable minimum of force must be kept in reserve by Hitler in the event that Rumanian war-weariness and rebelliousness reach the danger point and the Nazis find it necessary to move in.

Since, to a greater or lesser degree, what is true of Rumania is also true of Hungary and Bulgaria and Finland and Italy, this means the permanent immobilization of part of Germany's diminishing strength.

In other words, while more and more troops are required to guard the walls of the Fortress, more and more troops, German troops in particular, are also required to guard the non-German part of the garrison.

THIS MAY BE one reason, although probably not the only reason, for the curious delay in the expected German offensive on the Eastern Front.

Last winter was one of the mildest Russia has experienced in many years. For that reason it would have been possible for Hitler, other things being equal, to have begun his annual spring offensive in Russia this year earlier than he did a year ago.

He has not done so. The end of the third week of June finds the relative stalemate on the Eastern Front still unbroken and, indeed, with the Germans now broadcasting the belief that it will not be the Wehrmacht but the Red Army which will take the offensive this summer.

This may be merely a Goebbelsian way of throwing dust in Allied eyes. The possibility of a German offensive cannot yet be ruled out if only because Hitler is under very strong compulsions to launch it. But there is a possibility that the combination of Allied power along the periphery of Europe and growing disaffection inside the Fortress may have compelled Hitler to change his plans. In any case, the Axis satellites deserve very close watching at this time.

Soldier On Strikes

Today I witnessed a Memorial Day ceremony at a cemetery, somewhere in Africa. These men will march no more, their banterings will no longer fall on friendly ears. These are the true Americans, asking for the chance to fight for what they believe worth while giving their lives for.

We read of strikes back home. Living costs are too high. What on God's green earth is more important than the privilege of being able to live the American way? Can you measure this privilege in dollars and cents, when the lifeblood of Americans runs red?

Certainly, we are an intelligent people. We should have the vision and foresight to put personal differences aside and cooperate with each other.

Do people think we'll throw the gauntlet down, because of a few inconsequential dollars? When the dollar becomes more important than the lifeblood of a nation the people at home are failing in their individual and mass responsibilities.

We don't ask much. We are away from the ones we love; the striker's standard of living is no different than that of our loved ones. Do we complain, lay down our arms, and assume the attitude "We must have more money?" No, we believe in what we are doing and feel it is the most worth-while thing in this world, "Protecting the American way of life."

Analyze your hearts and be honest. Are you meeting your responsibilities? Ponder over the answer and see if you are lacking. I'm certain the picture you will find is not one any man can truly be the least bit proud of.

This is no literary masterpiece, but it is the pulse beat of a great nation's desire and will to win.

Mr. Babson

A few remarks concerning Roger W. Babson's article in The Post:

(1) Mr. Babson says that "Politicians, not intelligent industrialists make sick nations. The politicians of Europe were, in fact, responsible for World War II."

I wonder if Mr. Babson is aware of the fact that the German Nazi Party (which certainly was responsible for this war) has been financed by German big industrialists such as Thyssen and Krupp. Mr. Babson will probably say that these men were "unintelligent" industrialists. But is he sure that all American industrialists and businessmen (whom he wants to entrust with the steering wheel of this country) are "intelligent"? And shouldn't there be, on the other hand, some intelligent people in America who happen not to be in control of industrial interests, but who nevertheless have the qualifications required for good leadership?

(2) Mr. Babson wants the servicemen to run this country after the war.

Does he realize that this very slogan was the one under which fascism was originally promoted in democratic Italy?

Canadian Answer

A letter in yesterday morning's Post, headed, "A Canadian Tribute," written by a lady in B. C. Canada, was not a Canadian tribute, as it evidently was from an American lady living in Canada. The fact that she referred to American troops as "our boys" shows that, as Canada has had its own boys in the war ever since war began, and, furthermore, Canadians are foreigners in the U. S., likewise Americans are foreign aliens in Canada. Also she spoke of giving money to the cause, Canadians have their own war bonds for Canadian people to buy, and do not have to send to the United States to buy its war bonds. Would any United States citizen call the Canadian troops "our boys?" Certainly not. Everyone for his own, regardless whether or not they are streamlined heroes.

The Once Over

Birth Of The Zoot Suit

("The first zoot suit on record was ordered in February, 1940, by a bus boy at Friersen-McEvers' in Gainesville, Ga."—News item.)

Friersen and McEvers of Gainesville town,
You're guilty of something you can't live down:
'Twas back in 1940, they say,
That you let a customer have HIS way!

A bus boy came in one afternoon
And ordered a suit that was part balloon,
Part flour bag and part Aesop fable,
To fit a man, a couch or a table.

He made one point regarding it:
"I must be sure it DOESN'T fit!
Make the coat too long by about a yard;
Any other idea you can now discard!"

"Make the pants too loose, yet in spots too tight;
If they fit me good they will NOT be right;
Any pattern you have you can throw away—
Then the suit of mine will come out okay!"

The fitter measured, as fitters do,
When fitting a man for some garments new;
"Multiply by eight and divide by three,"
Said the customer, "if this suit's for me."

He measured well and he measured long,
And the customer said your results are wrong—
"If you follow them then my suit will seem Like a suit of clothes, not a rarebit dream!

"Take the measurements for the coat, and then
Make the pants from those and divide by 10;
From the measurements for the coat you'll make
The only pants I will ever take!"

"But the suit won't fit," said the fitter, blue.
"If it DOES," said the customer, "I will sue!"
"It will look all wrong," the fitter cried.
"If it does," he said, "I'll be satisfied!"

Well, the suit was made, but it took 'em long,
For it isn't easy to make things wrong;
They phoned the man for a fitting, but
His reply to the call was a firm "Tut! Tut!"

"Try it on some fellows around the store,
Two or three fellows and maybe four;
If it should fit any one I'm afraid
It isn't the suit that I ordered made."

So they tried it onto a short, fat man
And three tall, thin ones on the beanpole plan;
It was just as bad on one as the other—
So they called it okay without further bother!

Then the customer had it sent by mail
And put it on in a howling gale;
It was wrongside up, it was inside out . . .
And that's how the Zoot Suit CAME ABOUT!

Huh!

Mr. Morgenthau says that by the end of the year the average family should be putting 25 per cent of its income in War Bonds. It is Howard Smith who cheers the idea but points out some difficulties. Twenty per cent of the income is to be deducted for new income tax; the cost of living is up 20 per cent, and a man is supposed to give 15 per cent to various charities, city funds, Red Cross drives, etc. This totals 80 per cent.

"That leaves 20 per cent for rent, food, clothing, transportation, fuel, light, doctors, hospitals, medicines, education, State taxes, entertainment and maybe cigarettes," says Mr. Smith, exclaiming "Who dat man!"

Idea of Hollywood

Out there the men wear dinner coats,
All conversation's witty;
The sea holds naught but pleasure boats,
And every woman's pretty.

In Hollywood, yes, life is gay,
To all the world I say it.
At least I guess that it's that way,
For that's how films portray it.
—Merrill Chilcote.

Well, the supreme Court's 1943 decision on flag salutes makes it all even. The Court will play off the tie next Flag Day, weather permitting.

It sure is a little depressing to most folks to wake up on National Flag Day and see more consideration being shown for those who won't salute Old Glory than for the millions who regard it as a grand privilege.

"I guess nobody can change opinions like a woman or a Supreme Court Justice," says Elmer Twitchell. "Well, thank God that millions of Americans who don't know a thing about Blackstone know all about Betsy Ross, and never wabble on flag salutes the way the jurists do.

European Angle

Hitler's Fate

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW ironically predicts that Hitler will outlive the defeat of Germany in dignified retirement, holding court in an opulent castle somewhere in Eire. Mr. Emil Ludwig, with grand pathos, presages Hitler's assassination by his own henchmen and conjures the ghosts of German history to bear out this prophecy. There is no arguing with poets and prophets; they feel bound to round out their own vision of Hitler with a fitting end, alternating palace revolution with murder, suicide or death in battle. But to restore moral equilibrium in an outraged world, poetic justice and the satisfactions of vindictivness are not enough. It is important that Hitler's fate should radically invalidate and eradicate all that his name represents; that he be repudiated by the people of Germany themselves. Otherwise Hitler's end might create and perpetuate another dangerous legend stored away in the dark recesses of Teutonic romanticism. Hitler, alive or dead, ought to be tried by his contemporaries, by an international tribunal representative of the world.

Bill of Crimes

Any indictment of Hitler along moral lines, unanswerable as it would be in the face of the bill of his common crimes, could, in Germany, be pleaded away into an apotheosis of "Weltanschauung" and philosophy of the superman. It would provide an outlet for a people guilty of complicity and complacency and Hitler's failure would acquire the nimbus of tragedy. Formalistic casuistry might even deduce from Hitler's "Constitution," which places him above the law, that he is not legally actionable in Germany under criminal procedure. The German trials of war criminals after the first World War should serve as a warning. A special court of the Weimar republic tried only eight out of several hundred and found only two guilty, and they were allowed to escape. Next to the Japanese, the German people is the last in the world from which to expect a gesture of contrition and repentance for the crimes committed against other nations. But on the other hand, it is not unreasonable to predict that after a defeat, from which there will be no resurrection, the German people, looking for scapegoats, will impeach Hitler and his helpers for the irreparable damage he has inflicted upon Germany.

Hitler Impeached

In Germany, Hitler could be impeached for having destroyed the historic federative structure of the Reich under the deceptive guise of a "Third Reich;" for the ruin of German democracy through the fraudulent use of democratic institutions; for the abolition or civil liberties under deceitful pseudo-revolutionary slogans, and for the suppression of the churches under the cloak of a mystic Germanic religion. Hitler could, in Germany, justly be indicted for the utter and final destruction of the German army. After the World War the army was rebuilt, under the eyes and with the connivance of the republic, as the strongest support of the traditional German class structure. The generals used Hitler for the overthrow of the republic. He double-crossed both, the generals and the people, building up a formidable party-army instead of an army of the people; identifying state, army and party, he ruined them all.

Hitler could, in Germany, justly be impeached for the economic ruin of his people. She was never before faced with a genuine raw material problem, but now she will suffer discrimination in the supply of raw material. Nor is Hitler's economic empire in Europe destined to survive. He inherited an expanding system of economic connections and influences, but his methods of open larceny, subtle fraud and ruthless pressure made this system assallable, illegal and invalid.

Whether or not Hitler should live to hear his sentence is immaterial. What matters is that the judgment be rendered.

The Gallup Poll

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 18.—There are millions of Europeans afraid to express their personal opinions today, but the Swedish people cannot be numbered among them.

Through the Swedish Institute of Public Opinion, the people of Sweden are expressing their minds freely on many of the vital issues facing their government as it seeks to steer a neutral course in a war which engulfs most of the world.

Following democratic principles, the Swedish people are not hesitant about criticizing their government. And although Sweden and America are far apart geographically, the people of the two countries are stirred up over the same problem—food.

American housewives who scour the markets in vain these days for meat and butter made scarce by war will be interested to learn that the people of Sweden, which is not at war, single out the handling of their own food situation as the chief fault of their government. And to add to the parallel between the two countries, the second problem which vexes the Swedes is the fuel problem.

When the Swedish Institute asked a cross-section of the population what war agencies, if any, they were dissatisfied with, the replies were:

Food Commission	62%
Fuel Commission	14
Other Agencies	24

As in America, the tax situation is a subject of growing interest in Sweden. The Swedish people are in favor of trying an innovation in the shape of a tax on bachelors. Nearly half of the population (45 per cent), the Swedish poll discloses, believe the government should ease the tax burden on families with many children by introducing a special bachelor's levy.

Sweden has no agency comparable to the OPA here, but judging by the Swedish Institute surveys, the people think it is time for the government to prohibit all further price increases. The vote is 70 per cent in favor of adopting a rigid price control program.

On the political front the Swedish people express great satisfaction over an experiment which went into effect shortly after war broke out in Europe. Up until that time Sweden had had a straight party government. When war came a coalition government was formed, with all except a few minor parties participating.

Today Swedish people with opinions on the subject like the coalition form of government so well that they want to continue it even after the war.

Their attitude, as revealed in the Swedish poll, is as follows:

"Would you prefer a coalition government after the war or straight party government?"

Prefer coalition	42%
Prefer party government	15
Undecided	43

7200 Planes Made In May

Future Rise Seen

By Sterling F. Green

Associated Press Staff Writer

Dropping a bombshell of bad news for the Axis, the War Production Board revealed yesterday that the United States produced nearly 7200 military planes in May.

Even though this means that aircraft makers have stepped up the monthly production rate by 1000 planes in only two months, WPB added that "output will be substantially larger in June."

From there on the production curve will continue a "steady rise," WPB said, until it hits a ceiling imposed by the country's supplies of aluminum, copper and alloy steel.

The news was contained, as if by after thought, in the last paragraph of a WPB news release on appointment of an aircraft aluminum products control committee for the express purpose of stepping up output of aluminum aircraft parts and distributing them equitably.

Total Known for Days

"United States production of combat, transport and trainer aircraft during May reached the unprecedented figure of nearly 7200 planes of all types, with a total air-frame weight of approximately 60,000,000 pounds," the paragraph said in part.

The impressive figure had been obtained by correspondents some days previously from jubilant officials but none of them would consent to be "responsible authority" who would release the figure officially, and this is a prerequisite to publication of military output figures under the voluntary censorship code.

Elmer Davis, when notified of the reluctance of "responsible authorities" at his press conference yesterday, said he thought an important gain in aircraft production "is good news that ought to be published for its effect on the enemy as well as for the effect on our home front."

Bombers Get Attention

The aircraft aluminum committee was directed to pay particular attention to "the needs of the greatly accelerated production of heavy bombers, already far ahead of the goal for this date as laid down two years ago by President Roosevelt."

That sentence appeared to confirm unofficial reports that production of the big four-engined Liberators and Fortresses also had enjoyed a pronounced increase in May, but totals for this type of plane and other individual types were not divulged.

The committee, named by Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, is headed by Arthur H. Bunker, director of WPB's aluminum and magnesium division. It was announced also that the forgings section of the aluminum division will be moved on July 1 from Cleveland to the headquarters of the aircraft scheduling unit at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

Nye to Check On 'Politics' In Oil Deal

By the Associated Press

Senator Nye (Republican) of North Dakota declared yesterday he intends "to find out if there is any political maneuvering" in the now-canceled contract for joint development of the Elk Hills (Calif.) petroleum reserve.

"We owe it to this country to ascertain fully the cause for making this contract," declared Nye, who earlier this week introduced a resolution calling for investigation of the transaction.

The contract was canceled yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Knox after Justice Department officials had declared it "illegal and invalid" under an oil conservation act. Nye said in a statement he believed a congressional committee should visit the Elk Hills site to study conditions there which led to signing the contract.

Chairman Hatch (Democrat) of New Mexico of the Senate Public Lands Committee said he would call a meeting next week to consider Nye's resolution but that decision of his committee would probably depend on actions of the House Public Lands Committee, which has opened an investigation of the Elk Hills contract.

Despite Knox's announcement of the cancellation, Chairman Peterson (Democrat) of Florida of the House committee, said his group will continue its investigation.

"We want to learn all the facts leading up to the signing of the contract," Peterson aserted, "and we feel it necessary that a subcommittee be appointed to visit the reserve and study conditions necessary for conserving its petroleum contents firsthand."

Chiang's Son Joins Methodists

Chungking, June 18 (AP).—Capt. Chiang Wei-kuo, second son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek by his first wife, was baptized yesterday by Bishop Wy Chen, Methodist Bishop of West China and general secretary of the National Christian Council.

The ceremony, a private one, took place in the generalissimo's home. The generalissimo became a Methodist some years ago. Chiang Wei-kuo was one of the officers who conducted Wendell Willkie during his visit to the Yangtze front last year.

Pa. Editor Writes Story About Son's Death in Action

Philadelphia, June 18 (AP).—"This is the toughest story I was ever called upon to write, but it is part of the toll of war and nothing can be done about it."

This note preceded a story received today from Fred Manship, editor of the Coatesville Record and Coatesville correspondent of the Associated Press.

The story:

"Coatesville, Pa., June 17.—Technical Sergt. Fred B. Manship, jr., 19, this city, was fatally wounded in action in the North African area, according to word sent by the War Department to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Manship."

OWI Ordered Off Home Front

lisher of the Portland Oregonian, an Independent Republican paper, slated to come to work Monday.

OWI's domestic branch, among other activities, operates a centralized news bureau in Washington which collects and puts out daily reports on official acts of the war agencies, except for the Army and Navy, for the use of press and radio. Among the agencies for which it is the central information service are the War Production Board, Manpower Commission, Price Administration and Office of Defense Transportation. One of its first jobs was to eliminate conflict and confusion on the information put out by different agencies. It has worked through pamphlets, posters, movies, advertising, besides press and radio, to spread information on the war. Branch offices throughout the country perform similar jobs on the spot for field offices of the various war agencies.

It has been in hot water in Congress for several months because members protested that OWI propaganda had been thrown behind a fourth term for President Roosevelt, a charge repeatedly denied by officials of the agency and its friends in Congress.

1445 Employes Affected

OWI's budget for the current year, according to testimony to the House, called for some 1572 employes in the domestic branch and the agency had asked 1445 for the next 12 months. Of this year's total, nearly 1000 jobs were in Washington. Davis was one of the few agencies already hard-hit by the Appropriation Committee, which trimmed his requests by more than 12 million dollars. The House cut drops him from the $47,342,000 he sought to $28,972,504, with five million of that reserved for "military contingencies."

The House left the funds for foreign propaganda untouched.

Setting the pace for the House decision, Representative Starnes said that it was "an insult to the intelligence of the American people" to have Elmer Davis tell us "why we are at war and how to win," when we have "the most untrammelled and freeest press in the world."

"America needs no Goebbels sitting in Washington to tell the American press what to publish. We need no Virginio Gayda to tell us how we should think and act."

OWI Case Defended

Representative Woodrum (Democrat) of Virginia, said that despite the "impressive and impassioned plea" of Starnes, no informed person had ever suggested that Davis undertakes to control the press.

Representative Celler (Democrat) of New York, came to the defense of Davis and his agency, saying that Starnes' amendment would sabotage the good work being done by the agency.

A freshman member from Pennsylvania, Representative Murphy (Democrat) said that Davis "has the real confidence of the American people," and that the real purpose of the fund cut was to take a "swipe at the commander in chief and his conduct of the war." He said it would do some of the members of the House "an awful lot of good" to read OWI publications.

Some opposition to the OWI domestic branch stemmed from pamphlets it distributed about Negroes and the war. Representative Allen (Democrat) of Louisiana, who wtih Representative Brooks (Democrat), also of Louisiana, had protested the pamphlets to the Appropriations Committee, told the House that the OWI "has done more to hurt the South in this war effort than any other agency." He accused the OWI of glorifying a minority, and raising a racial issue, and he said, "we don't want that, we don't need that, and we're not going to have that."

Earlier in the day the $2,621,000,000 independent offices appropriations bill was approved by the Senate and sent to the White Hoouse in a form restricting expenditures of the National Resources Planning Board (NRPB) to $50,000 in the next year.

This represented a compromise between original action of the House allowing the board no funds and the Senate's vote to appropriate $200,000 for the agency, which is headed by Frederic A. Delano, President Roosevelt's uncle.

Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee said that additional funds might be requested for the agency in subsequent bills, but added that unless new action is taken the work of the board will cease in September.

Home Loan Bank Gets 11 Millions

As finally approved, the bill carries $11,642,200 for salaries and expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Administration, including the Home Owners Loan Corporation (HOLC), liquidation of which had been sought by the House.

A $127,900,000 appropriation bill for Interior Department activities was passed by the Senate and returned to the House yesterday for consideration of a 55-million-dollar increase, which included funds to irrigate arid lands in the West for food production.

Other Senate increases to finance the department's program for the fiscal year beginning July 1, boosted House estimates for the Bureau of Mines $10,032,375; for the Geological Survey, $1,055,085, and for the Bureau of Indian Affairs, $3,227,850.

Senate approval of more than 22 million dollars for development of irrigation projects in California, Washington, Wyoming and other States followed an assertion by War Food Administrator Chester C. Davis that "every possible acre" must be put into production of crops. The Senate amended the bill to permit use of war prisoners for work on water projects.

Radar Helped Attu Landing, General Says

By the Associated Press

Radar — the most publicized secret weapon of the war—aided America's successful landing on Attu in the Aleutians, Congress learned yesterday.

Maj. Gen. Dawson Olmstead of the Signal Corps told the House Appropriations Committee:

"In the Battle of Attu in Alaska, when our forces arrived and wanted to get men ashore in small boats, the weather made visibility so bad that the water could not be seen from the deck of a ship. The ships were berthed and the men landed by the use of Radar."

Radar is a radio device used for detection of ships, planes or other objects obscured from vision. It played a stellar part in the Battle of Britain, by detecting the approach of German planes.

It was by Radar, Olmstead said, that the Japanese planes approaching Pearl Harbor December 7, 1941, were detected while 132 miles off shore. (However, the detection was not officially reported at the time, and the Pearl Harbor debacle followed.)

The officer predicted that "when the war is over Radar is going to save many lives," adding: "a great and new field is opening up, and I do not think that even the scientists realize where it will lead."

War Order Revamping

Both Pro And Con

By the Associated Press

Renegotiation of war contracts was upheld yesterday by Senator McKellar (Democrat) of Tennessee as "the most marvelously successful financial operation of the Government that I know of." The policy was condemned, meanwhile, by a manufacturer who said it removes incentive for increased production.

McKellar told the Senate that renegotiation had saved $2,849,000,000 at an administrative cost of $2,380,000. He said one company holding war contracts would have made a 1942 net profit 178-fold its 1937 earnings had its contracts not been renegotiated. Senator Taft (Republican) of Ohio interrupted at one point to declare 80 per cent of the money saved through renegotiation would be obtained in excess profits taxes anyway. A fellow Ohioan, President James F. Lincoln of Cleveland's Lincoln Electric Co., presented a similar argument to the House Naval Affairs Committee yesterday.

Penalty for Good Job

"If you are going to penalize a man for doing a good job, he is not going to do it," said Lincoln, manufacturer of arc welding machinery. He contended renegotiation has cost the Government many billions "by reduced efficiency" of manufacturers.

Lincoln said his company, which makes arc welding machines, had steadily reduced prices, even during war years and maintained that renegotiation should not be applied to standard commercial products having a general peacetime use, which were made and sold prior to the war at a standard published list price and now are being sold as the same product pursuant to a standard published price list.

He urged that the renegotiation law be amended to make those changes. Lincoln said his company now was "in the process of renegotiation" but had not yet held any conferences with the Navy.

Friendly Negotiation

He agreed with members of the committee that huge, unwarranted war profits should not be allowed but declared he believed that where such profits occur the profit should be reduced by friendly negotiation rather than forcing a reduction through law.

The witness said that while the Navy estimated it had recovered $1,750,000,000 by renegotiation, 90 per cent of it would have been recaptured by taxes and that the saving to the Government actually was only 175 million dollars.

5 Air Missions Win Award For Gen. Lynd

The heroism of Brig. Gen. William E. Lynd as command pilot on five missions against Japanese forces on Attu Island from May 6 to 15 has won for him the air medal, the Alaskan Defense Command announced yesterday.

LYND

General Lynd, whose home is at 6696 Thirty-second Place Northwest, was a few months ago awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his work in sinking two Jap ships in one swoop over an enemy convoy near New Guinea last March.

As a result of the five missions in which General Lynd participated, a Japanese antiaircraft battery was successfully bombed, a well-defended enemy mortar and machine gun position was strafed from an altitude of 100 feet and supplies dropped to forward U. S. patrols. He had volunteered as command pilot of the group of B-24 airplanes which carried out the raids under adverse weather conditions.

The citation announcement declared that the "high type of leadership and aggressive tenacity displayed by General Lynd in the performance of his duty, as well as the gallantry and courage demonstrated, are exemplary of the highest ideals of the United States Army."

General Lynd was born in Santa Fe, Kans., 49 years ago and practiced law in Idaho prior to the last war. He served on the Mexican border with the Idaho National Guard in 1916 and went on overseas duty after the declaration of war.

Yank Bags 2 Jap Zeros For Birthday

By J. Norman Lodge

Associated Press Staff Writer

Guadalcanal, June 14 (Delayed). A birthday present in the form of two Zeros fell to the lot of Lieut. Henry E. Matson of Perry, N. Y., a week ago today on the eve of his twenty-third birthday.

Matson was leading a flight of P-40s on routine patrol over Russell Island when he was notified that numerous enemy craft were in the vicinity.

Five miles east of Buraku Island, he saw 15 Zeros. From here on, this is his narrative:

"My flight dived and passed through the fight, then returned to engage the enemy. On the third pass, I attacked a Zero which burst into flames. Soon I was attacked by another in a head-on pass. He fired at me but my burst started him burning and pieces flew off his planes in all directions.

Planes Collide

"A collision of our ships followed and my engine and prop chewed through him near the right wing root.

"After the crash there was a marked rise in the temperature of my cockpit (his plane was afire). I released my safety belt and found myself promptly thrown clear of my wrecked ship. This was at about 18,000 feet.

"The 'chute opened and I descended right down through the middle of a terrific dogfight. Three Zeros formed a lufberry (dog-chase-dog) around me as I floated down.

"After I waved vigorously, jutting out my teeth and at times to look like Tojo, and making other gestures of friendship (1), giving them the old overhead handclasp like a fighter after telling Mom he'll be right home, the Zeros rolled away and disappeared."

4 Zeros Crash Into Sea

"On the way down I noted four Zeros crash into the sea and three going toward New Georgia, their props windmilling (just turning over without power) and their engines smoking considerably.

"I looked at my wrist to see the time because I knew operations would give me hell unless I had an accurate check. I discovered then both my hands and arms were burned black.

"I got out a mirror to see how I looked and found both cheeks puffed up, and my mouth filled with plexiglass from a shattered windscreen. I spat out the glass, took off my helmet and found my head thoroughly burned and most of the helmet missing. I reached for my first aid kit, extracted a morphine syrette and administered myself a shot of dope before reaching the water.

"Upon landing, I inflated my boat and made myself as comfortable as I could, knowing I'd doze off from the effect of the morphine. I did doze off for awhile, using the seat of my 'chute to cover my face from the sun.

(Matson's face already was so badly burned the sun couldn't have made it much worse.)

"After about two hours in the water, a crash boat picked me up."

Reds Assail Coal Strike

Lewis, Woll Attacked

By William McGaffin

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, June 18.—Citing the United States coal strike, the Soviet labor magazine War and the Workers' Class, expressed alarm today at what it said was "a lack of unity in American workers' movements."

"Isn't it clear that he who calls American workers to strike at the present time . . . helps the enemies of America?" the magazine asked. ". . . it is interesting to note that news of the coal industry strike in America was announced with great delight by the Berlin radio." The publication named names.

"The struggle for unity is encountering the opposition of a group of reactionary leaders of some labor unions such as Lewis, Woll and Hutchinson," it said.

"Amazement" Expressed

Soviet miners and the entire working class of the U. S. S. R. were declared to have received reports of the coal strike situation in the United States "with great amazement and a feeling of alarm."

"Each ton of coal lost because of the strike means an unproduced tank or plane and the interruption of the shipment of war materials to the front," the magazine continued.

It criticized the split of the labor movement into two unions—the A. F. L. and C. I. O. It said President Roosevelt was endeavoring to attain unity and applauded his efforts. It denounced what it said were the efforts of labor leaders to "avil themselves of some backward groups of workers to try to stimulate strikes which disorganize the war efforts of American people friendly to the U. S. S. R."

Isolationism Blamed

"It is being said that this doubtful position of some American labor unions is a belated expression of American isolationism which still survives in some circles," the magazine said. "This isolationist theory should be especially intolerable to the ranks of the workers' class."

German agents were declared by the publication to be concealing their activities in the United States "under the disguise of 'moderate Democrats,' discrediting the U. S. S. R. and spreading fear everywhere with the phantom of communism."

"Not only Woll and Hutchinson were caught by the bait, but here is also William Green, who seemed to ignore entirely the Soviet constitution," the publication said. "A favorite argument of some reactionary elements in the A. F. L. is that the Soviet labor union movement is not free, but rather is a government organ. Green and Woll proved a complete lack of knowledge, because Russian labor unions were founded long before the establishment of the Soviet government."

Christians Contribute $3300

Dr. J. Warren Hastings has announced the total offering for Victory Day in the National City Christian Church last Sunday was between $3200 and $3300. Victory Day is observed on Pentecost Sunday and the special offering given by the congregation is put in the church's building fund. The offering this year was about twice that of last year.

"I am deeply gratified," said Dr. Hastings, "for the magnificent way in which members of the National City Church responded to our special appeal for Victory Sunday. I believe the church rose to new heights of sacrificial service and Christian stewardship. I am convinced the greatest period in the life of National City Christian Church lies ahead."

Mt. Vernon Pl. Church Plans Anniversary

Special services have been planned for 9 and 11 a. m. tomorrow at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. The seventy-fourth anniversary of the establishment of the church will be celebrated, and at the same time a memorial service honoring the late Daniel C. Roper, former Secretary of Commerce and long-time member of the congregation, will be held.

RUSTIN

In June, 1869, a little congregation on M Street moved into the new church buildnig on the corner of Ninth and Mount Vernon Place, known as Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church, and for 74 years this church has been in existence. The present building was occupied in June, 1919, and became the local representative church of Southern Methodism.

Congregational Choir Festival Tomorrow

The annual choir festival service will be held tomorrow at the First Congregational Church. Special prayers will be said at tomorrow's services in observance of Magna Carta Sunday. On this occasion, the cathedral authorities pointed out, it is fitting that one of Britain's religious leaders should preach from the cathedral pulpit, which carries in relief design the story of the signing of the charter which gave the English-speaking people their liberties.

Dr. Hodgson is also Regius professor of moral and pastoral theology at Oxford University and a canon of Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford. He is also well known in this country, having been a member of the faculty of General Theological Seminary in New York as professor of Christian apologetics.

Members of the graduating classes of Woodrow Wilson High School and Western High School will attend the 4 o'clock service tomorrow to hear their annual baccalaureate sermon.

Dr. A. F. Williams to Be Speaker

Dr. Arthur F. Williams, internationally known preacher and pastor of the historic First Baptist Church of New York City, will be guest speaker tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. at The National Tabernacle, 6440 Piney Branch Road Northwest at Georgia Avenue.

Dr. Williams is in great demand throughout America for Bible conferences and he has been featured speaker at many outstanding religious conventions. He is chairman of the American Council of Christian Churches Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains.

Miss Thelma Eaton will render selections at the Lindemann concert grand piano and Mrs. Paul Titcombe will give an organ recital at the console of the mighty Everett Orgatron at both services. F. Cleveland Tate, noted baritone soloist, will be song leader.

Dr. John McNeill will be presented on the Church of the Air in a special address tomorrow at 9 a. m. over Station WOL.

Priest Turns Sheepman to Aid In Feeding Needy

Rockport, Mass., June 18 (AP).—The Rev. Francis A. McNeil, pastor of St. Joachim's Catholic Church, has become literally as well as figuratively the shepherd of his flock.

The priest has purchased a flock of a dozen sheep, weighing 1200 pounds, for the purpose of helping, in a small way, relieve the meat shortage in this community.

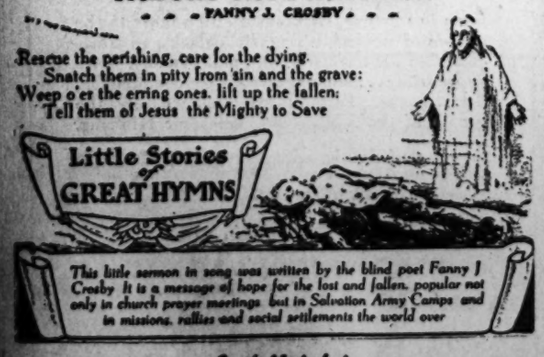
"RESCUE THE PERISHING"
FANNY J. CROSBY

Rescue the perishing, care for the dying.
Snatch them in pity from sin and the grave:
Weep o'er the erring ones, lift up the fallen;
Tell them of Jesus the Mighty to Save



This little sermon in song was written by the blind poet Fanny J Crosby It is a message of hope for the lost and fallen, popular not only in church prayer meetings but in Salvation Army Camps and in missions, rallies and social settlements the world over

Living Standard Called Basis Of Permanent World Peace

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

Primary requisite for a lasting peace is that "the standard of living of every human being everywhere become the concern of every other human," Dr. William Ernest Hocking declared yesterday.

Dr. Hocking, Harvard University philosophy professor, spoke at closing sessions of the regional conference on a just and durable peace at Hood College, Frederick, Md., under the auspices of the Washington Federation of Churches and the Maryland-Delaware Council of Churches and Christian Education.

Regarding the standard of living issue, Dr. Hocking said that it was "a very large order, which does not, however, call for equalization of standards."

"In my judgement," he stated, "this concern is most readily expressible so far as the poverty-bound hordes of Asia are concerned through development of agricultural methods and agreements which will involve definite expenditures of money The case of Russia is an excellent example of what can be done in 20 years."

Earlier, Dr. Hocking asserted that although "war is a breakdown of all human good, peace cannot be had by mere exchange of services or compromises or balances of powers or ingenuities of world police."

"Peace is an active state which has to be continually earned by spiritual effort, and Christianity is permanently pertinent to achievement of peace."

Dr. Mordecai Johnson, Howard University president, spoke on "Domestic Foundations of a World Peace." Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, and the Rev. Ralph W. Loew, associate pastor of Reformation Lutheran Church, both of Washington, led devotions.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Philadelphia, June 18.—The most exciting chapter of the Philadelphia story may yet be written by the Athletics. The Philadelphia story was supposed to concern only the Phillies, whose surge out of the cellar under new ownership and new management was the sensation of the early weeks of play.

POVICH

The fact is, though, that Connie Mack's A's, who were in third place this morning, haven't curled up and played dead before the rush of the Phillies in the bid for the patronage of Philadelphia fans. The Phils were great news when they drew more than 30,000 to one of their home games and threatened to surpass in the first two months of the season the 225,000 home attendance they drew in 1942.

But look now, and you'll find that the Athletics, without any great fanfare have been out-drawing the Phils in Shibe Park, and that in fact they rank not far behind the Nats in home drawing-power. Going into this week, the A's had pulled 240,000 fans through the gates of Shibe Park. Connie Mack has met the threat of the Phils who, a month ago, were the city's favorite ball team.

Mack is making more money now with a ball club that may represent the lowest payroll in the league, than he did in many of the seasons when he was winning pennants with such stars as Grove, Simmons, Cochrane, Fox, Bishop, Dykes, Earnshaw and Walberg.

On paper the A's aren't much. In fact there are baseball men who still say they figure to be the worst team in the league. But there is no gainsaying the fact that the A's have been playing good ball. At the start of the season, Connie Mack didn't have much license to anticipate much beyond eighth place. He had traded away Bob Johnson and Dick Siebert, his first baseman, appeared to be the only big league player on his team aside from a couple of pitchers.

Mack has been operating with an outfield comprised of Bobby Estalella, Elmer Valo, Johnny Welaj and John Tyack. There is nothing very thrilling about that group. Mack admits he was badly stung in the Johnson-for-Estalella deal. Valo was a dismal flop with his own club last year, and Welaj couldn't make the grade with either Washington or the Red Sox. Tyack had a brilliant minor league record, though.

The A's have been winning, though, with fair consistency. The most valuable guy on the club seems to be Roger Wolff, his knuckle-ball pitcher. Aside from starting and winning his own games, or giving Mack a good job of it even when he loses, Wolff has been going in with great regularity in the late innings and saving games for Jesse Flores, the little Mexican righthander, who seems to tire over the full route.

Wolff is one of the three best knuckle-ball pitchers in the American League. The others are, of course, Dutch Leonard of the Nats, and Johnny Niggeling, of the Browns. There are batters who say that Wolff has the best knuckler of all. He hasn't developed the same nicety of control that Leonard has, but he can make his knuckler do as many tricks.

The A's are being carried by a pitching staff that lacks depth but has been doing a tremendous job. Aside from Flores, Wolff and Russ Christopher, Mack has come up with a work-horse in Rookie Don Black. Luman Harris, who was supposed to be one of his better pitchers this year, has been a liability thus far. What will befall the A's later in the season when the double-headers pile up and impose more of a burden on Mack's pitching is something for him to ponder.

Where Mack got a tremendous break was in the purchase of Eddie Mayo, the veteran third sacker from the Coast League. For some reason, other major league clubs were reluctant to bring Mayo back to the big leagues inasmuch as he had not made good in previous trials with the Braves and Giants. Mayo, however, had been playing fine ball for the past three years on the Coast, and at a time when other big league clubs were suffering acutely from the lack of efficient infielders, Mayo has filled the bill excellently for Mack.

It must be embarrassing, too, to a person like Branch Rickey whose Dodgers are back-sliding because of the lack of a shortstop, to note that Mack picked up a good one at not much expense. Irv Hall, from the minors has helped to round out Mack's infield, which finds Veteran Pete Suder at second base. It's not a great infield, but it's not a poor one, either, and the A's pitching gets pretty good support.

The A's don't scare easily, either. They demonstrated that the other day when they knocked off the Yankees in both games of a double-header. Connie Mack has reason to like his ball club this year. It's not fancy, but it's pretty good, and it's giving.

Candini Wins 6th in Row, Beats A's, 4-2, in 11th

Bob Johnson, Early Smack 'Clutch' Hits

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, June 18. — Milo Candini pitched a sweet ball game for the Nats tonight and was rewarded in the eleventh inning when Mickey Vernon, Bob Johnson and Jake Early pounded home the winning runs of a 4-2 victory over the Athletics.

The unbeaten Candini, who now boasts six straight victories, saved his own game in the eighth after Third Baseman Ellis Clary's wild throw enabled the A's to tie the score at 2-2 and put the winning run on third with one out. The tall, dark righthander got out of that scrape and sent the game into extra innings.

He held the Athletics to six hits over the eleven inning route and outlasted Luman Harris in a pitching duel watched by 16,247 customers.

Fagan Victim of Nats

Rookie Everett Fagan, who relieved Harris at the start of the tenth was the victim of the Nats' final assault. Mickey Vernon led off the eleventh with a sharp single to right and Fagan contributed a balk that moved Mickey to second with none out.

Disdaining the conventional sacrifice bunt at this point, Bob Johnson whaled away and produced a single to center that scored Vernon. Johnson further tormented his erstwhile Philadelphia pals by stealing second and thus was able to romp home on Early's single to right.

The Nats set Candini up to a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning after Johnson and Early singled to center with one out. With two outs, they were moved home on singles to center by Clary and Sullivan.

Former Nat Bobby Estalella got a run back for the A's in the fourth with an enormous home run swat into the upper deck of left center field.

The Nats were handcuffed by Harris thereafter and obtained only one hit in the next five innings. Meanwhile, the A's came up with a cheap run in the eighth to tie the score.

Clary Caused More Trouble

Mayo caused trouble for Candini when he singled to right with one out in the eighth, but Clary caused more trouble for the big pitcher when he made an indescribeable wild throw to first on Tyack's infield single. Mayo scampered all the way home on the error and Tyack pulled up at third with the potential winning run.

In this spot, Candini bore down on the homerun hitter Estalella and struck him out with a series of fast balls. Then he walked Siebert purposely and got out of trouble completely with a one-hand stab of Suder's drive and throw to first.

In the ninth, tenth and eleventh Candini saw fit to give the A's no hits whatsoever.

Crack U. S. Athletes Meet Today in A. A. U.

By Orlo Robertson

Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, June 18.—Track and field's greatest show in many a year will be staged at Triborough Stadium on Randalls Island tomorrow and Sunday when the pick of the Nation's athletes plus Sweden's great Gunder Hagg come together in the National A. A., junior and senior championships.

The 21 junior events and three of the senior numbers—1500 and 10,000 meter runs and 3000 meter walk—will be decided tomorrow. The remaining 18 senior championships will go on the block Sunday with Hagg, world record holder at seven distances from 1500 to 5000 meters, making his American debut against Ensign Joseph Gregory Rice, United States' premier distance runner and unbeaten in his last 65 starts.

Hagg and Rice will contest the issue over 5000 meters with the slim Swedish ace favorite to take the crown worn by Greg the last five years. Since arriving in this country two weeks ago, after 26 days on a tanker, Hagg has been training at Dartmouth and is said to be in fine shape. Rice, stationed at the Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, Long Island, has not run in competition since the Penn Relays in April.

Off comparative times, Hagg figures to leave the little barrel-chested Notre Dame alumnus far behind, but backers of Rice say he has never been tested outdoors. Hagg's world record is 13:58.2 while Rice never has run the distance faster than 14:33.4. That was in 1940.

Tomorrow's program will feature Gil Dodds, Boston divinity student, in defense of his 1500-meter crown against such worthy challengers as Dartmouth's Don Burnham, Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. and National Collegiate champion; Bill Hulse, Metropolitan A. A. U. titleholder, and Pvt. Bill Leonard of Camp Upton.

Stephens Hits Two Homers as Browns Win

By International News Service

Detroit, June 18.—Vern Stephens' two home runs paced the St. Louis Browns to a 7 to 4 victory over the Detroit Tigers in a twilight game tonight.

Stephens hit a homer in the third with a man on base, another in the seventh, and also clouted a double. Mike Chartak also smacked a homer for the Browns in the seventh.

Hal White started for the Tigers, lasted two and one-third innings, and was charged with the defeat. Johnny Niggeling was the victor, although George Caster had to rescue him in the ninth when a Detroit rally netted three runs.

Noted Gael Mentor Gets 6-Month Job

By the Associated Press

Iowa City, Iowa, June 18.—Edward P. (Slip) Madigan, former football coach at California's St. Mary's College, today was named head coach at the University of Iowa to end for him a three-season separation from the sport.

Madigan, who coached the Gaels for 19 years and developed some of the Nation's outstanding elevens, will take over the reins here for a six-month period beginning July 1, succeeding Dr. Eddie Anderson, now an Army major.

The board in control of athletics at the university did not disclose what plans it had for a coach after next January 1. Madigan's salary was not disclosed.

(At Oakland, Madigan was obviously pleased with the opportunity to coach in the Big Ten. He said he would maintain his permanent residence in Oakland and would retain his interest in the Golden Gate Turf Club at Albany, hoping to operate the track next year.)

Madigan, 46, and Anderson played together on Knute Rockne's Notre Dame team in 1919. Anderson was an end, Madigan center. Madigan was graduated from Notre Dame in 1920 and went to St. Mary's in 1921.

Madigan's St. Mary's teams compiled a .765 average during his tenure, although the school enrollment never exceeded 600.

Madigan dropped out of football after resigning at St. Mary's in 1939. For the last two years he has been with the Federal Housing Administration in Oakland.

Madigan will conduct a four-week summer football practice starting in July, Athletic Director E. G. Schroeder said.

Chicubs Find Cardinals Easy And Win, 6-1

The Cubs scored four runs without a hit, breaking a two-inning tie and scoring again in the ninth to win, 6 to 1.

Hughson Beats Yanks Again for Bosox, 3-1

By the Associated Press

New York, June 18.—Tex Hughson found his Yankee "cousins" just about the same as usual today and pinned their ears back for the seventh straight game in two years.

This time tall Tex turned in a four-hitter, fanned nine and batted in a run as he led the Boston Red Sox to a 3-to-1 victory over the American League champs.

During the proceedings, his most "friendly" cousin turned out to be Joe Gordon, who had one of his worst days as a Yankee. The somewhat flashless Flash committed two errors, both of which had something to do with the Red Sox run-making, and he fanned three straight times, boosting his total whiffs" for the year to 38.

The Sox put the game on ice in a hurry with a two-run rally in the fourth. Ulysses Lupien started it off with a single and reached second when Gordon dropped Catcher Ken Sears' throw on an attempted steal. Bobby Doerr walked and Ed Lake sent the first tally home with a single through the middle. Hughson then put the crusher on with a line smash to center that scored Doerr. The Sox added one for good measure in the ninth when Gordon fumbled Dee Miles' bouncer and Babe Barna brought Dee all the way 'round with a two-bagger.

Dodgers Blow Game to Phils In Sixth, 10-8

By International News Service

New York, June 18.—The Brooklyn Dodgers suffered their fifth straight loss today, blowing an eight-run lead to lose to the Philadelphia Phillies, 10 to 8.

In five innings the Dodgers built up an 8-to-0 lead for Twirler Rube Melton, but in one great onslaught in the sixth inning the Phillies belted Melton, Curt Davis and Ed Head for nine hits, nine runs and the ball game.

Thirteen Phillies came to bat in the sixth. Buster Adams started by pounding out a triple, then delivered a double on his second trip to the platter with the bases filled to score three more.

Majors Will Shoot For Half-Million War Relief Fund

By the Associated Press

New York, June 19.—Baseball wheeled out its big guns for an all-out war relief barrage today and "Head Gunner" Kenesaw Mountain Landis aimed them at a half-million dollar target for the diamond's three-day benefit program this summer.

Through National League President Ford Frick, baseball's high commissioner outlined plans for the national pastime's first "united" relief card and announced that he hopes the eight games each on June 30 and July 28 and the All-Star game in Philadelphia July 13 will produce that amount.

All receipts in both leagues for those days will be dropped into the pot, from which the first $100,000 will go to the bat-and-ball fund and the rest to various relief agencies, to be announced later.

Ross' Homer Gives Braves 8-6 Decision

By International News Service

Boston, June 18.—The Braves handed the New York Giants six unearned runs today but a three-run home run by Pinch Hitter Chet Ross pulled them out of the hole in the ninth and gave them an 8-to-6 victory.

It was the first game Casey Stengel had seen his warriors play this season. He sat in the dugout, his mending broken leg in a cast and pulled the strings that enabled his club to win out.

Starr Blanks Bucs, 1 to 0, in 14-Inning Tilt

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, June 18.—The Cincinnati Reds got the jump over Pittsburgh's Buccaneers today as they opened a four-game series with third place in the league standings at stake by taking a 1-to-0 decision in 14 innings behind the superb hurling by Ray Starr.

Lonnie Frey's triple, his third hit, an intentional pass to Estel Crabtree and Gee Walker's run-scoring single broke up the game.

Starr, 37-year-old mound sensation, and Max Butcher staged the closest slab duel of the season here. The contest was enlivened by seven double plays, four by the Pirates.

After permitting two hits in the fifth, Starr allowed but three more men to get on base, two by singles and one a pass.

Kirsch-Brown Bout Added to Monday's Stadium Program

Promoter Joe Turner yesterday announced his complete card in support of the Beau Jack-Maxie Starr 10-round battle Monday night at Griffith Stadium, including an eight and three sixes.

In the eight-round semifinal, Nick Kirsch of Baltimore will meet Deacon Johnny Brown, Baltimore Negro middleweight, who at one time owned a 25-bout winning streak before Frankie Wills snapped it last summer.

The six-rounders bring together Taffy Cummings of the Royal British navy, who has been absent from local rings for some three months, and Eddie Kane, a Washingtonian now with the Coast Guard, in a welterweight scrap; Leon Ford of Pittsburgh and Billy Duncan of Fort Belvoir, heavyweights, and Irish Kid Barry and Jimmy Briscoe, lightweights.

Beau Jack, escorted by his manager, that master of all trades, Chick "Hercules" Wergeles, will arrive tomorrow.

Athletic Ban at West Point 'Ridiculous,' Says Gen. Wilby

By the Associated Press

Competitive sports as training for Uncle Sam's fighting men won strong support yesterday from Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point.

His opinion was expressed in testimony before the House Appropriations Committee after Representative Powers (Republican) of New Jersey declared he understood "there is a movement on foot to stop athletics at West Point" and called it "ridiculous."

"All of us at West Point," said Wilby, "feel that it would be a very sad day for West Point if competitive athletics are abandoned. We feel that competitive athletics, and especially the body-contact type of athletics, is one of the finest things in the training of a soldier.

"We feel that the training and morale of the whole Cadet Corps will suffer if that is omitted."

Representative Snyder (Democrat) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, agreed. He said one reason why athletics should be continued at West Point "is just this: If athletics were discontinued at West Point, in less than four years from the time they were stopped, the fellows who have been considering going to West Point, fellows who would make top-notch colonels and generals, would decide to go to other schools."

Attune, Julette Run Dead Heat in Charles Town Feature

Pair Engage In Thrilling Stretch Duel

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Charles Town, W. Va., June 19 Mrs. J. M. Welsh's Attune and R. S. Wise's Julette hooked up in a stretch duel here today that was beautiful to see. The pair ding-donged along with boys and horses doing their best and, as was fitting, the judges lighted the "dead heat" sign. The thrilling battle came in the sixth race, best offering of the day, involving a field of seven good sprinters. A length behind the battle for first money came C. D. Shanks' Highformation to be third.

With Happy Hannah a disappointing favorite, good prices were paid by the winners. Attune, a 3-year-old daughter of Aneroid, returned $7 to win, $5.40 to place and $4.60 to show. Julette, a 4-year-old daughter of Baldpate, paid $9.80 to win, $13.60 to place and $7.80 to show. The winners were clocked in 0:49 4-5 for the about 4½ furlongs, only a fraction over the track record held by Irene's Bob.

Julette ran Happy Hannah into defeat to take command under Apprentice Arnold Kirkland's handling. Attune, ridden by Jockey Stanley Austin, then moved up on the rail and the pair went into their struggle that lasted right into the wire.

Individual riding honors for the program, however, went to Jockey Scotty Prain, who now calls Charles Town his home. The jolly boy won the second race with O. B. Wearley's Golden Lass, won the fourth with Miss Addie and the seventh with Electric. The last two are owned by R. J. Costello, who, like Owner Wearley, is a Washingtonian.

Selections at Charles Town

First race—SAMPLER is a doubtful starter but will take it all if in action. LADY MASCARA has speed and belongs close. AIR DEFENSE should go well at the short route.

Second race—BOWSPRIT gets in light, likes this distance and I'm going to string along. NICK begins to figure when the opposition is cheap. NEON LIGHT is a possibility.

Third race—KATE SMITH has plenty of early foot and looks best. FLAG ETTA may be a different horse from the No. 1 position STRUMMING for the minor award.

Fourth race—J. HAL is in rare form and I see no reason for mistakes. SINGING STEEL and ALLEN CAID for the place and show awards.

Fifth race—HONEYMAID has done about everything asked hereabouts and I'm going to string along. MARDI GRAS has speed and will be a threat. NEVER HOME for the show end.

Sixth race—WEATHERITE has been having poor racing luck and should take care of these. EVENING SHOT is in rare form and is one to beat. ROMAN BOY should take the top but may stop.

Seventh race—ROYAL ECHO is the natural choice in this field. PITTSBURGH was off poorly last out and will improve. HARD LOSER for the minor money.

Eighth race—WOODVALE LASS turned in a fine effort last out and may take it all in the day's finale. JACK HORNER and HOT MAN for the other cash positions.

Best Bet—HONEYMAID.

COOL Clothes With Airholes!
The Suit That Lets Your Body 'Breathe'

FAMED PALM BEACH

It isn't the lack of weight that makes a summer suit cool. Haven't you noticed how you perspire even in lightweight pajamas on a hot night? What's needed for coolness is "open spaces." The millions of tiny openings in a Palm Beach suit let air into your damp skin. It's the evaporation of this moisture which keeps the body cool. Tests prove that moisture evaporates 22% faster in a Palm Beach suit.

No excess paddings or linings to block out the cool air. Lines are kept smooth and immaculate by the marvelous blend of mohair, rayon and cotton. Single and double breasted styles in grey, brown, blue and tan.

Capital's Ideal Pop, Family To Be Feted by WAACS Here

Edward R. Curtis, chosen by The Post as the ideal father of the Washington area, and his wife and two children will be guests tomorrow of the WAAC detachment at 2115 C Street Northwest.

Curtis, a White House fireman who lives at 4112 Fifth Street Northwest, and his family are particuiarly interested in the WAAC and, in turn, the officers and enlisted personnel of the detachment are anxious for some special Father's Day celebration because, for the most part, they are too far away from home to see their own dads.

The two Curtis girls, Mrs. Audrey Anderson, 21, and Edith, 13, who wrote the winning letter to The Post's Father's Day Editor, are delighted at the opportunity of seeing real WAAC barracks, so the whole family has been invited to go with the District's typical pop.

The four Curtises also will be guests of The Post at dinner and the theater next Sunday night, when the plaque will be awarded Curtis for winning the award. Next Sunday was chosen because neither Mr. nor Mrs. Curtis could take time off from their jobs at any other time—his at the White House, hers in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where she is employed as a war bond counter.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

In OPA, in OPA
According to decree,
The drawers of all stenographers
Are numbered 1-2-3.
Economists and analysts,
The junior exec corps,
May count one digit higher—
Their's are 1-2-3 and 4.
For OPA hierarchy
They will grant arthmetic's
(Perhaps) a simpler process—
Their's are numbered 1 through 6.

In OPA, in OPA
The big shots all can claim
A signal honor for their drawers—
They each can sport a name.
Example: There's the "pull drawer,"
The "middle drawer" and "file,"
The "work drawer" and the 'misc. drawer,"
(That last one, now's, worthwhile . . .)
The No. 5 drawer, "dictate,"
Was numbered all in fun.
Just which is No. 5 drawer?
It's really No. 1

In OPA, in OPA
They've found the one solution.
To "correlate activities,"
Just start a revolution.
Envision, then, the bureaucrat
When OPA inflicts
A 1-2-free arrangement
On top of 1 to 6.
And pity him 'til lunchtime
With nothing to be done . . .
No work, no news, no mags, no shoes,
Just "keep it clean" 'til one.

In OPA, in OPA
Calm sapience presides.
In Washington, in Washington
They're fit to bust their sides!

The above poem, written by a Navy Department employe, was inspired by the story that appeared in this column revealing the OPA drawer order. It has appeared in the Star Shell, Ordnance Bureau employe publication.

MILITARY VS. CIVILIANS

So General Somervell says that Army officers aren't paid overtime like civilians! Well, he should have at least mentioned a few of the advantages of being an officer, such as: the officer's Federal taxes don't compare with the civilian's; the officer can get his haircut in the Pentagon; he can settle his gas ration troubles in the Pentagon; he can buy his food (and a vast assortment) at cheaper prices at the P. X., and he doesn't have to take annual leave each time he leaves the building to take care of personal errands. "CIVILIAN."

TO THE B. S. M.:

Is there no hope for the naval officer?

Is there nothing that can be done about the steam-heated strait-jacket we are forced to wear?

Is the authority and respect of the Army officer undermined by the wearing of a cool shirt?

Is the tradition of an officer and a gentleman furthered by the starched collars, soggy [illegible], feverish, sweat-bathed brows now sported by the typical Washington Navy officer?

Must our prayer ever remain, as we trek to Seventeenth and Constitution—"Abandon Hope, All Ye Who Enter Here?"

SWELTERING ARMY OFFIVER.

EXPEDITE SERVICE

One day this week I tried to transact business at one of our largest department stores during my short lunch period. I met the usual line-up, a goodly portion of them being women who obviously had lots of leisure, and were certainly not working at war jobs. I believe that when they, who have no war jobs and are able to arrange their own time, have shopping to do or business to transact, they should have the consideration to do it before the rush period at noon.

Now it happens that Government workers carry their badges always with them, and could thus be identified to clerks who are about to wait on these groups of people lined up. If business houses could be prevailed upon to honor this method, it would expedite service considerably. A. L.

Tormentors Warned

Hagerstown, Md.—Hagerstown's cruising policemen warn they are tired of the shouts of "pleasure drivers" from the curbstone and are going to crack down, preferring disorderly charges against their tormentors.

"If you think riding around eight hours a day is a pleasure, try it once," said one.

D. C. Budget Hearings Completed

Senate Expected To Take Final Action on Bill Next Week

The Senate Appropriations Subcommittee will take final action next week on the District appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1, after completing hearings yesterday.

It was indicated that the bill, which totaled $54,789,434 as it passed the House, might be slightly increased to allow greater liberality toward Washington's 2000 dependent children.

The subcommittee, of which Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming is chairman, also asked for estimates on the cost of furnishing all police precincts with lists of licenses and owners of dogs in order to speed return of strays.

Committee comments hinted that the Senate might write into the bill a provision to give Blue Plains Home for the Aged the services of two occupational therapists.

Commissioners Criticized

Discussions of the need for providing occupation for Blue Plains residents brought strong condemnation upon the District Commissioners by Senator Holman (Republican) of Oregon.

Mrs. Edith Coulson, associate director of the Lisner Home for Aged Women, testified that volunteers from her organization had taught weaving temporarily at Blue Plains and had given the inmates "a new interest in life," but that she thought that two regular occupational therapists should be permanently employed. She said the Commissioners had been consulted about the matter 18 months ago, but had taken no action.

Asserting that his own experience showed that proper occupation of institutional inmates was of "prime importance," Holman asked why the Commissioners had not taken action.

Simplified Bills in Store

Holman asserted that Congress had created the Commissioners at considerable cost to solve just such problems, and suggested they pay more attention to requests of citizens.

Walter Fowler, District budget officer, told the committee that District appropriation bills hereafter would be greatly simplified in language and detailed items. He said that conferences with the Budget Bureau had resulted in agreement on a simplified form reducing the present 288 items to 86 while individual paragraphs would be sliced from 34 to about a dozen.

Mrs. Walter S. Ufford of the District Legislative Council urged the Senate committee to include funds for two additional health centers, one in Anacostia and one in the Northeast. She requested the establishment of a bureau of mental hygiene under the health department.

Raises Asked for Doctors

Mrs. Ufford asked also for a cost-of-living increase in the salaries of six resident physicians at Gallinger who receive $5600 a year. O'Mahoney explained that the Appropriations Committee could not act on this recommendation because the salaries of those men were set by separate statute.

To a suggestion by Mrs. Oscar Kuldell, representing the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, that 40 additional clerks be allowed for the schools here, Holman retorted that Washington's school system seemed to compile "entirely too much data anyway."

Holman said: "These teachers are employed to teach children, and yet they must spend half their time on records."

In asking for listing of dog licenses at police stations, Mrs. Peyton Hawes Dunn, representing six humane organizations, declared there were about 35,000 dogs in the District, and that at present, when the tax collector's office is closed, there is no way of quickly identifying the owner of a lost dog. Fowler agreed to furnish the committee with an estimate of how much it would cost to provide such lists.

95 More Units For Child Care Are Approved

Presidential approval of 95 additional units to care for the children of working mothers was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works administrator.

The newly approved war nurseries and child-care centers under FWA will open facilities to 4976 children between the ages of 2 and 14 at locations in Arizona, California, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia.

At present such units throughout the country number 3043 with provisions for care of 163,598 children. Units to care for 680 children will be operated in the agricultural communities of Tempe, Ariz., Merced, Calif., and Santa Paula, Calif., to enable mothers to accept work in the fields and processing plants there.

Masons, Eastern Star Provide Thrills for 20,000 at Benefit

THE QUEEN IS CROWNED—Senator Harry C. Truman of Missouri crowns Dorothy Niedfeldt as queen of the Masonic "Night of Thrills."

The Masonic and Eastern Star "Night of Thrills" at Griffith Stadium last night proved to be just that for an estimated 20,000 persons who viewed the crowning of the queen, a military pageant, a circus and a ball game.

The event, for the benefit of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, began with a ball game between the Heurich Brewers of the Industrial League and the Miller Furniture nine of the Departmental League. Heurich won, 4 to 0.

Feature event was the crowning of Miss Dorothy Neidfeldt by Senator Harry S. Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, past grand master of Masons of Missouri, which was followed by short talks by Carl H. Claudy, grand master of Masons of the District; Mrs. Irma Smith, worthy grand matron, Order of Eastern Star; W. E. Birgfeld, worthy grand patron, Order of Eastern Star, and Clark Griffith, who donated the use of the ball park.

Reviewing the pageant parade were Maj. Gen. Walter S. Baker and his staff. The parade was led by the queen's escort, the Army Auxiliary Band, three military police detachments, an antiaircraft detachment and a Navy detachment. Members of the American Legion acted as the queen's guard of honor.

Touring the ball field were three cars containing the queen and her retinue and Masonic and Eastern Star officials, followed by the queen's trumpeters, the Elks boy's band.

Four commanderies of Knights Templars, officials of Almas Temple, the Kallipolis Grotto band and drill team, the Capitol Forest, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, band and drill team, three Job's Daughters drill teams and the Robert LeBruce Chapter, DeMolay, color guard.

The parade ended in center field with the massing of the colors and the playing of "America."

An exhibition drill was staged by Washington Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar; Rangers' Drill Team, Tall Cedars of Lebanon; the Arab Patrol, Almas Temple, the Grotto drill team, Kallipolis Grotto, and the Bethel No. 1, 2 and 5 drill teams of Job's Daughters.

The program was climaxed by a three-ring circus with 14 acts and ended with the patriotic finale, "V for Victory."

The Rev. J. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., of Fordham University, succeeds the Rev. Edward C. Phillips, S. J., as dean of the Georgetown University Graduate School, and Father Joseph M. Geib becomes assistant rector, succeeding Father David T. Madden, who becomes superior at Holy Face Church, Great Mills, Md. The Rev. Matthew G. Kane replaces the Rev. Joseph A. Farrell, S. J., as university treasurer. Fathers Phillips and Farrell will remain at the school under assignments to be disclosed later.

The Rev. L. Charles McHugh, Severn, Annapolis, as professor of mathematics and will be succeeded at Manresa by Father Samuel J. Robb of LaPlata, Md. Father Thomas P. Murray becomes assistant dean of the graduate school.

Father Colohan Teaches Physics

Father J. F. Colohan will teach physics and J. C. McKenna and J. M. Daley, history. Father Philips V. Sullivan left Georgetown a few weeks ago to become assistant rector of St. Joseph's High School and Church, Philadelphia. Father John E. Wise will pursue higher studies at St. Louis University, and J. J. Scanlan goes to Woodstock for theology.

Other faculty newcomers are the Rev. Joseph F. X. Harrisonn, S. J., of St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, new student counselor for the college and School of Foreign Service; the Rev. Leo G. Monaghan, S. J., English professor; the Rev. Michael F. McPhelin of Manresa-on-the-Severn, ordered here for graduate work in economics, and Father Eugene B. Gallagher, professor of religion.

Georgetown Prep Changes

At Georgetown Preparatory School, Father F. G. Quinn becomes instructor of religion and classics; and D. F. Lawler and J. W. Bush will teach mathematics and classics, respectively.

F. A. Mann and F. J. McNamara will leave the faculty to study theology at Woodstock (Md.) College. Father Andrew A. Hoffman, formerly of Gonzaga High School faculty, becomes new assistant pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown, near the university.

Gonzaga Faculty

Fathers Louis E. McKay, Ernest B. Clements and David T. Fitzgerald will come to Gonzaga to teach religion and classics; Father Michael F. Kavanagh will be student counselor, and Father Herbert G. Parker of Holy Face Church, Great Mills, will be assistant pastor of St. Aloysius' Church. C. G. Lehmkull, E. J. Mesmer and Father J. J. Brady will teach science.

Leaving Gonzaga faculty will be Father Thomas A. Donaghue, who goes to St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia; Father Arthur A. O'Leary, former president of Georgetown University assigned to Woodstock College as spiritual counselor; W. J. Ruppenthal going to Loyola High School, Baltimore, and J. G. Emory, W. F. McHarry and J. T. Wilkinson who join Woodstock for theology.

Father Walter J. Burghardt comes to Carroll House, Catholic University, to study in the graduate school.

Park Board Adds 2 Unit Playgrounds

District Master Plan Now Includes 26 Major Sites and 133 Smaller Ones

Two new projects were added to the Recreation Board's master playground plan yesterday by the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission. These playgrounds, which will be for small children, will be located at Kalorama Road off Nineteenth Street, and on Courtland and Devonshire Places west of Connecticut Avenue.

Money for these developments will be available at the beginning of the new fiscal year, July 1. These will bring the total number of playgrounds on the master plan up to 26 major and 133 smaller sites. Of these, 21 of the large developments and more than 100 of the smaller ones are now in use.

Charles F. Palmer, former national housing coordinator, told the commission of postwar housing planning in England, which he has just visited on an inspection tour. Palmer reported that despite the bombings of England, plans are being furthered for postwar rebuilding of larger cities looking toward elimination of slums.

A temporary playground for children of the McLean Gardens dwellings, at Thirty-ninth and Newark Streets Northwest was approved, as was a temporary wing for General Accounting Office files at McLean Gardens to be built on the east side of the GAO building.

The commission also approved construction of another story on the middle wing of the U. S. Public Health Center on Constitution Avenue, and of a wooden overpass across the traffic highway outside Arlington Farms.

Postlude

Full House At Gershwin ProgramHere

Favored by as pleasant weather as could be desired, the annual Gershwin memorial concert of the National Symphony Orchestra drew a capacity audience to the Potomac Watergate last evening. Inconveniences of transportation made no difference to the 13,000 or more Washingtonians who crowded the riparian terraces and formed lines of standees along the balustrades to hear a program devoted exclusively to music by one of the most popular American composers of the twentieth century. It was an impressive application of the old saying, "if you seek a monument, look around you," for this assemblage was just the kind of monument that would have been desired by George Gershwin, who was cut off at the height of his career six years ago.

BROWN

Gershwin wrote music not for the professors but for the people, and their response to his infectious tunes and irresistible rhythms proved the accuracy of his instinct. Last night's program presented characteristic selections from his bread-and-butter works, like the musical comedy, "Strike Up the Band;" his first success in the orchestra field, "Rhapsody in Blue;" his serious and ambitious piano concerto, his amusing symphonic poem, "An American in Paris;" and songs from his folk opera, "Porgy and Bess." It presented very fairly the range of his talent.

In the works for piano and orchestra the soloist was Jesus Maria Sanroma, whose crisp touch and rhythmic vitality were just what the scores demanded. Alexander Smallens, who is by way of being the prime expert in Gershwin, was on the podium with an authority that brooked no relaxation in the verve of the music. The songs from "Porgy and Bess" were sung delightfully by Kenneth Spencer and Muriel Rahn.

With due credit to the spirited work of the orchestra, the honors of the evening went to the conductor and pianist. On the word of one who heard the first performance of the piano concerto in New York in 1925 with the composer as soloist and Walter Damrosch conducting, the performance at the Watergate was infinitely better. Among the obvious reasons for this, one is that Gershwin never pretended to the virtuosity of Sanrema, and another that Damrosch was not as sympathetic to the modern idioms as Smallens.

Sanroma quite won the hearts of his listeners with his readings of the "Rhapsody in Blue," and was stormily recalled until he acknowledged the applause by playing extra numbers, which were transcriptions of two songs from his native Puerto Rico: "Days of Bliss" and "Don't Touch Me." Smallens came in for his ovation also at the close of the concert, and his response was to repeat "Strike Up the Band" and "The Man I Love."

Frederick Jacobi once compressed into a sentence the appeal of George Gershwin to the public: "His music has that high attribute of making people fall in love with it." One ventures to say that it is the Gershwin knack for writing songs that won the love, and that the songs will certainly outlive the piano concerto and probably the "Rhapsody in Blue." For in these more extended works, the form is weak and the living principle is contained in the lyrical themes. Like Sullivan, Offenbach and Johann Strauss, Gershwin was an expression of his age, and his public recognized the fact that he was their articulate spokesman. There is no danger that his memory will not be cherished. Last evening's assemblage is proof enough that his individuality has left a permanent mark on American music.

Loan Sought For D.C.Slum Redemption

NCHA Asks Congress For Fund to Combat Health Threat, Ease Overcrowding

Following recent disclosures on the health and morale menace to the Nation's Capital from extensive slum areas here, the advisory committee of the War Housing Center yesterday adopted a resolution, pointed at Congress, asking that $5,000,000 be made available at once as a loan to the National Capital Housing Authority, "to acquire and demolish unfit and insanitary dwellings" and to erect "proper dwellings" in their place.

The newly built homes, the resolution specified, should be for occupancy by "low-income families, equal in number to those who are displaced by the demolition, irrespective of whether these families are warworkers; provided that critical materials can be made available without impeding the war effort."

For Low-Income Families

The recommendation that slum areas be rebuilt for low-income families, "irrespective of whether these families are warworkers." highlights the stand Washington social agencies have taken in opposition to National Housing Administrator John B. Blandford's order that all war housing be restricted solely to the use of "indispensable" warworkers. Civic groups like the Washington Housing Association have long pointed to the fact that thousands of families here are living under unbearable conditions or have been dispossessed to make way for Federal buildings, without provision for their housing from Government funds.

Further prompting the advisory committee's action has been recent information that listings at the War Housing Center reveal seriously inadequate housing for Negro families.

Dangerously Overcrowded

The resolution points out that "the low-income population of the District of Columbia, especially the low-income Negro population, is dangerously overcrowded and that their present dwellings constitute a "hazard to our war effort." All new housing is now restricted "not only to warworkers but even more narrowly to inmigrant warworkers," the statement asserts.

The five-million-dollar appropriation requested for the National Capital Housing Authority was authorized by Congress some five years ago when it was known as the Alley Dwelling Authority, but actual funds were never appropriated.

Women Voters Hold Festival Today

"A Strawberry Festival" for the benefit of the Washington League of Women Voters will be held today, from 6 to 8 p. m., in the gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Strauss' home, 1 Linnean Hill, Porter and Klingle Road, Rock Creek Park.

Admission to the festival, open to the public, is $1.10. Tickets may be reserved through Kitty Clift at Emerson 5934. Entertainment is scheduled to include folk dances in costume by members of the United Federal Workers Union and portrait sketches made by Gregory Poole.

ODT Countenances Delivery By Messengers, Afoot or A-Bike

Eastern stores may use messengers on bicycles or afoot to deliver small packages if they desire, the Office of Defense Transportation ruled today.

The order applies to the States in the Eastern gasoline shortage area. The statement was made by ODT in clarifying the new rule in the gasoline shortage area that trucks cannot be used to deliver packages weighing less than 5 pounds or measuring less than 60 inches in combined length and girth.

12,544 Donors in May

Twelve thousand five hundred and forty-four persons donated blood last month to the District Chapter of the American Red Cross, it was reported yesterday. This number is an increase of 10 per cent over April.

Contributions received through May brought the war fund to $1,989,331. More than 4000 prisoner of war packages, costing $14,028, were arranged for during May. A check for $14,000 from the Queen Wilhelmina fund provided for 4000 packages to Netherland soldiers and sailors in German prison camps.

Invited to Conference

Dr. C. D. Swope of the Farragut Medical Building and Dr. Riley D. Moore of Stoneleigh Courts are scheduled to participate in the War Service Conference of the American Osteopathic Association in Detroit, Mich., July 16 to 20, it was announced yesterday.

6 Bills Ready For District Committee

Six District bills which have been studied by various subcommittees will be reported to the full House District Committee next Monday at an open session.

Chief interest centers about a bill to reinstate two former members of the Metropolitan Police Department, Hubert E. Brodie and Leo A. Murray, introduced by Representative McMillan (Democrat) of South Carolina. The two former policemen were demoted in rank about three years ago, and later discharged for accepting a bribe from a local bookie.

The bill is opposed by the District Commissioners, and there are indications it will be killed in committee.

A bill introduced by Representative Bradley (Republican) of Michigan to impose severe penalties for "dog-napping" will be considered.

The committee is expected to report favorably on a bill introduced by Representative Randolph (Democrat) of West Virginia to tighten District laws regarding the carrying of concealed weapons.

A measure to set aside the trial board conviction of William F. Fey, formed member of the Police Department, and permit him to resign will be considered.

A Senate bill, introduced by Senator Bridges (Republican) of New Hampshire, providing that all horse meat sold in the District must be plainly labeled is also on the list.

A bill to permit burial in the Masonic Temple is scheduled for consideration.

Woman, 83, Fatally Hurt In Traffic

Bus Victim's Death Is Third Since Pedestrian Safety Campaign Began

D. C. traffic deaths this year .. 37
Traffic deaths this date 1942 .. 53
Total traffic deaths 1942 108

Mrs. Catherine Wells, 83, of 912 M Street Northwest, was fatally injured last night when struck by a Capital Transit Co. bus in the 1200 block Ninth Street Northwest. She was removed to Casualty Hospital where she died at 8 p. m., an hour after she was struck.

Police said the bus was driven by James E. Finchem, 25, of Silver Spring, Md. He will appear at a coroner's inquest.

Since the Pedestrian Safety Week campaign was started last Monday by the Junior Board of Commerce, three persons have died of traffic fatalities here. Another, an Arlington County fireman, died at Emergency Hospital of injuries when thrown from a fire truck in Arlington.

Campaign Indorsed

Indorsement of the Safety Campaign, was given yesterday by Robert L. Haycock, acting superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Board of Education.

Said Haycock, "Every boy and girl should watch his step, especially during the summer months when young people are out of doors so much of the time. Many of our streets are teeming with fast-moving autos and trucks and are a great source of danger to boys and girls who try to play in the streets instead of on the playgrounds."

"Continued education of young children is the best way to reduce traffic casualties among them," declared Mrs. Doyle.

Speaking yesterday on the safety program broadcast daily in conjunction with the campaign, W. T. Cameron, chief safety adviser of the Department of Labor, said "Street, home and recreational accidents are causing loss of hundreds of thousands of man hours."

Some Recommendations

Among his recommendations for greater pedestrian safety were:

1. Cross only at the intersection.
2. Cross only with the green light or on the "Walk" signal.
3. Be extra careful and look both ways going to and from street car loading platforms.
4. Under no circumstances cross the street between intersections. Never enter the street from between parked cars.
5. Keep children in play areas—don't let them play in the street.
6. Wear or carry something white when crossing or using the streets at night—for when wearing dark clothes you may be able to see the car, but the driver can't see you.
7. Be particularly cautious if you are not an automobile driver or are over 55 years of age—Washington pedestrian accident records show that a high percentage of pedestrian injuries happen to persons who do not have the ability to accurately judge speeds or stopping distances of cars. Keeping safe is mainly a matter of good common sense. Protect your life and limb, your pocketbook, and help to win the war by observing the commonsense rules of pedestrian safety.

City News In Brief

A 20-year-old amnesia victim was identified at Gallinger Hospital last night as Reena Levy, New York City shop girl who disappeared Tuesday. Her aunt, Mrs. Frieda Rosner of Baltimore, made the identification yesterday after seeing the young woman's picture in a newspaper.

Last night, Miss Levy, who was reported by physicians as "recovering her memory rapidly," was bound for her home with her mother.

Reena was sent to the hospital Thursday night, after approaching employes at the Travelers' Aid booth at Union Station.

Annulment Asked

An elopement to Frederick, Md., when she was 15 years of age was simply a "childish prank" to Mrs. Hermine E. German of 1162 Sixteenth Street Northwest, it was charged in a bill for annulment of the marriage filed yesterday in Frederick.

Mrs. Clara J. J. Beckert of the same local address, grandmother of Mrs. German, filed the suit against Aubrey C. German, of 4000 Garrison Street Northwest. The couple was married May 19, 1941. The bridegroom was 17.

Play Center to Open

A vacation play center for children of working mothers will open Monday at 1409 Lawrence Street Northeast, under direction of Dorothy Anne Doyle. A recreational and educational program, including hikes, classes in arts and the drama, is planned daily from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. until school reopens. Registrations will be accepted from 7 to 9 p. m.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

Broiled meats are delicious and do not require much time or heat to prepare. That is something to be considered by the cook on hot summer evenings. One thick, juicy chop will have better flavor than two thinner one. Since potatoes are again available, why not steam or boil the smaller sized ones, then treat them to some butter or margarine and chopped parsley?

Broiled meats are easily and quickly prepared. Of course you can't go out and buy many of the cuts you did in pre-war days, but you can find lamb chops at most markets most of the time.

Martha Ellyn

Lamb chops whether loin, rib or shoulder are best for broiling when cut fairly thick because then they can be nicely browned on the outside and tender and juicy in the center.

Chops to be at their best, should be broiled at moderate temperature. Thoroughly preheat the broiling oven with the regulator turned to "high" but be sure to place the chops on the rack so that there is a distance of about three inches between the top of the chops and the source of the heat. If this distance must be less, reduce the temperature accordingly so that the chops will broil at moderate temperature. When the chops are nicely browned on one side, season them with salt and pepper, turn them, and finish the cooking on the second side. Loin lamb chops, cut one inch thick, require about 15 minutes for broiling.

The chops should be served immediately after the broiling is completed while they are still puffed and piping hot. Warm both the serving platter and the plates so the chops will be hot when eaten.

Chops are in themselves deliciously flavored and do not need extra seasoning, but just for the sake of variety serve them with a bit of different seasoning. Horseradish cream is delicious served with chops. Make it this way.

HORSERADISH CREAM

Blend 1 tablespoon flour with 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Do not brown. Season with paprika, ½ teaspoon sugar, salt and a few drops of onion juice and about ½ cup of broth. Bouillon cube may be used to make the stock. Cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, then add ½ cup cream and 2 tablespoons grated horseradish and cook 10 minutes longer, stirring to prevent lumping. Serve while hot.

Chops are so versatile they can be served with most any kind of food. Here's a suggested menu which includes broiled lamb chops:

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice
Broiled Lamb Chops. Peas
Parsley Potatoes
Enriched White Bread Butter
Lemon Sherbet Cookies

For an especially good and easily prepared dessert, make the lemon sherbet. The recipe follows:

LEMON SHERBET

Boil together for 5 minutes, 2 cups sugar and 1 cup water. Fold this sirup into 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Add, beating in well, 1 cup lemon juice and 1 cup water. Pour into freezing tray and set cold control at fast freezing. Stir thoroughly after the first half hour. Return to the freezing compartment and finish freezing. Makes 10 servings.

MEMO TO MISS BROWN

SUBJECT:

Dancing School

Smile when you wipe the beads of perspiration from your eyebrows, you stay-at-home-and-swelter! You're much too energetic to take a count of 10 just because it's June. Much better you should get out and work up a little honest lather in a costume suited to same, and in a frame of mind more in keeping with a fun-full summer. Get into the nearest dancing class and see what new grace you can inject into your creaking joints in preparation for summer (and winter) gliding. It may not be a matter dear to your heart, but dancing is a delightful way to smooth off odd bumps—and summer, they say, is the easiest and quickest season for such trimmings.

Practically no one but you is tossing dancing into the ash heap for the summer. In fact, plenty of people are beginning at the beginning in the art, just for fun. Roosevelt Community Center, at Thirteenth and Upshur Streets Northwest, is conducing ballroom dancing classes every Monday at 8 o'clock in the gym, just for you who are inclined toward tripping at crucial moments on the dance floor. Also, if you're the spirit of grace, you may also become the spirit of 1943 with a few new and different steps in your routine.

On Thursdays Roosevelt Center gives, with square and folk dancing lessons—mostly for pure fun, but also a great boon to the circulation (social and physical). On Fridays there's South American dancing being taught at the same center; also at 8 o'clock. There's something about the rumba and tango which fit right into Washington climate, torrid business that it is, and knock-out conga technique is a popularity-snagger for any girl. On Wednesdays Roosevelt Community Center has a class in rhythmic dancing and exercises, strictly in the modern manner, which not only gives release to pent-up frenzies, but also serves as an opportunity for creative expression. What these leapings and twistings do for the waistline is a joy to behold.

Thomson Community Center, at Twelfth and L Streets Northwest, goes in for rhythmic dancing and exercises each Monday from 7 to 9:30 p. m. A few evenings of this and you'll be a new woman—and who knows, it may be an improvement!

If you're a night worker with recreational yearnings at early daytime hours, the U. S. O. Club at 1814 N Street (operated by National Catholic Community Service) is waiting for you with practically open arms, every Thursday from 1:30 to 3 p. m. There's ballroom dancing being taught and practiced then, all for the sake of your poise and agility. The same club is also looking out for ordinary nine-to-sixers on Fridays from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. In a similar and equally effective manner.

The Walsh Club for warworkers (and that's you) provides instruction in the three most graceful and gratifying dance forms of all—rumba, tango and waltz, on Wednesdays from 8:30 to 11 p. m. This class doubles as a fun session, after you've begun to catch on to the steps, and urges all comers to try their feet at the business without benefit of counting one, two, three.

Central Community Center (Thirteenth and Clifton Streets Northwest) is right in there pitching with two dance classes a week. There's rhythmic dancing instruction for the asking on Tuesdays at 7:30 p. m. in the girls' gym and ballroom dancing on the smooth side in the same space on Fridays at 8 p. m.

So you can't miss being the soul of grace and slimness this summer, Miss Brown, unless you shut your eyes to these better-than-golden opportunities.

Wobbly Chairs Can Be Repaired

Almost every household has a couple of chairs, tucked away in a closet or half-concealed in a corner, that are seldom used because they are wobbly. Rungs or joints are loose. If such chairs are used, they may cause serious accidents. Why not fix them now and put them back in use? Here are three ways to fix them:

Method 1. Remove loose rungs, scrape old glue off push-in dowel, scrape old glue from inside of hole, apply strong new glue, push in rung tightly, bind chair firmly with twine until glue has set and hardened.

Method 2. If rung fits too loosely for gluing, get small metal "rung-fasteners" at the hardware store counter, slip over end of dowel and push it into place.

Method 3. If several legs are unsteady, use either method 1 or 2 plus the attachment of X-shaped wire braces between legs. These are sold at low prices as "chair-bracing sets."

Make Pail Platform

To make a convenient platform for scrub pails, or other cleaning equipment that has to be moved from room to room, simply attach rollers to a piece of board about 15 inches square. It saves a lot of lifting, and makes cleaning easier.

Javanese Princess Is Only Woman Studying Radio at War Production Training Class Here

By Genevieve Reynolds

Down at the War Production Training Center, Ninth and H Street Southwest, you will find a petite, black-haired, brown-eyed girl making a radio. She's the only feminine member of the class. It's hot, plenty hot, in that sweltering room that boasts no fans or air conditioning. But she toils earnestly, apparently oblivious to the withering humidity.

Each day Raden Ajoe Abdulkadir Widjojoatmodo, a Javanese princess, comes to the class by bus or streetcar. Fully cognizant of the need for gas in the war effort, she refuses to use precious gasoline in her automobile. Usually she wears slacks and a three-quarter-length coat. Her only adornment is a family jewel—a necklace ruby. To her teacher and coworkers she is Widjo.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Radio is only one of her many interests . . . she thinks it is important to know during the war. The small graceful princess puts it thusly:

"I feel that the radio is taking an important part in communications between countries. I want to be able to teach my people to make their own and how to use them."

Then she quickly added: "Yes we had many radios in Java but they were expensive, too expensive for everybody."

To Return to Java

Her greatest ambition is to return to Java and help her people. When she refers to their sufferings and hardships now, her eyes fill with tears.

"You will think this interesting, yes?" she said rather plaintively.

"Well, 300 years ago a King of Java prophesied that yellow people would invade Java—but not for long. Look at that—not for long. Means they will not be there long, the Japs. It is a good omen—no?"

It is this conviction—firm belief in the prophecy—and destiny that gives the Javanese people hope and fortitude to carry on under the Jap subjection, according to Widjo, who pointed out that the Javanese people's attitude is to "live and let live. Always they are looking for inner of spiritual peace," she declared.

Looking realistically into the postwar era, the princess doubts if the peoples of the world will live in peace and harmony forever. "If people in small communities and families can't live together without quarreling, how can you expect nations to"? she asked rhetorically. "Still I hope," she sighed.

To Write a Book

Eager to know all and to do all, the princess wants to experience all phases of American life. She desires to know what the working woman thinks, how she lives, etc. When she left Java, she promised her friends and her people that she would write a book about her experiences in America.

As for the Javanese women's war work, she will tell you proudly that they had nurse's aide courses, Red Cross first aid, nutrition, etc., long before the women in the United States. Also, civilian defense was in full swing in 1939. The COVIM—an organization simliar to our WAACS and WAVES—played an important part in the defense of Java. The princess herself has taken all the Red Cross courses, served as block warden in Java. Since coming to the United States in 1942—three months before the Jap invasion—she has continued her war work. Between times lecturing and studying radio—she also wants to learn welding and work in a war production plant—she makes surgical dressings for the Red Cross. In New York, where she lived before coming to Washington recently, she did war work in voluntary shifts longer than her name. In her spare time, she tours the Western States as lecturer for the East-West Association, promoting morale and understanding for the Far East. At odd moments she sews for the Dutch children. Add to that a victory garden—which she plants and tends with her husband.

RATION POINTS

NOT MUCH HOPE is given civilians who have no telephones but want them. Thousands of telephones are needed on the battle fronts, yet only 10 per cent of the materials they consumed in 1941 are available this year for the telephone industry to carry on the greatest volume of business in its history. Because of this, further restrictions limiting the installation of telephones for civilians have been imposed by action of WPB.

Cottons Are Cool

Home-front cotton clothes today, as in the past, are popular for summer wear because they are washable. Most of them are color-fast and take repeated tubbings. The point to remember is, that while cotton is a sturdy fabric and can take a lot of punishment, not even colorfast dyes will stand up indefinitely under abuse. Avoid hot water, avoid hanging in the sun, and good cottons will keep their colors bright and clear for a long time.

THE GENTLER SEX

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE PICTURE

By Malvina Lindsay

Women storming the shoe stores to accumulate footwear they could do without . . . using gasoline to drive to parties . . . hoarding merchandise and patronizing black markets . . . whining about food rations, deliveries and the upset of their orderly little lives.

Not a pleasant picture. But wait! Here is another one.

Women working in noisy, steaming hot machine shops making shell cases . . . women gun crews testing guns and ammunition on remote and lonely firing ranges in cold, snow and all sorts of weather . . . women laboriously handling heavy tarpaulin, cutting and sewing it, putting metal rings in it to make Army tents . . . women cutting their hands, grinding dirt into them and breaking their fingernails in the making of hemp rope ladders . . . women loading and checking materials in noisy, open, unheated warehouses . . . women doing routine clerical work in areas and travelling on an average of 60 miles a day (some 100 miles) to and from their jobs . . . women sticking uncomplainingly to these hard, dirty, inglorious tasks eight hours a day, six days a week and devoting their nights and their Sundays to cooking, washing and doing the housework that many of their unemployed sisters today find "so difficult without a maid."

This second picture, based on the arduous and difficult work of women in the civilian service of the War Department has been

Mrs. Warwick B. Hobart, adviser on the employment of women to the director of civilian personnel and training, Office of the Secretary of War brought to Washington by Mrs. Warwick B. Hobart, adviser on employment of women to the director of the civilian personnel of the Office of the Secretary of War. Since her appointment about six months ago, Mrs. Hobart has been making a tour of inspection of the ordnance, chemical, aircraft and other War Department plants in which women are employed.

As former general secretary of the National Consumers League, Mrs. Hobart has long been familiar with the problems of women in industry. What she has seen among the women civilian employes of the War Department has given her new enthusiasm and hope for American women—especially those who have had intimate acquaintance with hard work.

"The women in the War Department plants are mostly those who had already learned the discipline of work, either through their homes or through factories and shops," said Mrs. Hobart. "They are now doing a magnificent job. But we have about reached the bottom on this supply of feminine labor. Now the woman of comparative leisure faces her testing. Can she, will she, take hold and do her part industrially? There are both clean and dirty jobs for women to do in the winning of this war. What is needed is the woman who will say 'I will do whatever job I can in my community within the limits of my ability.'"

Why were the women in the war plants doing their hard, dirty jobs so faithfully? Seeking an answer Mrs. Hobart as she went through the plants repeatedly asked, "Why are you here?" She had expected to hear the familiar retort, "I need the money." But instead nearly every woman replied, "My husband's in service," or "My boy friend went to war."

Over and over she was told by plant foremen that the woman with a man in service did the best work. In fact, in one plant the women in the inspection department, nearly all of whom had husbands overseas, were so unduly particular that they held up production.

Mrs. Hobart also found in many places praise for the older workers. "In the grinding of lenses for gun sights the older women have been a signal success," she said. "In this work, formerly done by men, they have raised the quality of production and increased the output."

Among other especially valuable workers have been the rugged young women from the mountain districts of Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina, who, familiar with firearms and inured to weather have formed the indomitable proof-firing crews to test guns and ammunition.

After the war, what of all these women? "Many will go home of course—if they have homes to go to," predicts Mrs. Hobart. "But we must face the fact that many women will have to keep on working. Moreover, in some industries women are turning out to be such superior workers that they will continue to dominate in those fields. For instance, aircraft assembly is becoming a woman's industry. Other industries will develop similarly. Women who need to stay on will find many new opportunities."

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Now that mothers are increasingly the breadwinners in the family, they have an opportunity to see life from father's side of the fence and appreciate what makes fathers tick.

They know now with what eagerness they turn toward home at night and what disappointment they feel when all they get, once they arrive, is a rehearsal of the children's misdeeds, or the smell of burning food, or an array of cross faces.

Many a father must say to himself, "Is it for this I spend my life and energy?"

Of course, there are fathers and fathers. Some debonaire, disloyal, selfish men grace neither the position of husband or father. A day devoted to honoring those men seems one misspent indeed.

But the vast majority of fathers seldom get the appreciation they deserve. Their lives, to their wives, look so desirable. Freedom to leave the problems of the home behind them each morning; the privilege of eating with friends each day and of associating with members of their own sex. This looks like unparalleled bliss.

Wives do not and never can know the nagging worm of insecurity. Suppose they can't pay their life insurance premiums! Suppose they lose their jobs, where would they turn at their time or life? Where to get the money to straighten Bob's teeth or pay for Mom's fur coat, or pay the school tuition for talented daughter, or buy a new davenport or fence in the back yard so baby son won't run away, or pay the loan at the bank or keep up the mortgage and pay taxes?

Where, where indeed?

For weeks and months go by without any appreciable sum being laid away for that day when sickness, operations, layoffs and old age will eat into the paycheck, leaving nothing.

Dads, everywhere, bear these burdens. Mothers worry and skimp and save, but in the end it is the man who earns the money who must feel responsible for what that money can or cannot do.

Look around at the fathers you know and you'll find far more angels than devils among them. Men who work hard, wear old clothes while their women get the new ones, who get a night off with the "boys" occasionally (and never hear the last of it) and who get their satisfactions out of pride in their modest homes and families and never beef about the good fortune or the excitements and thrills of life which have passed them by.

It's very little to devote one day a year to a heartfelt appreciation of good old dad.

News of the Women's Clubs

The Washington Girl Scout day camps will offer several new activities this summer to keep in step with the times and to help prepare girls to participate more fully in the Nation's wartime program. Special emphasis will be placed upon physical fitness, which will include rhythm work, the ability to relax and the development of muscle and organic strength. Group singing will be a part of the daily schedule, especially the singing of patriotic songs. Appreciation of America's culture and the contribution she has made to the arts, sciences and world affairs will be stressed. Also emphasis will continue to be placed upon the out-of-doors and the training of girls in resourcefulness and clear vision.

All five of the Washington districts will hold day camps. Districts 1, 3 and 5 will have two sessions of two weeks each and Districts 2 and 4 will hold one two-week session.

District 1 day camp will be held at Fort Dupont from 9:30 to 4 p. m. each Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from July 6 to July 30.

District 2 day camp will meet at Fort Kemble every Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., beginning July 6 and ending July 16.

District 3 will hold their day camp at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center from 9:30 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. each Tuesday through Friday from June 29 to July 23.

District 4 will hold their day camp at Sligo Park from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., each Tuesday through Friday from July 6 to July 30.

District 5 will have their day camp at Fort Bunker Hill each Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m., beginning July 6 and ended July 16.

The camps are open to both Scouts and non-Scouts between the ages of 7 and 18.

Miss Barbara Phinney, Girl Scout staff member, is in charge of the day camps and will supervise the work in all of the districts. Mrs. Harlan H. Ballard will be camp director for District 1; Mrs. Mauricio Markmann is in charge of the day camp for District 2; Mrs. C. P. Conrad, District 3; Mrs. W. B. Brown, District 4, and Mrs. Raymond Michero, District 5.

Honoring Fathers

Scores of fathers soon will be hearing from their sons and daughters, and really hearing with their ears, because tonight, in celebration of Father's Day tomorrow, many of Washington's USO Clubs are offering them long-distance telephone prizes and recording machines into which they can "talk" letters to be mailed to Dad.

The thousands of young men and women in the services who will be attending the scheduled dances, suppers and games will find machines available for special greetings to father at the USOs operated by the Y. M. C. A. at 1736 G Street Northwest; by the Y. W. C. A. in the Ingram Memorial Congregational Church, Tenth and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest, and the Eastern Presbyterian Church, Seventh and Maryland Avenue Northeast; by the Jewish Welfare Board at Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest, and by the National Catholic Community Service at 1814 N Street Northwest, 918 Tenth Street Northwest and 1912 North Capitol Street.

Lucky numbers, not distance, will be determining factors in door prize awards that will bring Dad's voice by telephone to servicemen guests at parties tonight in USOs in the G Street Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army quarters at Eighth and Market Place Northwest, and the Jewish Community Center, Sixteenth and Q Streets Northwest. At the YM dance three calls will be awarded, to a soldier, a sailor and a marine. The two other clubs, as at previous parties, are offering the calls as a door prize for one lucky man in uniform.

Monday's Activities

Monday's calendar is chock full of places to go and things to do. Recreation and hospitality committee of the DUPONT AREA CIVILIAN MOBILIZATION will hold a party deck on the roof of Scott's Hotel, 2131 O Street Northwest. A musical program featuring the Sophocles Papas String Trio will be one of the highlights of the event. During the summer months a variety of programs on the roof will take the place of the winter "Meet the World in Washington Series." . . . Dr. Eveline Burns, director of the National Resources Planning Board of Social Security will be guest speaker at the WOMAN'S NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CLUB'S luncheon, 12:30 p. m. at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire Avenue. Miss Helen Gaines, former art student at Corcoran Art School, will introduce a summer course in painting and sketching at the Jewish Community Center, 8 p. m. At the same time Muriel Cohen, violinist, will meet with anyone interested in continuing musical programs or classes.

Mary Haworth's Mail

appears every day except Saturday in the women's pages. Tomorrow, in Section IV, Miss Haworth considers the problem of a wife whose dynamic social energies are straitjacketed by her theory that she must "keep home fires burning," while her husband crusades for Allied victory.

Club Year Extended

Because of the desire to continue its work toward the war effort the Junior Woman's Club of Chevy Chase has decided to extend the club year through June and July.

The general meeting for June will be held at the Clubhouse on Monday, June 21. The meeting will consist of Red Cross sewing followed by a brief business meeting.

Mrs. Woodhouse To Speak to Group

Monday Will Be Moving Day For Red Cross Workshop

Larger Quarters Donated to Volunteer Group Who Are Asking for Supplies

As a fitting reward for several months' hard work, the Red Cross camp and hospital workshop is going to have a new home. On Monday they will move from the Printcraft Building to larger headquarters in Linthicum Hall at 3120 O Street. With thanks to Walter Peter, head of the board of trustees of Linthicum Hall, the popular new Red Cross service has found "lodging" for the duration. There they will continue their program of furnishing day rooms and recreation facilities for nearby camps.

In its infancy just last fall, this novel venture in amateur housing has grown out of proportion to its allotted space and will now have more room in which to expand. For the many camps that have sprung up around Washington, together with the many additions to the established camps and hospitals, the Red Cross workshop has been an answer to a prayer. Soldiers move into a new barracks provided with all the necessities of life but with none of the "trimmings" that go to make a little recreation spot seem like home. Curtains, comfortable chairs, tables, desks, maybe a piano and a radio go a long way to avoid an AWOL.

The need for this type of furnishings has been so constant that it has been a continuous scramble to keep up the supply. To simplify the moving, a supreme effort has been made to renovate and get out of the way as many furnishing as possible. So come Monday—and moving day—the cupboard will be bare!

All Contributions Gratefully Received

That's where the person who is doing her spring and early summer cleaning comes in. The Red Cross workshop needs sturdy chairs and sofas, Gibson Island furnishings, card tables, larger tables, desks, and lamps. Maybe there are a lot of things that the housewife can't seem to find a place for but which are too good to throw away. In that event, give them to the Red Cross workshop. But don't use that as a means to get rid of junk—the ladies who work hard on the project three or four days of every week don't want things they can't use. Radios and victrolas in working order; old records or broken ones that can be replaced or sold; ping pong tables and equipment, sewing and washing machines, electric fans and irons, flat-irons, musical instruments, harmonicas and "sweet potatoes"—all these they can use.

At this time about 30 day rooms for the able-bodied soldiers and 12 sun rooms for the convalescents are in need of furniture. So the work ahead will be demanding. The Red Cross is the liaison between the Army, Navy and the public. The camp and hospital committee receives the list of needs through the Red Cross Field Director who, in turn, has consulted with the special services officers of the particular camp.

Summer means no let-up for the volunteers. They work on a schedule equivalent to that of the soldiers themselves. Totaling almost 500 hours in May, these volunteers made 105 pairs of curtains (one 72-year-old worker made over 300 pairs of curtains last winter) and many cushions, conquered broken springs and sway-backed upholstery, made innumerable slip covers, painted furniture and sorted records and cards.

Mrs. Lee Warren Is Chairman

Aiding the volunteers to pick up donations are the CHUMS, "Camp and Hospital Useful Men," a group of night firemen who call at the District Red Cross and join the Motor Corps members who drive the camp and hospital truck.

Individual donors as well as organizations who might wish to take over a day room as a project are urged to get in touch with the group at REpublic 8300, Extension 422, and have a part in this business of bringing untold pleasure and comfort to the men at the ports, batteries and hospitals in this vicinity.

Chairman of the workshop is Mrs. Lee Warren, who is assisted by Mrs. John Person, vice chairman, and Mrs. Frederick Van Nuys, purchasing agent. Mrs. Ernest B. Kitchen, Mrs. M. M. Dawson, Mrs. Mae Richards, Mrs. Lois A. Miller, Mrs. R. E. Smyser, Mrs. J. C. Christian, Mrs. Louis Naisawald, Mrs. D. S. Glasgow, Mrs. Cabot Lodge, Mrs. Peter Gerry, Mrs. John Walker and Mrs. James Clement Dunn are among other members of the organization.

They met in a lifeboat, and now they are Capt. and Mrs. Stewart Hutchins.

It was just a year ago in June that a Britain-bound freighter was torpedoed off Bermuda, and Captain Hutchins of the U. S. Army Air Forces found himself rocking over the waves in a lifeboat with Miss Margaret E. Moore of England, who was on her way back home. And last Thursday in London, their wedding took place.

"Come On 17 and 18, Mama Needs a Pair of New Shoes"

Barefoot Bridegroom to Be New Fashion Soon, "The Little Woman" Takes All the Shoe Coupons

By Elizabeth Henney

The bridegroom's lot is not a happy one these days, at least when it comes to shoes. He generally has to fork over that precious coupon to the "little woman" so she can buy a pair of shoes to wear down the aisle. Just what HE wears doesn't seem to be bothering the wartime bride at all.

As a matter of fact, the coupon situation can precipitate all sorts of crises during the trousseau and wedding weeks. Take for example the case of the bridegroom of a week or so ago, who found himself in hot water with his mother and the bride-to-be. Both of them wanted his precious Coupon No. 17. Whether or not the ultimatum was "no coupon, no wedding," wasn't revealed, but the bride got the shoes.

Neither parents, relatives or good old "friends of the family" are safe these days when a bride goes on a shoe rampage. And at one of the more prominent weddings of the past week the mother of the bride had to hobble down the aisle in shoes that hurt. They'd been borrowed from a friend because daughter had all the coupons in the family.

The Lowly Mule Has His Day

One current bride is pretty well supplied with shoes. She has all "those little tickets" from mother, dad, grandmother, bridegroom, and from an old bachelor friend of her dad's who unfortunately came to call on the family a few days before the wedding. He was practically held up and shaken loose from his coupon before he was allowed to leave the house.

But, as one bride wails, "Even if you can corral the coupons, finding shoes anywhere in town is another problem. And it's no longer a case of deciding you'll get shoes to match certain outfits; you're to be congratulated if you can get them of any shade or shape that fit your foot."

Washington has, during the June bridal season, developed a sudden shortage of mules (you know, those elegant satin bedroom slippers with fancy toe effects and no heels). Most of the mules are going down various church aisles on bridesmaids' feet. Brides, too, have been, until the past couple of weeks, getting white satin mules for wedding slippers. That is out now, because, according to a number of brides, there are no more white satin mules in town; and brides of the moment are borrowing, wherever possible, slippers of the brides of yesteryear.

"Come and Bring Your Coupons Darling"

But it's the mother of the bride who suffers and grows gray day by day during the wedding preparations. Her problems range all the way from trying to get some store, any store, to take orders for bridal gowns and bridesmaids' outfits, and get them delivered in time, to the business of getting together with the mothers of other brides who will be married in the same church that day and conferring about the floral decorations for the church, because most florists will decorate a church only once a day now, no matter how many weddings take place that day.

One bride gushed happily a few days ago: "Mother, darling, we'll be awfully glad, since we're going to live in Washington, to come to dinner often with you and Dad. Just any time." To which "mother, darling" replied sweetly: "Come any time you like, dear; we're always delighted to have you both, but be sure to bring your food coupons every time you do."

War bonds are showing up in wedding presents in increasing numbers, and checks for the happy couple from relatives. Other than that, sliver, china and glassware form, as of old, the bulk of the wedding gifts. There doesn't seem to be any sudden rush toward practical gifts, mostly because they are so very hard to get. But as one bride wailed, surveying a magnificent display of silver bowls, platters and candelabra, "They're beautiful, but why, oh, why, doesn't someone give us a washing machine and an electric iron?"

Lieut. Arthur Vandenberg, jr., son of Senator and Mrs. Vandenberg, has been in Washington for a few days and left yesterday to return to duty at Camp MacDill, Tampa Fla.

Mrs. Calvin Cobb has come to the Wardman Park Hotel from her home in Annapolis, Md., to be with her son, Midshipman Calvin Cobb, jr., who is on leave from the Naval Academy. Her son, Warrington C. Cobb, is also visiting here. Mrs. Cobb is making her home in Annapolis while Admiral Cobb is on sea duty.

Gen. and Mrs. John L. Hines have left Washington for the summer and opened their home, Rocky Gap, in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Nelson Rockefeller, the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, left Thursday for the West Coast, where he is scheduled to make some speeches. He is expected to return to the Capital the middle of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Theodore Pierson have as their house guest in their home in Briarcliff his mother, Mrs. Eunice L. Pierson of Humboldt, Iowa. She will be with them about a month.

Mrs. Richard W. Jones, who has been spending some time with her husband, an aviation cadet at the University of Cincinnati, will return today to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Riesley, Twin Springs, Vienna, Va. Cadet Jones has been transferred to a field in Texas. His wife is the former Miss Frances Riesley. Their wedding took place June 5 in the Knox Presbyterian Church, Cincinnati.

Silliman Evans, formerly of Washington, now of Chicago, is here for a brief stay at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Robert Brent of Lynchburg, Va., and Mrs. John Clarkson of Colleen, Va., were guests this week of their cousin, Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, at her home on Jefferson Street. Mrs. Brent and Mrs. Clarkson are daughters of Mrs. Nannie Lee Higginbotham Carter and the late Judson Thornhill Carter of Carter Hall, Nelson County, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Kahn are spending the week in New York, their former home.

About the Showshops

Of Openings and Revivals; Some Admirable Examples In Both Categories

Under a bombardment of requests from patrons for revivals of Frank Capra pictures, the Pix Theater is capitulating to the handsome extent of booking seven of them. Beginning with "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," which will be shown on June 30 and thereafter, the series will include "Lady For a Day," "It Happened One Night," "Lost Horizon," "Broadway Bill," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," and "You Can't Take It With You."

Several of these films have been shown at the Pix fairly recently, but continuing requests indicate that these showings did not take care of all the people who wanted to see them again, or who missed them when they were first shown. The Pix found it interesting that most of the requests were not for specific Capra films, but just for "a Capra picture." Most directors are not known by name to the public, but the consistent excellence of Capra's films made him an exception to the rule. Inasmuch as the only new Capra pictures we will see for the duration will be such G. I. products as his excellent "Prelude to War," these revivals ought to be welcomed by those filmgoers who like the lieutenant colonel's brand of escape.

New Prints, Too

Incidentally, the prints to be shown are all new—the first time, we are told, that Columbia has made up such a set of new prints for old releases.

And that reminds us, though we don't know why it should, that beginning Wednesday, the Pix will show a noteworthy French film, "Kreutzer Sonata," which has not previously been seen here.

Beside the opening of "It's Up to You," previously announced for Tuesday, another nonprofessional opening is scheduled for next week. It is "The Country Squire" which will be given at Leland High School, Elm and Forty-fourth Streets, Chevy Chase, Md., next Friday and Saturday. The show is a musical melodrama.

The Legion of Decency, it says in the letter, has revised its classification of "Lady of Burlesque." The film now rates a "B," which means, the letter goes on to say, objectionable in part." Well, you weren't going to take the kiddies anyway, were you?

Comes by the morning mail a thick, blue-covered manuscript from Oscar Micheaux at the Book Supply Co. in New York, with an explanatory letter. It turns out to be a play on inter-racial relations, with fourteen songs and as many scenes as a Shakespearean production. Paul Robeson has been invited to play the leading role, says the letter. A mildly Saroyanesque note on the flyleaf proclaims "Unlike any novel you have ever read; unlike any play you have ever seen. Title, incidentally, is "Wind from Nowhere."

Might be another "Native Son," just possibly.

We might as well say now as any time later that for our money the two stars of "Stage Door Canteen," opening next week at the Palace, are Katharine Cornell and Gypsy Rose Lee. Miss Cornell does the "Swear not by the moon" scene from "Romeo and Juliet," with engaging young Lon McCallister, over a food counter, holding up the line waiting for sandwiches and oranges; and Gypsy Rose Lee does a strip tease, discoursing the while on what strangely high-minded reflections pass through an "artiste's" mind as she "takes it off."

Always Kidding

Sabu, playing a Peck's Bad Boy of the South Seas in the current Technicolor film "White Savage," at RKO-Keith's, is teamed again with Maria Montez and Jon Hall. During the making of the film he earned his chevrons as a corporal in the California Militia Cavalry.

LEONARD LYONS

Times Square Tattle

New York, June 18.

Myrna Loy went to Washington to find some war work in which she possibly could serve. An appointment finally was arranged for her with a vice admiral in charge of one of our major fleets. The screen star suggested that perhaps the Navy could use her services as an entertainer . . . The admiral listened politely, and then asked: "Just what is it that you do, Miss Loy?" . . . "I am a Hollywood screen actress," Myrna replied, then caught her breath and added: "And just what is it that you do, admiral?"

MYRNA LOY

William Horne, who was the tenor in Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army," has received his discharge—and now he will sing all the leading roles for the Philadelphia Opera Company . . . Dr. Margaret Mead, the noted anthropologist, is going to England, to lecture there for the OWI . . . Ben Hecht has written a screen play around Billy Rose's Aquacade. Rose is asking $275,000 for it—$25,000 for every million persons who saw the show at the World's Fair. That show played to 11 million customers . . . Warner Bros. will buy the title of a book of short stories, "In Our Time," written by Ernest Hemingway many years ago. Just the title.

Three years ago, when Dorothy Gish and Louis Calhern played in a road company of "Life With Father," Calhern's understudy was Edwin Cooper. For 50 weeks Cooper remained with the show, but never had a chance to go on . . . Cooper now has a role in Maxwell Anderson's "The Eve of St. Mark." Monday night he received word that Harry Bannister, playing father in "Life With Father" at the Empire Theater, was too ill to appear. Two years had passed since Cooper last practiced the lines he never had been given a chance to utter. "I'll remember them," he promised—and substituted for Bannister. He played it flawlessly.

This week, for the second time in a year, the Saturday Evening Post will start publishing a serial by Martha Albrand . . . Martha Albrand began her writing career in Germany, under the name of Katrin Holland. That career was interrupted for a while when the Nazis demanded that she divorce her husband . . . When Ad Schulberg, the movie agent, went to Paris to settle the differences between Universal Films and Danielle Darrieux, she met Miss Holland there. And when Ad left Paris, all her friends came to bid her farewell. She said goodby to all of them, noticeably to Miss Holland. Two days later those friends learned that Miss Holland was at sea—sharing Ad Schulberg's cabin. Ad brought her here, where she renewed her career under a new name, Martha Albrand.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor went to see "Oklahoma" a few weeks ago and arrived after the curtain was up. They had to stand in the rear for a while. "The curtain goes up promptly," they were told, "and no one may be seated until the first scene is over." The Windsors waited, and discovered that the first scene is 12 minutes long . . . Last night they again went to see "Oklahoma." This time they didn't repeat their first mistake, and so they didn't have to stand in the rear. The Windsors—who paid $13 each for their tickets—avoided the necessity of waiting not by arriving promptly, but by coming 15 minutes late.

When Tallulah Bankhead, Fredric March and Florence Eldridge were in "The Skin of Our Teeth," and the show grossed $21,000 a week, the profit was only $2600. Now, with Miriam Hopkins and Conrad Nagel as replacements, when the show grosses $16,000 a week, the profit is still $2600. This because of the unusual percentage arrangements which had been made with the three original stars . . . Two people now in America claim to have a parchment signed by Otto and Zita, bestowing a count's title in postwar Austria . . . George K. Arthur, the movie actor who starred in "Rookies," and veteran of the last war, has been promoted to second lieutenant.

A story is being told of a draftee who needed a minor nose treatment. "As long as you're the one who discovered this," he told his draft board doctor, "how about you doing the treatment?" The doctor told him to report at his office the next morning . . . When he arrived, the doctor said: "Go into the next room and remove all your clothes" . . . "Just for a nose treatment?" the patient protested. The doctor repeated: "Remove all your clothes." The man went into the adjoining room and removed his clothes. There he saw a stranger, nude, holding a package. "All I need is a minor nose treatment," the draftee told him, "and the doc makes me take off all my clothes" . . . "That's nothing," sighed the nude stranger. "I just came to deliver a bundle."

New Films Give Glamour Gals Training as Commandos

By Melrose Gower

Hollywood, June 18.—Rosie the Riveter isn't the only girl in America who has discovered in recent months that muscles can ache and flesh cry out in anguished answer to the call of daily duties.

The sirens of the silver sheet are using liniment, also.

Not since the days of such serial queens as Pearl White, Ruth Roland and Helen Holmes have the feminine frailties of Hollywood stars been exposed to such punishment. There was a cycle, it will be remembered, of sophisticated comedies in which the fair ones were slapped, kicked and dunked—but that was dainty drawing-room stuff.

Today the glamour girls really have to suffer for their art, go through strain and stress and misery, in scenes the very sight of which would make a sister of the Gay Nineties droop in a ladylike swoon.

Writers Go Sadistic

It's happening at every studio, as examples to follow will indicate. Your correspondent was amazed, however, at the sadistic attitude toward the fair sex displayed by screen writers on the RKO-Radio lot. These fiends in human form have, with ghoulish glee, devised tortures for hapless film femmes that old Torquemada of Spanish Inquisition notoriety overlooked entirely.

Margo, lovely Latin-American star, is playing the role of a slant-eyed Tokyo maiden in "Behind the Rising Sun." All the scenes are laid in Japan, and Margo swears that every second page of the script calls for her to be seated Japanese-fashion — not cross-legged, but with all her weight on her extended-to-the-rear lovely "gams." That's delightful to a native of Nippon, but it's murder to an American.

In fact, James R. Young, noted newspaper correspondent who spent 13 years in Japan and wrote the best - seller on which the picture is based, declares that the Japanese torture their white prisoners by making them sit thus for agonizing hours on end.

In "The Seventh Victim," Evelyn Brent has to play the part of a one-armed hostess. As such, her left arm was bound tightly behind her, and she had to learn to shuffle and deal cards with her right hand only. Repeatedly the scene was shot to get it perfect—only someone forgot to release the pressure on Evelyn's left arm between "takes," the poor gal darn near fainted, and a half-hour had to be spent massaging the throbbing member.

Joan Fontaine had a tough time of it in Paramount's "Frenchman's Creek," crawling time and again on hands and knees along the face of a jagged cliff; also she was trussed up and carried aboard a pirate ship, likewise she had to swim under water to cut boats loose in a harbor.

In "So Proudly We Hail," Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake had to carry stretchers burdened with heavy men, rowboats, dive headlong to the ground to escape bursting bombs, rush into a burning building and toss blazing timbers aside in rescue work.

"Toil and Trouble"

Over at Metro, Greer Garson is playing the title role in "Mme. Curie," a part which might not be expected to involve any particular physical misery. However, she became not a little on the ailing side after playing a scene showing her working over pots of boiling pitchblende.

For a fact, if the scenarists don't call a halt to their devilish machinations, the life of a feminine film star will soon be on a parallel with that of Solomon Grundy. Remember?

"Solomon Grundy, born on a Monday, christened on Tuesday, married on Wednesday, took ill on Thursday, worse on Friday, died on Saturday, buried on Sunday—this is the end of Solomon Grundy."

HEDDA HOPPER

A Happy Four Weeks

Hollywood, June 18. — Gracie Fields is up for the mother role, a sympathetic character, in "National Velvet," which will star that adorable Elizabeth Taylor . . . Eddie Goulding's picture "Claudia" is a gem. So is Bill Goetz's "Song of Bernadette" . . . Two studios are bidding on Betty Smith's story, "A Tree Grown in Brooklyn" . . . Trudy Erwin denies she's going to have a baby. Trudy's trained her younger brother, Roy, who wanted to join a circus as a rough rider. Yes, he got the job . . . It's in the future, but Claudette Colbert may costar with Humphrey Bogart in "Nobody Lives Forever." Wouldn't be bad, either . . . It's virtually in the bag that Bob Alda, a burlesque comedian, will play George Gershwin.

BONITA GRANVILLE

Silly, What?

How do you like the statement of Mary Anderson about her coming divorce from Helmut Dantine that a year's separation was the cause of it? How about the wives of the Army, Navy and Marines? . . . Sam Bischoff is trying to tempt Helen Hayes to play "Mother's Day" on Broadway. Doesn't he know Helen's set for at least three years in "Harriett"? Now that Margaret Sullivan is half-way through "Cry Havoc," she can't figure out why she said "Yes." She's ready for another retirement . . . Louis Calhern of "Life With Father" plays an Army colonel in Danny Kaye's "Up in Arms" . . . Nick Schenck's future brother-in-law will be Actor John Warburton, who is to marry Mrs. Schenck's sister, Ruth Selwyn, former wife of Edgar Selwyn.

Have a Care

I asked Nunnally Johnson, who's doing a script on "Keys of the Kingdom," how they were going to get around the Catholic element. He said, "I've talked with many priests about it. When the script's finished, I'm taking it back to Washington to confer with a bishop and will be guided entirely by his opinion." Nunnally would like to see Orson Welles, not only as a producer, but cast as Father Chisholm. There's a deal cooking between Joe Schenck and Orson for a producer's berth with Twentieth Century . . . The last scene for "This Is the Army" happened in a canteen—it was an eating contest between Joe Louis and Ezra Stone. Joe drank eight bottles of milk to Ezra's five, but Stone beat him on doughnuts, 15 to 3. "This Is the Army" opens at the Hollywood Theater in New York, July 23.

Still Signing

Constance Dowling's sister has been signed by David Selznick. The sister's name has been changed to Stacy Kerrin . . . Speaking of David, he wouldn't have to make pictures. He's got a lend-lease business with stars under contract that pays him both ways. When he lent Ingrid Bergman for "Casablanca," he got Olivia de Havilland in exchange. Having no picture for her, he sold her to R-K-O for $125,000, with a nice profit of around $100,000 . . . In order to go overseas, Kay Kyser's doing three pictures at once. His eyes are turned in the direction of the South Pacific instead of England. Kane Richmond was so good as the officer of the gun crew in "Action in North Atlantic," he should have gotten screen credit. It undoubtedly will bring him other parts.

Finis

Second Lieut. Tim Holt writes from Victorville airfield: "Recently there have been several articles linking by name with that of Bonita Granville. There has been a decided improvement in my status. I was lucky enough to effect a reconciliation with my wife and she's joined me here. We're very happy, and when those little articles about Bonita show up it causes a bit of strain; so I wish you'd deny them" . . . Remember Louise Dresser? On June 17 she and Jack Gardner celebrate their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary. Their know-it-all friends gave them four weeks. Says Louise, "These 35 years have been the happiest 4 weeks of my life."

Kenneth MacGowan notes that "Greer Garson's divorce from Edward Alev Snelson reminds me of a tremendous rubber tobacco pouch Claude King used to carry. He thought I wanted to buy one and being helpful turned it over on its side and there was the name and address 'Pelican Snelson, 16 Shoplifter Street, Shrewsbury, Shropshire, England'

Big Board Against Plan

Members of the New York Stock Exchange have defeated a second proposal to admit corporations as members on the grounds that such a change would benefit neither the public nor the exchange, due to the limited liability of corporate groups.

In a poll conducted among the members the proposal was turned down by a verdict of 2 to 1, the exchange announced.

Many members expressed the view that little new business would be gained by opening membership to corporations and that corporations would be likely to continue dealing in the over-the-counter market.

Childs Co. Creditors Seek Reorganization

New York, June 18 (AP).—Creditors whose claims aggregate in excess of $12,000 filed in Federal Court today a petition seeking a reorganization of the Childs Co., operator of about 50 restaurants in the New York metropolitan area and additional restaurants in 11 States and the District of Columbia.

The petition, filed under provisions of chapter 10 of the National Bankruptcy Act, stated that assets listed in a consolidated report to stockholders as of December 31, 1942, were inflated considerably insofar as a liquidation value was concerned.

Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind signed an order restraining the prosecution of individual suits and rejoining payment of judgments pending conclusion of the reorganization petition.

3 Rock Island Stocks Taken Off Big Board

New York, June 18 (AP).—The common and 6 and 7 per cent preferred stocks of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co., have been suspended from dealings on the New York Stock Exchange because the three stocks have been excluded from participation in approved reorganization plans for the company. Bonds of the Rock Island will continue on the list.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 18 (AP).—A firm undertone prevailed in all grain pits today, although trading dwindled in the absence of any concrete news developments. Short-covering and commission house buying pushed wheat up a cent at one time, but some of this gain was lost later when a little hedging pressure appeared.

At the close wheat was up ⅛ to ⅝ cent, July 1.43⅝, September 1.43@1.43⅝; corn was unchanged at ceilings, July 1.05; oats were up ¼ to ½ and rye was ahead ½ to ⅞.

Strength in all pits appeared to be based upon a report Chester Davis, war food administrator, may ask for an abandonment of ceiling prices on corn. An upward move in corn probably would be reflected in other grains, it was reasoned, and traders who had previously gone short decided to cover until some clarity was brought into the corn tangle.

Stocks Drift Irregularly in Torpid Trade

By the Associated Press

New York, June 18.—Selected stocks made idle passes at recovery in today's market, but many loafers failed to emerge from the losing column.

Again the session was one of the slowest of the year despite a few large blocks of low-priced issues. Prices slipped after a fairly good opening. There were scattered come backs near the finish. Declines and gains of fractions to a point or more were pretty evenly divided at the close.

The War Labor Board decision in the coal mine case came a bit too late to have much influence on trends, although U. S. Steel and Bethlehem, under water most of the day, ended with minor advances. Buyers generally remained on the conservative side pending more important developments and light on possibly new administrative antiinflation moves.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .1 of a point at 50.5. Of 826 issues traded, 307 were down, 305 up and 214 unchanged. Transfers of 682,590 shares were the smallest for a full session since January 20. They compared with 740,670 Thursday.

Childs Co. stocks and bonds fell sharply when creditors filed a petition for reorganization of the company. A special offering of 19,000 shares of Commercial Investment Trust at 41½ was quickly absorbed, but the stock, in regular transactions, ended at 41.

Standard Oil of California slipped ⅞ in the wake of Secretary Knox's announcement that steps would be taken to terminate the Navy's contract with this concern for operation of the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve.

Railway bonds did better in spots. At Chicago wheat was up ⅛ to ⅝ of a cent a bushel and hogs steady after an early stumble. Cotton was unchanged to down 10 cents a bale.

Erie R. R. Revenues Set Record in May

Cleveland, June 18 (AP).—Erie Railroad operating revenues for May were $13,627,140, which President R. E. Woodruff described today as the largest for any month in the road's history. That compares with $11,542,133 for the same month of 1942.

This May's net income was $1,342,683 against $1,305,398, bringing the five-month net to $5,196,633 on gross of $63,744,798, against $5,017,884 on $51,962,353 gross.

District Man, With Rangers, Ready for Fray

The commando training course which prepared him to be a Ranger made Pvt. Henry C. Aaron, 23 of Washington "want to go into action to take things easy."

Aaron, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Aaron of 318 Thirteenth Street Northeast, volunteered for the Rangers while receiving prebattle training in England and recently was graduated from a British commando training school in the Scottish highlands.

When he finally achieved the insignia of the Rangers, he commented, "I learned more about soldiering than I would have done in a lifetime. I didn't think anything could be so rugged."

Aaron, for instance, learned how to scale 100 feet of rock cliff without ropes and slide across a river 50 feet in the air—and then relaxed on a speed march walking and running from 9 to 15 miles.

"It was an ordeal of fire and water," he said. "When bullets weren't being sent at us, throwing dirt in our faces, we had to put up with the weather. We were never comfortable. But we were mighty proud when we graduated."

Aaron was inducted in April, 1941, and reached Great Britain about a year later. A former assistant to a golf pro, he attended Paul Junior High and Roosevelt High School here.

'Had to Do It,' Says Marine Who Shot Down 3 Zeros

Somewhere in the South Pacific, (Delayed)—Captain Hunter Reinburg, U. S. M. C., 1427 Scott Drive, Arlington, Va., a Marine fighter pilot, tells in a matter-of-fact manner how he became separated from the "other boys" in his squadron in a scramble with Jap Zeros over Guadalcanal and was immediately surrounded by six enemy planes.

"When you get in a spot like that," Captain Reinburg says, "the only way to get out is to fight your way out. I had to down three Zeros to do it. Luckily, I didn't get touched."

A member of a fighter unit, Captain Reinburg, 24, won his wings February 14, 1941, was selected for the Marine Corps and later sent to the South Pacific. A month later he was promoted to first lieutenant.

After graduation from Western High School in Washington, D. C., Captain Reinburg attended the University of Virginia for three years.

In addition to knocking down three Jap planes, Captain Reinburg has been credited with the destruction of seven enemy aircraft on the ground.

Popes' Peace Principles Are Published

By the Associated Press

Chicago, June 18.—Publication of "Principles for Peace," a 800-page compilation of pronouncements by the recent Popes on peace, war and human rights, was announced today by the Most Rev. Samuel A. Stritch, Archbishop of Chicago and chairman of the bishops' committee on the Pope's peace points.

The Vatican documents, in chronological order from 1878 to the present, cover the encyclicals, letters, allocutions and radio broadcasts of Pope Leo XIII, Pius X, Benedict XV, Pius XI and Pius XII.

In the preface, Archbishop Stritch said the work presented only the broad principles of peace.

"Some may be disappointed," he wrote, "in finding that these statements are not detailed specific applications of principles to particular political problems of our times. They forget that the Church recognizes and defends the independence and sovereignty of the state in its own sphere and that the Popes do not enter the domain of statesmen."

Speaking as an American religious leader, Archbishop Stritch wrote:

"Our country has proclaimed its war objectives—the defense of the four freedoms and the making of them the basis for neighborly international collaboration. This is the language of honest peacemakers . . . We shall not attempt to impose our political institutions on other nations.

Turning to comment on the United Nation's postwar program and the papal peace plan, he said:

"When the Pope's peace plan is read and studied in the light of these statements, it is clear that it offers to statesmen a safe guide in formulating the peace in justice and charity which we are demanding as the fruits of our victory. Our own peace aims, which are enunciated only in large outline, are complemented and supplemented by the papal plan. Not only is there no contradiction between our aims and the papal plan, but that plan comprehends our aims and gives them the weight of sound philosophy and moral right."

5 Women on Jury

Viereck Goes On Trial for Second Time

The second trial of George Sylvester Viereck began in District Court yesterday upon charges that he had failed to register all of his activities as an agent of the German government.

Viereck was convicted in 1941 on the same charges but the United States Supreme Court reversed the conviction on technical grounds.

A jury of seven men and five women was selected in a two-hour court session yesterday morning to hear the case before Justice Bolitha J. Laws.

Questioned Extensively

The jurors were subjected to extensive questioning by Justice Laws, who on common consent of counsel asked questions prepared by the defense.

In his first conviction, Viereck was sentenced to serve 2 to 6 years in prison. He had served approximately one year when the conviction was reversed.

The Government is represented by George McNulty and Albert Arent, special assistants to the Attorney General. Viereck is represented by Leo Rover, former United States Attorney, and John Wilson, former assistant United States Attorney. Both were appointed by Justice Laws when Viereck told him recently he could not afford to hire a lawyer.

McNulty Outlines Case

In his opening statement to the jury, McNulty said that he would prove that Viereck had concealed his association with the German government and the foreign office of that government. He said that he would show that Viereck had constant dealings with the German embassy here and a number of the German consulates.

Jurors were asked if they knew Dillard Stokes, a former reporter with the Washington Post, now in the armed services, who figured prominently in obtaining the information on which the conspiracy indictments were brought.

Licensing Ordered For Small Boats; New Rules Monday

Licensing of all small boats, those under 100 feet in length, operating on the Potomac River, is required under new regulations issued by the Captain of the Port of Washington yesterday.

These boats also are to be placed under restrictions as to waters they may navigate. These and other provisions will be explained at a meeting to be held at the office of the Captain of the Port, at 550 Maine Avenue Southwest, at 8 p. m., June 21.

Use of power boats for pleasure and fishing were forbidden to continue to operate, as a result of the gasoline shortage.
